Proposed Rule Stage

1192. REVISIONS TO THE CIVIL MONEY PENALTY PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE MISUSE OF CERTAIN SYMBOLS AND EMBLEMS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1320b-10; PL 103-296, Sec 312

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1003

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule will make a number of technical revisions to the civil money penalty authority relating to the misuse of certain symbols, emblems and names as a result of amendments to section 1140 of the Social Security Act. Among other revisions, this rule (1) eliminates the annual penalty cap, (2) includes the words and letters of the Department and Medicaid under the prohibition, and (3) redefines a violation with regard to bulk mailings and solicitations. In addition, this rule serves to remove references to Social Security and its programs from 42 CFR 1003. Sepearte rulemaking addressing violations of the SSA symbols, emblems and names are being developed in conjunction with this final rule.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1001; 42 CFR 1003

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule will prohibit a hospital from knowingly making incentive payments to a physician as an inducement to reduce or limit services provided to Medicare or Medicaid beneficiaries who are under the direct care of that physician. The rule would also set forth standards governing the imposition of CMPs for each such individual for whom payments are made.

1195. CLARIFICATION OF THE INITIAL OIG SAFE HARBOR PROVISIONS AND ESTABLISHMENT OF ADDITIONAL SAFE HARBOR PROVISIONS UNDER THE ANTI-KICKBACK STATUTE

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: PL 100-93, Sec 2; PL 100-93, Sec 14

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1001

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule serves both to clarify various aspects of the original safe harbor provisions and to add new safe harbors as authorized under section 14 of PL 100-93. Specifically, this rule modifies the original set of final safe harbor provisions (56 FR 35952, 7/9/91) to give greater clarity to that rulemaking's original intent. In addition, this rule sets forth an expanded listing of safe harbor provisions designed to protect additional payment and business practices from criminal prosecution and civil sanctions under the anti-kickback statute.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1004

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will revise and update the procedures governing the imposition and adjudication of sanctions predicated on recommendations of State Peer Review Organizations. These changes are necessitated by statutory revisions resulting from PL 100-93, PL 100-203, and PL 101-508. This rule will also set forth new appeal and reinstatement procedures that are presently codified in 42 CFR part 1004.

1198. CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES (CMPS) FOR CERTAIN PRACTICES RELATING TO MEDICARE SUPPLEMENTAL POLICIES

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 100-360, Sec 428(b); PL 101-508, Sec 4204(g)(1); PL 101-508, Sec 4351; PL 101-508, Sec 4354(a)(1)(E); PL 101-508, Sec 4354(a)(2); PL 101-508, Sec 4355(a); PL 101-508, Sec 4357

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1003

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would authorize CMPs against any individual or entity who knowingly and willfully use misleading or fraudulent practices in the advertisement, solicitation, offering for sale or delivery of Medicare supplemental health insurance (Medigap) policies. Penalties would also be established for failure to (1) meet Medigap policy loss-ratio requirements, (2) comply with policy simplification standards, or (3) obtain Secretarial certification of Medigap policies in States with non-approved regulatory programs. In addition, this rule would also set forth CMPs for the failure of sellers or issuers to solicit information, and to provide notice, about Medicaid status and eligibility before selling or issuing Medigap policies.

1201. CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES FOR FALSE INFORMATION ON DRUG MANUFACTURER PRICE SURVEYS AND REBATE AGREEMENTS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 101-508, Sec 4401(a)(3)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1003

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would set forth civil money penalties against any wholesaler, manufacturer or seller of outpatient drugs that fails to respond to a request for information about charges or prices, or to knowingly provide false information, in a survey by the Secretary to verify manufacturers' reported prices. In addition, this rule would set forth civil money penalties against any drug manufacturer doing business with Medicaid that, in accordance with section 1927(b)(3)(A) of the Social Security Act, fails to provide rebate agreement price information on a timely basis, and for knowingly providing false information.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 300-x et seq, as amended by PL 102-321

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 96

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 25, 1992.
Awards to States after January 1, 1993 cannot be made until implementing regulations are published.

Abstract: Sets requirements for block grants for prevention and treatment of substance abuse. The requirements include criteria for approval of State plans which must by statute be prescribed in regulations. These provisions would replace the existing interim final rule published March 31, 1993. Given the pending reauthorization of SAMHSA and the current Administration's FY 1996 legislative proposal to turn the block grant into a "Performance Partnership," publication of this regulation has been put on hold.

1210. IMPLEMENTATION OF THE EQUAL ACCESS TO JUSTICE ACT IN AGENCY PROCEEDINGS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 5 USC 504(c)(1)

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Equal Access to Justice Act generally requires agencies to pay attorney fees to parties prevailing against the Government in certain types of administrative proceedings. It requires each agency to issue rules implementing the Act as it applies to these proceedings. As originally enacted, the Act had a sunset clause. A statutory amendment eliminated the sunset provision and made other changes in the Act. The instant regulation would amend 45 CFR part 13 (HHS's regulation implementing the Act) to eliminate the corresponding sunset provision and to make other changes conforming with the statutory changes.

Abstract: In response to President Clinton's memorandum to heads of departments, and agencies entitled "Regulatory Reinvention Initiative," FDA will be initiating rulemaking to retain, revise, or revoke certain of its regulations for food. FDA will be proposing: (1) to establish a notification procedure for companies to use for independent GRAS determinations; (2) to request information on the need to retain, revise, or revoke its food standards of identity regulations and its common or usual name regulations; (3) to coordinate the food additive, GRAS, and color additive approval process with USDA when meat and poultry product uses are petitioned for; and (4) to increase the number of categorical exclusions from the requirements for environmental review.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The OTC drug review establishes conditions under which OTC drugs are considered generally recognized as safe and effective and not misbranded. After a final monograph (i.e., final rule) is issued, only OTC drugs meeting the conditions of the monograph, or having an approved new drug application, may be legally marketed. NOTE: NPRM for "Antidotes, Toxic Ingestion Products" was combined with NPRM for "Emetic Products" and reproposed as "Poison Treatment Products." NPRM for "Astringent (Wet Dressings) Products" was included in the NPRM for "Skin Protectant Products." NPRM for "Diaper Rash Products" was included in NPRMs for "Antifungal," "Antimicrobial," "External Analgesic" and "Skin Protectant Products." NPRM for "Fever Blister/Cold Sore Products (External)" was included in NPRMs for "External Analgesic" and "Skin Protectant Products." NPRM for "Insect Bites and Stings (Relief) Products" was included in NPRMs for "External Analgesic" and "Skin Protectant Products." "Poison Ivy/Oak/Sumac Prevention" was included in NPRMs for "External Analgesic" and "Skin Protectant Products." NPRM for "Mercurial (Topical) Products" was included in revised NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products." NPRM for "Alcohol (Topical) Products" was included in revised NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products." The NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products" was updated and split into two sections: first aid products and health care products.

SMALL ENTITIES AFFECTED: The effects, if any, vary depending on the individual rulemaking. However, the Agency anticipates that the rules would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

Abstract: The agency published on December 24, 1991, a final rule implementing certain aspects of the Infant Formula Act of 1986. The rule establishes infant formula record and record retention requirements. The agency is preparing a proposed rule that will establish current good manufacturing practice regulations, quality control procedures, quality factors, notification requirements, and reports for the production of infant formulas.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 600; 21 CFR 606

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: All licensed manufacturers are required to notify FDA promptly of errors or accidents in the manufacture of products that may affect the safety, purity, or potency of any distributed biological product (21 CFR 600.14). The reporting of certain errors or accidents occurring in the manufacture of blood and blood components is necessary so that FDA can respond where the public health may be endangered and provide added assurance as to the continued safety, identity, quality, purported quality, and purity of blood and blood components. FDA has determined that errors and accidents that are detected and corrected before a finished unit is removed from the unprocessed inventory and made available for release and distribution do not affect the safety of the blood supply and need not be reported to the Agency. The proposed rule would require licensed establishments, unlicensed establishments, and transfusion services to report and keep records. The cost to licensed establishments would be minimal. Since they already are required to report, licensed establishments would only have to make some changes in standard operating procedures. Unlicensed establishments are already required to keep records and conduct investigations. Under the proposed rule they would have to establish reporting procedures and report to FDA. The transfusion services would have to assure their recordkeeping and investigation procedures are sufficient and establish reporting procedures. Reporting by transfusion services is expected to be minimal.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 868; 21 CFR 870; 21 CFR 872; 21 CFR 878; 21 CFR 882; 21 CFR 888

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 1, 1995.

Abstract: Class III devices which were on the market before 1976 were exempt from premarket approval until FDA issues a rule requiring the submission of premarket approval applications. The Safe Medical Devices Act of 1990 directed FDA to review the classification of pre-1976 class III devices for which premarket approval is not yet required, and either reclassify them into class I or class II or require premarket approval for those devices remaining in class III. There are approximately 125 pre-1976 class III devices not yet addressed. The devices covered by this proposal are devices which FDA believes may no longer be commercialy viable. FDA is providing an opportunity for manufactureres to petition for reclassification before premarket approval is required.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351; 21 USC 352

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 801

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Latex patient examination and surgeon gloves and latex condoms are used as a barrier to transmission of diseases through bodily fluids, including AIDS. Latex deteriorates over time, reducing its utility as a barrier. The proposed rule would require manufacturers of these products to perform testing to establish an appropriate expiration date for their products and to place that date on their labeling.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 21 USC 352

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 801

Abstract: Certain persons may be subject to severe adverse reaction upon contact with latex. Therefore, FDA would propose to require that devices containing latex have a warning in the labeling concerning the presence of latex and the potential risk. This will enable health professionals and consumers to make an informed choice concerning the use of a device.

1220. PREMARKET APPROVAL OF MEDICAL DEVICES; SUPPLEMENTAL APPLICATIONS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 360e

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 814.39

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FDA has become aware of several situations in which a supplement to an approved premarket approval application (PMA) was not submitted for a change to the device even though FDA believed that a supplement was required. Therefore, FDA would propose to revise its regulation to clarify when a supplement is required. This would result in fewer unapproved changes in devices.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351; 21 USC 352; 21 USC 360d; 21 USC 371; 21 USC 360j(e)

Abstract: FDA is considering revising its present regulation governing the labeling and conditions for sale of hearing aids. The present rule requires an examination by a physician before purchase of a hearing aid, but permits an informed adult to waive that requirement. There is some evidence that this waiver provision is being misused. FDA is reconsidering which types of health professionals are competent to perform hearing evaluations. FDA is also considering revisions to its professional and patient labeling to require updated information.

Abstract: FDA is proposing revisions to the current good manufacturing practice (CGMP) regulations at 21 CFR parts 210 and 211 regarding finished pharmaceuticals. The new regulations either codify current agency policies or current industry practices. Among other things, the proposal would create or clarify requirements for process and methods validation, appropriate laboratory testing procedures, and protection against contamination. The proposal is designed to update the CGMP regulations in response to technological changes and the Agency's experience with the regulations.

1223. ANIMAL DRUG AMENDMENTS OF 1994, EXTRA-LABEL USE; IMPLEMENTATION

Legal Authority: PL 103-396

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 22, 1996.
Two years after bill was signed into law (10/22/94).

Abstract: Upon promulgation of regulations, the Animal Drug Amendments of 1994 allow licensed veterinarians to prescribe off-label use of animal and human drugs for animals under certain circumstances within limits set by FDA. If the Secretary finds there is a reasonable probability that a use may present a risk to the public, the Secretary may establish a safe level for residues of such use by order and require the development of analytical methods for detection of resultant residues. If the Secretary finds, after affording an opportunity for public comment, that a use presents a risk to public health or if no analytical method is developed, when called for, the Secretary may prohibit such use. The Secretary may also, by regulation, provide access to veterinarian records to ascertain any use or intended extra-label use that may present a risk to public health. The proposed rule will implement the statute by providing policies, procedures, and limitations on extra-label use and by setting the circumstances and conditions for Agency examination of veterinarian records.

Abstract: On January 4, 1994, FDA published final rules relative to nutrition labeling, nutrient content claims and health claims for dietary supplements. The Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act (DSHEA) was enacted on October 25, 1995, modifying the provisions for labeling of dietary supplements. FDA is initiating rulemaking to modify its regulations for dietary supplements accordingly. One proposal would modify the nutrition labeling and ingredient declaration requirements. A second proposal would modify the provisions for nutrient content claims and health claims for the disclaimer to accompany statements of nutritional support. A third proposal would define the terms high potency and antioxident.

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is proposing to amend its regulations governing the review of petitions for the approval of food and color additives and substances generally recognized as safe (GRAS) to provide for simultaneous review of such petitions by the Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS), U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), when meat or poultry product uses are proposed. By agreement between USDA and FDA, such listings would eliminate the need for a separate FSIS rulemaking to allow the use in meat and poultry products of FDA-approved substances.

Abstract: On December 17, 1991, the Agency published a proposed revision of the existing regulations that is consistent with the current procedural regulations for human drugs where appropriate. The New Animal Drug Application (NADA) revisions articulate general requirements in regulations containing performance standards and would complement them through detailed guidelines on, among other matters, appropriate ways of meeting requirements for submission of chemistry, pharmacology, and statistical data that would better address the intricate scientific issues involved. A separate proposed rule for reporting requirements for marketed animal drugs also was published on that date. The agency intends to repropose the NADA proposed rule to incorporate some recent changes in procedure. The Agency also proposes to amend its regulations to implement Title I of the Generic Animal Drug and Patent Term Restoration Act, which established new standards for marketing approval of generic copies of animal drugs approved after 1962.

1238. CURRENT GOOD MANUFACTURING PRACTICE FOR BLOOD AND BLOOD COMPONENTS; NOTIFICATION OF CONSIGNEES RECEIVING BLOOD AND BLOOD COMPONENTS AT INCREASED RISK FOR TRANSMITTING HIV INFECTION

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Abstract: The agency currently requires that all blood and blood components intended for transfusion or for the manufacture of any product be tested for antibody to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). In instances when the blood of a donor is found to contain antibodies to HIV, some blood centers have initiated a program of voluntary "look-back" to determine the suitability of previous donations and to notify consignees of blood and blood components obtained from the donor's prior donations. Consignees may withdraw or destroy such blood and blood products, and may trace and notify recipients. A well-conducted look-back program can provide an effective mechanism for quarantine of products and for identifying, testing, and counseling recipients of transfusions determined to be at increased risk of HIV infection--those who receive blood from a donor later found to be infected with HIV. The agency is publishing a final rule to establish a mandatory look-back program. The final rule will require blood collection facilities to develop a procedure to identify and quarantine products from prior collections and to notify consignees promptly whenever a blood donor who has previously donated blood or source plasma is found to be positive for the antibody to HIV; and to keep appropriate records when such notification has been made. In addition, the final rule will require hospital transfusion services to notify recipients of blood products at increased risk for transmitting HIV and to keep appropriate records of the notification process. The purpose of the rulemaking is to ensure the notification of consignees and blood transfusion recipients and that prompt and appropriate action is taken.

Abstract: In light of the public health concerns raised by continuing findings concerning the effects of low levels of exposure to lead, particularly exposure by pregnant women, infants, and children, the agency is undertaking a comprehensive effort to further reduce lead levels in food where controllable or avoidable sources of lead addition to food can be identified. 1240. FEES FOR CERTIFICATION SERVICES; INSULIN AND COLOR ADDITIVE CERTIFICATION PROGRAMS

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 80; 21 CFR 429

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Insulin Certification Program:

In the Federal Register of October 4, 1991 (56 FR 50248), FDA issued an interim rule effective on November 4, 1991 with opportunity for public comment, revising the fee schedule for insulin certification services. The fees are intended to recover the full costs of operation of FDA's insulin certification program, including the unfunded liability of the Civil Service Retirement Fund and appropriate overhead costs of the Public Health Service and Department of Health and Human Services. FDA is publishing a new interim rule lowering the fees, to reflect lower costs involved in administering the insulin certification program.

Color Certification Program:

In the Federal Register of November 29, 1994, FDA issued an interim rule effective December 29, 1994, which amended the color additive regulations by increasing the fees for certification services. The change in fees will allow FDA to continue to maintain an adequate color certification program as required by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

On February 13, 1995, FDA received comments from only one interested party, the International Association of Color Manufacturers (IACM). Those comments, which stated IACM's opposition to an automatic annual escalator provision in the interim rule, will be incorporated into a final rule. The final rule is expected to be published in the Federal Register by early 1996. FDA expects to eliminate the automatic annual escalator provision in response to IACM's concerns.

Legal Authority: PL 100-293 Prescription Drug Marketing Act of 1987

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 203

Abstract: The Prescription Drug Marketing Act of 1987 (PDMA) amended the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act to: (1) require State licensing of wholesale distributors of prescription human drugs under Federal guidelines including minimum standards for storage, handling, and recordkeeping; (2) ban the reimportation of prescription human drugs produced in the United States, except when reimported by the manufacturer or for emergency use; 3) ban the sale, trade, or purchase of drug samples; (4) ban trafficking in or counterfeiting of drug coupons; (5) mandate storage, handling, and recordkeeping requirements for drug samples; (6) require licensed practitioners to request drug samples in writing; (7) prohibit, with certain exceptions, the resale of prescription human drugs purchased by hospitals or health care facilities; and (8) set forth criminal and civil penalties for violations of these provisions. In the Federal Register of September 14, 1990 (55 FR 38012), FDA issued a final rule setting forth Federal guidelines for State licensing of wholesale drug distributors. This final rule would provide information, guidance, and clarification of those sections of PDMA that are not related to State licensing of wholesale distributors.

Abstract: The Safe Medical Devices Act of 1990 (SMDA), enacted November 28, 1990, was intended to assure marketed devices are safe and effective, FDA learns quickly of device problems, and has authority to remove defective devices from the market. The act directs or authorizes FDA to develop these regulations: Medical Device Reporting--This rule will require healthcare facilities and distributors to report deaths and serious injuries/illnesses related to medical devices. Medical Device Tracking--This regulation requires manufacturers to track certain devices to the user. Classification of Transitional Devices--FDA issued a notice to require submission of adverse safety and effectiveness data on transitional devices. FDA will now propose to keep each device in class III, or reclassify it in class I or II. Good Manufacturing Practices for Medical Devices--FDA proposed to add preproduction design validation in existing CGMP regulations. Exemption of Humanitarian Devices--The proposed rule gives procedures for applications for certain premarket review exemptions for humanitarian devices.

Summaries of Safety and Effectiveness for Premarket Notification--The final rule sets forth information to be included in data summaries on which substantial equivalence determinations are made. Recall of Medical Devices--A proposed rule sets forth procedures for using its authority to order device recalls and notifications. Reports of Removal and Corrections--FDA proposed procedures for manufacturers to report to FDA health-related market removals and corrections of devices. Civil Money Penalties--A final rule established procedures for a hearing to which persons are entitled before the imposition of civil money penalties. Procedural Changes in Medical Device Regulations--This final rule made revisions in regulations necessary because of procedural changes made by the SMDA. Premarket Review of Combination Products--FDA published a final rule establishing procedures for determining which FDA center will review premarket approval applications for products that are a combination of a device and a drug or biologic.

Abstract: In fulfillment of its mandate under the Safe Drinking Water Act, EPA is currently in the midst of reviewing and establishing standards for contaminants in public drinking water such as pathogenic bacteria, pesticides, and organic chemicals. When EPA establishes such standards for public drinking water, FDA is required to take appropriate action to amend its regulations for bottled drinking water or to state its reasons for not doing so. FDA also establishes identity standards for a food when it has determined that the standard will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of consumers.

Abstract: FDA has become aware through various sources of numerous reports of complications including permanent physical injuries, severe psychological disabilities, other serious injuries and deaths that have been attributed to incorrect supervision, handling or application of protective restraint devices by medical or paramedical personnel. Complications associated with protective restraint devices frequently result from misuse of the devices. To address potential misuse, manufacturers should include specific directions for use, to the extent that such directions are not currently available or not attached to or kept with the garment. Revocation of the premarket notification exemptions will allow FDA to collect information about the current availability and actual employment of directions for use and to monitor the introduction into commerce of new and changed protective restraints. Revocation of the exemption from the current good manufacturing practice regulation will allow FDA to require the necessary controls over labeling. FDA is also considering educational programs to address this problem. FDA anticipates total first year costs of $930,000 for this regulation. These costs will be offset by the saving of lives and reduced product liability exposure.

Abstract: The Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990 (NLEA) requires that most foods bear nutrition labeling. The agency issued final rules implementing most of the provisions contained in the NLEA on January 6, 1993. Subsequently, however, the agency has identified additional areas that should be the subject of rulemaking. FDA issued a proposal on January 6, 1993, to establish requirements for the identification of certain ingredients on food labels. FDA proposed on June 15, 1993, to amend its January 6, 1993, final rules on nutrient content and health claims to remove the provisions that exempted restaurant menus from the requirements for how nutrient content claims and health claims are to be made. FDA also proposed to modify the provisions that delay the effective date of these regulations for small restaurant firms for one year. The agency proposed January 4, 1994, to establish reference daily intakes based on the 9th and 10th editions of the National Research Council's Recommended Dietary Allowances. On March 14, 1994, FDA published a proposal describing the provisions for exemptions for low-volume food products of small businesses that were established by the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act Amendments of 1993. On August 18, 1993, FDA published a proposal concerning the placement of the nutrition facts panel on food labels. Finally, on July 18, 1994, FDA published proposed revised guidelines for the voluntary declaration of nutrition labeling for raw produce and fish. A final rule concerning the placement of the nutrition facts panel published on April 5, 1995.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 101

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, June 15, 1993. Final, Statutory, December 31, 1993.

If final regulations on labeling of Dietary Supplements are not published by 12/31/93, the proposed regulations shall be considered the final regulations.

Abstract: With the publication of various final rules on January 6, 1993, the Agency completed action on its food labeling initiative under the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990. Rulemaking on nutrition labeling of dietary supplements was delayed due to requirements of the Dietary Supplement Act of 1992 (DSA), which amended the law to provide that the Agency would issue proposed regulations for dietary supplements by June 15, 1993, and final regulations by December 31, 1993. Three proposed regulations were developed and published on June 18, 1993: Health Claims for Dietary Supplements, Nutrient Content Claims for Dietary Supplements, and Mandatory Nutrition Labeling for Dietary Supplements. On October 14, 1993, FDA published a proposal to not authorize health claims on the labels of dietary supplements of 5 nutrient/disease relationships: (1) Dietary fiber and cancer (2) Dietary Fiber and CVD, (3) Antioxidants and Cancer, (4) Omega-3 fatty acids and CHD, (5) Zinc and immune function in the elderly. In addition, FDA also published a proposed rule to authorize the use of health claims about the relationship of folates and neural tube defects. On January 4, 1994, FDA published notices stating that it considered the proposals to be final regulations by operational statute. However, the notices also stated that FDA considers the October 14, 1993, rulemakings to be ongoing. The Agency intends to continue rulemaking with respect to folates and to issue a final rule as quickly as possible. FDA is also considering new scientific information that may support health claims for some of the nutrient-disease relationships given above. If this information is sufficient to support claims, the Agency will repropose to allow those claims.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 21 USC 352; 21 USC 355; 42 USC 262

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 201

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On November 1, 1990 (55 FR 46134), the Agency proposed to amend its regulations governing the content and format of labeling for human prescription drug products to require a subsection in the labeling that would include information on the use of a drug in the elderly. This proposal reflects growing recognition by FDA and others of the special concerns associated with prescription drug use in this age group. FDA believes that providing access to this information is necessary for the safe and effective use of prescription drugs in older populations. The Agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing a final rule.

Abstract: On January 18, 1994 (59 FR 2542), the Agency proposed to amend its tamper-resistant packaging regulations to require that all over-the-counter (OTC) human drug products marketed in two-piece, hard gelatin capsules be sealed. The proposal also solicited public comments on whether additional regulatory changes, such as packaging performance standards, may be necessary. FDA has required tamper-resistant packaging features for OTC drug products since 1982. The tamper-resistant packaging regulations were revised in 1989 in response to continuing tampering incidents. Despite the regulatory protection provided by the regulations, two-piece, hard gelatin capsules remain vulnerable to malicious tampering and were implicated in tampering incidents in 1991. This regulatory action is in response to the 1991 tampering incidents.

Abstract: FDA is preparing regulations to set forth criteria for agency acceptance of electronic records and electronic signatures in lieu of paper records and handwritten signatures. The new rules would apply to any records requirements in Chapter I of Title 21 (all program areas and industries), unless specifically exempted by future regulations. For documents required to be maintained, but not submitted to FDA, persons could use electronic records and signatures upon the effective date of a final rule. For documents submitted to FDA, persons could use electronic records and signatures if FDA has stated, in a public docket to be maintained for that purpose, that the intended receiving organization is prepared to accept the submission in electronic form. (The proposed rule does not require use of electronic records and signatures, but permits their use under certain circumstances.) This action was taken as a follow-up to the Agency's 7/21/92 advance notice of proposed rulemaking. The intended effect is to permit and foster use of new technologies in a manner that is consistent with FDA's overall mission and that preserves the integrity of the Agency's enforcement activities.

Abstract: This final regulation addresses the problem of certain financial arrangements and interests of clinical investigators that have the potential to bias the outcome of clinical trials. The problem is significant because clinical research data provide the basis for FDA's evaluation of drugs, biologics and devices for marketing. The regulation requires the sponsor of a product that is the subject of a marketing application to submit either a statement certifying that the clinical investigator is not a party to any problematic financial interests and arrangements or a statement disclosing problematic interests and arrangements to which the investigator is a party. This information would enable FDA to subject the relevant clinical research data to an appropriate level of scrutiny to test its reliability. Alternatives are to prohibit investigators from holding certain financial interests altogether or to require divestiture by the investigator of a prohibited interest. The estimated costs to industry associated with preparation, submission, and retention of the information required by this final rule are well below the $100 million threshold that defines a significant regulatory action. The final rule is not expected to impose a significant resource burden on FDA because the submission of statements is limited to clinical data submitted in support of marketing applications, ruling out data from the large number of studies that do not lead to applications, and FDA estimates that sponsors will be able to certify for the majority of their clinical investigators, so that most submitted data will not require intensified scrutiny. The final rule will strengthen the FDA review process.

Abstract: FDA is issuing a final rule requiring certain infectious disease testing, donor screening, and recordkeeping to help prevent the transmission of AIDS and hepatitis through human tissue used in transplantation. FDA is also clarifying and modifying those requirements previously promulgated by the interim rule. In addition, FDA is amending the regulations to require the registration of those establishments engaged in procurement, processing, storage, or distribution of human tissue intended for transplantation. Also, FDA will be proposing regulations to govern the recovery, processing, storage, or distribution of human reproductive tissue.

Abstract: On October 6, 1994, FDA published a proposal responding to three citizen petitions that were submitted in response to an increase in deaths and poisonings in small children due to accidental ingestion of iron containing drugs and dietary supplements. The petitions requested that FDA require label warning statements for these products and special packaging to ensure the safe use of these products. Because of recent changes in the laws regulating dietary supplements brought about by the Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act (Pub. L. 103-417), FDA published a supplemental proposal on February 16, 1995, that set forth its revised legal authority a supplemental proposal that sets forth its revised legal authority.

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is proposing to amend its regulations governing communications with officials of State and foreign governments. This proposal will permit FDA to disclose to, and receive from, these officials certain nonpublic information without being compelled to disclose the information to the public generally. This proposal addresses the nonpublic exchange of two types of information. First, it allows the disclosure of nonpublic safety, effectiveness, or quality information concerning FDA-regulated products to State government officials. Second, it allows the disclosure of draft proposed rules and other nonpublic predecisional documents concerning regulatory requirements or activities between FDA and either State or foreign government officials. This action is necessary to enhance cooperation in regulatory activities, to eliminate unfounded contradictory regulatory requirements, and to minimize redundant application of similar requirements.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Acceptable evidence and information exist to show that a subgroup of asthmatics is at moderate to severe risk for a severe reaction upon exposure to sulfites. The agency's primary tool for handling a situation where population subgroups may be at increased risk from a food ingredient that is safe for most people is to use labeling to inform those persons who need or want to avoid the ingredient. The agency issued a final rule, effective January 7, 1987, that requires that when a sulfiting agent is present in a finished food at 10 parts per million or greater, the sulfiting agent must be declared on the label. In addition, FDA issued a final rule, effective August 8, 1986, prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on raw fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw to consumers (e.g., in salad bars). On December 10, 1987, FDA announced its tentative conclusion that there is no longer a basis to find that the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes served or sold unpackaged to consumers is GRAS. On December 19, 1988, FDA proposed to affirm, with specific limitations, that certain other uses of sulfiting agents are GRAS and to establish labeling requirements for sulfiting agents in standardized foods.

On March 15, 1990 (55 FR 9826), FDA issued a final rule prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes (55 FR 9826) and requested data and information concerning the use of sulfiting agents on frozen potatoes (55 FR 9834).

On August 3, 1990, the United States District Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania declared the final rule concerning fresh potatoes to be "null and void" based on perceived procedural defects in the rulemaking proceeding. The Government appealed the district court's decision. On May 22, 1991, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit en banc split equally. Therefore, the decision of the district

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 22, 1989.

Abstract: Section 314 of the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 mandated that the warnings, use instructions, and precautionary information of specified childhood vaccines be reviewed and that their adequacy in warning health care professionals of the nature and extent of dangers posed by such vaccines be determined. This precautionary information is contained in the package insert of each vaccine licensed by the agency. Abstract: The final rule will amend the adverse experience reporting regulations for human drug products and licensed biological products to make the requirements consistent with a new single unified form (FDA Form 3500A) and require the use of this new reporting form. The new form was announced as part of FDA's MedWatch program. The final rule will also revise certain definitions and reporting periods and formats as recommended by the International Conference on Harmonization of Technical Requirements for Registration of Pharmaceuticals for Human Use (ICH) and the World Health Organization's Council for International Organizations of Medical Sciences (CIOMS). In addition, the rule will amend the regulations governing the reporting of data from clinical studies.

Abstract: FDA is announcing its intention to classify stand-alone computer software products that fit the definition of a medical device under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. The Agency anticipates classifying these devices by using a risk-based approach as required under the Medical Device Amendments to the act. Under this approach low risk medical software devices would be subject only to the adulteration and misbranding provisions of the act. Moderate risk devices would additionally be subject to the registration, listing, and good manufacturing practice requirements for adverse events and complaints. High risk devices would be the only products to require premarket submissions. FDA is also seeking comment on potential criteria related to the intended uses of medical software devices that might be used in determining the level of risk.

Abstract: FDA announced on April 4, 1994, its plans to consider developing regulations that would establish requirements for a new comprehensive food safety assurance program for both domestically produced and imported foods that would be based on the principles of Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points (HACCP). The new food safety program would respond to new challenges, such as new food processing and packaging technologies, new food distribution and consumption patterns, exposure to industrial chemicals and chemical waste, the increasing importation of foods, new microbial pathogens, and resource constraints. The most serious of these challenges is presented by food pathogens. The number of recognized food-borne pathogens has broadened considerably, as has awareness of long-term complications from certain food-borne illnesses--such as arthritis, heart disease, and kidney and neurological damage. To meet such challenges, FDA intends to shift the focus of its food safety assurance program away from periodic visual inspection and end-product testing and toward prevention of food safety risks and problems, utilizing the HACCP state-of-the-art preventive approach.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is proposing to amend its regulations for investigational devices to describe streamlined requirements for exports of unapproved medical devices. Under the proposed rule, an approved investigational device exemption (IDE) would constitute an agency determination that the export of the unapproved device is not contrary to the public health or safety. Countries could notify FDA that they do not object to the importation of unapproved devices with an approved IDE into their countries. Thus, for devices with an FDA-approved IDE, the proposal would eliminate the need for FDA to make independent determinations either that exportation is not contrary to the public health or safety or that an importing country does not object to the importation of a specific device. The proposed rule is intended to codify and to simplify export requirements for certain unapproved devices pursuant to the President's and Vice-President's

"National Performance Review," as reflected in the April 1995 report titled, "Reinventing Drug & Medical Device Regulations." It is also consistent with recent Congressional initiatives.

Abstract: The Secretary has made findings as to the illnesses and conditions that can reasonably be determined in some circumstances to be caused or significantly aggravated by certain vaccines. Based on these findings, the Secretary proposes to amend the Vaccine Injury Table by regulation pursuant to section 313 of the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 and section 2114(c) of the Public Health Service Act. These proposed regulations would have effect only for petitions for compensation under the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program (VICP) filed after the new regulations become effective.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 57; 42 CFR 58

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule amends various Public Health Service (PHS) health professions, nursing, and allied health training grant regulations, codified at 42 CFR parts 57 and 58, to bring these programs into conformity with statutory amendments made by the Health Professions Extension Amendments of 1992 to the various sections of the PHS Act under titles VII and VIII. Technical changes being made to the regulations are: (1) the renumbering of PHS section numbers and their corresponding United States Code numbers within the regulations; (2) the removal of the reference to the National Advisory Council on Health Professions Education and the requirements for the Council's review of title VII grants; (3) the removal of the reference to section 705 of the PHS Act concerning audit and inspection requirements, which is redundant to the requirements that are covered under 45 CFR part 74; (4) the removal of repealed and inactive title VII and VIII health professions, nursing, and allied health training grant program regulations; and (5) other technical changes which are clarifying or editorial changes in nature.

Abstract: This proposed rule would revise HCFA's policy on Medicare coverage of ambulance services. It focuses on the medical necessity for ambulance service, redefines an ambulance as an "emergency vehicle" and revises the policy on coverage of non-emergency ambulance transportation for beneficiaries with end-stage renal disease. These changes would prevent use of non-emergency vehicles and the use of ambulance transportation in non-emergency situations where the medical need has not clearly been determined. These changes require the use of emergency vehicles as ambulances and would focus on the medical treatment rather than transportation as the primary concern for furnishing ambulance services, as required by Title XVIII, Section 1861(s)(7) of the Social Security Act. This rule is part of HCFA's regulatory reform initiative.

Abstract: This rule would organize and codify in regulations the statutory changes to Medigap provisions made in 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990 and 1994. It will contain specific procedures for review of State regulatory plans (and individual policies) as required in OBRA '90. The new standards were enacted by OBRA '87, and '90, the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988, the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Repeal Act of 1989, and the Social Security Act Amendments of 1994. This rule is part of HCFA's regulatory reform initiative.

Abstract: This rule would amend the Medicare regulations to clarify our interpretation of "without fault" as it applies to physician, provider, supplier and beneficiary liability for overpayments. This definition would result in greater uniformity of determinations by carriers and intermediaries. Additionally, this proposed rule would amend the Medicare regulations governing liability for overpayments to eliminate application of certain regulations of the Social Security Administration and to replace them with HCFA regulations more specific to circumstances involving Medicare overpayments. This rule is part of HCFA's regulatory reform initiative.

Abstract: These regulations would interpret section 303(a) of MCCA '88, as amended by section 608(d)(16) of the FSA (PL 100-485), section 6411(e)(3) of OBRA '89 and section 4714 of OBRA '90. Section 303(a) allocates income and resources between a spouse who is institutionalized and the spouse remaining in the community. It also provides special post-eligibility rules for institutionalized individuals who have spouses in the community. The revision would allow the community spouse to retain more income to meet living expenses.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395cc; 42 USC 1396a

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 488

Abstract: These regulations would provide an alternative to terminating a psychiatric hospital's participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs for facilities found to be out of compliance with participation requirements. These alternative sanctions could be imposed instead of terminating a psychiatric hospital's participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs where deficiencies do not present immediate jeopardy to the health and safety of psychiatric hospital patients.

These amendments are necessary to conform HCFA regulations to changes made by section 6020 of OBRA '89 and section 4755 of OBRA '90.

The purpose of the legislation is to encourage correction of deficiencies that do not jeopardize patient health and safety before termination becomes necessary.

Abstract: This rule will incorporate section 4401 of OBRA '90 to add specific requirements for Medicaid payment for covered outpatient drugs. The requirements concern: denial of Federal financial participation unless rebate agreements and drug use review are in effect; prohibiting some State plan drug access limitations for drugs covered under a rebate agreement; and the content of the rebate agreements. The drug rebate agreement was previously published in the Federal Register on February 21, 1991 (56 FR 7049). This rule will also reflect statutory revisions mandated by the Veteran's Health Care Act of 1992 and OBRA '93. Abstract: This rule would allow Peer Review Organizations (PROs) to disclose confidential information to researchers without the consent of the individuals who would be identified. Currently, PROs can only disclose to the public nonconfidential aggregate data where no one is specifically identified. The statute, however, provides for limited disclosure in case there are circumstances the Secretary shall by regulations provide to assure adequate protection of the rights and interest of patients, health care practitioners, or providers. HCFA is now emphasizing the sharing of PRO data for educational and research purposes as evidenced by the implementation of the Uniform Clinical Data Set and the Health Care Quality Improvement Initiative. This regulatory revision will make confidential PRO information accessible to researchers while still protecting the identities of beneficiaries and practitioners from unwarranted disclosure. PRO flexibility to share information with researchers is comparable with the revised requirements in the PRO's Fourth Scope of Work contract.

Abstract: This proposed rule would revise the regulations governing the methodology for payment of routine extended care services provided in a swing bed hospital. Medicare payment for such services would be determined prospectively based on the average rate per patient day paid by Medicare for routine care services provided in a free standing skilled nursing facility (SNF) in the region where the hospital is located. This rule would also provide that payment for these services will be the higher of the payment cost rate in effect for the current calendar year or for the payment rate received by the swing-bed hospital for the prior calendar year. In addition, this rule would revise the regulations concerning the method used to allocate hospital general routine inpatient service costs for purposes of determining payment to swing-bed hospitals.

Abstract: This proposed rule would provide that a physician who has (or has a family member who has) a financial relationship with a health care entity may not make referrals to that entity for certain services (designated health services) under the Medicare program, except under specified circumstances. This proposed rule would also deny payment to a State for expenditures for designated health services furnished on the basis of a physician referral that, all things being equal, would result in denial of payment under Medicare. The provisions of the proposed rule are based on sections 13562 and 13624 of the OBRA '93, as amended by SSA '94.

Abstract: In this proposed rule we would define "distinct part" by specifying that a distinct part is a physically identifiable unit of an institution (that is, an entire ward wing, floor, or building) including all beds in the unit. In conjunction with this change we also propose an alternative approach for calculating medicare payments to a skilled nursing facility (SNF). This new "distinct costing" procedure would enable a participating SNF to establish a distinct costing area within the SNF for its relatively high intensity residents so that it can isolate and fully capture the routine cost of their care without resorting to the use of arbitrary certification boundaries to achieve this result. This proposed rule would also prohibit nursing homes from financially screening private pay applicants for admission. Instead, nursing homes would be permitted to charge up to a 2-month deposit before admission to ensure that sufficient funds are available to pay for care to which the individual may be entitled.

Abstract: This rule would specify that Medicare part B coverage includes the services of a certified nurse-midwife furnished independent of the supervision of a physician (if that practice is allowed under the State law of the State in which the service is furnished). Section 4073 of the OBRA '87, as amended by section 411(h) of the MCCA '88, established separate Medicare Part B coverage of certified nurse-midwife services furnished after June 30, 1988. Section 13554 of OBRA '93 eliminates the limitation on coverage of certified-nurse midwife services. Services provided by a certified nurse-midwife outside the maternity cycle will now be covered under this provision.

Abstract: This rule would remove several obsolete sections of the Medicaid regulations that specify rules and procedures for disallowing Federal financial participation for erroneous medical assistance payments due to eligibility and beneficiary liability errors as detected through the Medicaid eligibility quality control (MEQC) program for assessment periods from 1980 through June 1990. The rule also would eliminate certain regulations that specify Federal standards for personnel administration and training programs to allow States more flexibility and reduce burden. In addition, the rule would remove most of the regulations that prescribe requirements concerning control of the utilization of all Medicaid services, including specific requirements for control of utilization in institutions. The statutory requirements for utilization control remain in effect. This effort is part of our initiative to reinvent health care regulations.

Abstract: This final rule, issued jointly by HCFA and the OIG, prohibits Medicare payment for nonphysician services furnished to a hospital outpatient by a provider or supplier other than the hospital, unless the services are furnished under an arrangement with the hospital. The hospital is obligated by its provider agreement to furnish the services directly or under an arrangement. These regulations also authorize the OIG to impose a civil money penalty, not to exceed $2,000, against any individual who knowingly and willfully presents, or causes to be presented, a bill or request for payment, for items or services furnished under Medicare, that is inconsistent with an arrangement under section 1866(a)(1)(H) of the Social Security Act or is in violation of the requirements for an arrangement. These regulations implement section 9343(c) of OBRA '86, section 4085(i)(17) of OBRA '87, and section 4157 of OBRA '90.

Abstract: This proposed rule would supplement the existing Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) regulations by establishing rules specific to HCFA. The rule would also revise existing HCFA regulations to delete language that reiterates or conflicts with HHS-FOIA regulations or that pertains to SSA. This proposed rule is part of the Department's regulatory reinvention initiative.

Abstract: This regulation will provide organizations which operate health maintenance organizations (HMOs) that are federally qualified under title XIII of the Public Health Service Act with greater flexibility in operating other health benefit plans. It will also authorize, with certain limitations, federally qualified HMOs to offer out-of-plan physician services and require a reasonable deductible for those services. Further, this regulation would permit the HMO to use assets of the parent organization to meet fiscal soundness and insolvency protection requirements.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 1, 1989.

Abstract: Sections 1819(b)(3) and 1919(b)(3) of the Social Security Act, as amended by PL 100-203, require skilled nursing facilities in the Medicare program and before October 1, 1990, as nursing facilities in the Medicaid program, to conduct a comprehensive, standardized assessment of each resident's capability to perform daily life functions. The assessment must also describe significant impairments in the resident's functional capacity and be based on a uniform minimum data set specified by the Secretary. Sections 1819(f)(6)(A) and 1919 (f)(6)(A) of the Act require the Secretary to specify a minimum data set of core elements and common definitions for use by nursing facilities in conducting the assessments. This rule would specify this minimum data set and establish guidelines for using it.

Abstract: Section 6403 of OBRA '89 defines in new section 1905(r) of the Social Security Act the following EPSDT services: screening services, vision services, dental services and hearing services. It also extends EPSDT services to include such other necessary health care, diagnostic services, treatment, and other measures described in section 1905(a) of the Act to correct or ameliorate defects and illnesses and conditions discovered by the screening services whether or not the services are covered under the State plan. Section 6403 also amended section 1902(a)(43) of the Act to require States to report to the Secretary certain information about EPSDT services provided under the plan during each fiscal year. This rule would set forth requirements to implement these statutory provisions.

Abstract: This rule will set forth our policy for the payment of the costs of approved nursing and allied health science programs, an action directed by section 6205(b)(2) of OBRA '89. For the most part, the provisions set forth in this rule restate or clarify our current policies governing these costs, which have been previously set forth in the provider reimbursement manual and other documents, but have never been included in the regulations. In addition, we are amending the list of approved programs and clarify payment rules for certified registered nurse anesthetist programs. This rule will also implement section 4004 of OBRA '90 which provides that, effective with cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1990, under certain conditions, costs incurred by a hospital or educational institution related to the hospital for clinical training are treated as pass-through costs and paid on the basis of reasonable cost even though the hospital does not operate the education programs.

Abstract: This rule will address provisions of section 6113 of OBRA '89 and section 4157 of OBRA '90. Section 6113 of OBRA '89 provides coverage for the services of clinical psychologists (CPs) and clinical social workers. It requires CPs to agree to consult with the patient's primary care or attending physician. Also, it eliminates the dollar limitation that previously applied to mental health services although the 62.5 percent limitation still applies. OBRA '89 also provides coverage for clinical social worker services, but places two limitations on separate payment, which apply to services provided to inpatients of hospitals and skilled nursing facilities that are Medicare participating. Section 4157 of OBRA '90 unbundled CP services from the definition of "inpatient hospital services."

1361. PARTIAL HOSPITALIZATION SERVICES IN COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH CENTERS (BPD-736-IFC)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395k(a)(2)(J); 42 USC 1395x(ff); 42 USC 1395cc(e)(2)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 400; 42 CFR 410; 42 CFR 413; 42 CFR 489; 42 CFR 498

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In accordance with section 4162 of OBRA '90, this rule sets forth the coverage criteria and payment methodology for partial hospitalization services furnished in community mental health centers. It also specified the requirements a community mental health center must meet in order to enter into a Medicare provider agreement to furnish partial hospitalization services. This interim final rule will respond to public comments.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule implements a statutory requirement that State Medicaid agencies must provide for receipt and initial processing of Medicaid applications filed by certain low-income pregnant women, infants, and children under age 19, at locations which are other than those used for receipt and processing of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) applications. The statutory requirement also provides that the application form for these individuals must not be the AFDC application form.

The rule is based on section 1902(a)(55) of the Social Security Act as added by section 4602 of OBRA '90, PL 101-508.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would amend the regulations governing federally qualified health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and competitive medical plans (CMPs) contracting with the Medicare program, and certain HMOs and health insuring organizations (HIOs) contracting with States under the Medicaid program, by implementing changes made by sections 4204(a) and 4731(a) of OBRA '90 concerning physician incentive plans. The changes are intended to allow HMOs, CMPs, and HIOs the flexibility to provide reasonable financial incentives to their physicians and physician groups in order to eliminate unnecessary care while still protecting enrollees from reduced quality of care or reduced access to care.

1364. PART B ADVANCE PAYMENTS TO PHYSICIANS/SUPPLIERS OR OTHER ENTITIES FURNISHING ITEMS OR SERVICES UNDER MEDICARE PART B (BPO-105-F)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395u

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 421.214

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would amend Medicare regulations to provide advance payment to physicians, suppliers, or entities that furnish items or services under Medicare Part B. These payments could be made only when claims processing is so delayed that interest payments alone are insufficient to adequately compensate the provider, in light of cash flow needs. This change is intended to result in more efficient and economical administration of the Medicare program.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 8904(b)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 489

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will amend current Medicare regulations to require that payment for inpatient hospital services furnished to retired Federal workers age 65 and older who are enrolled in a Federal Employee Health Benefits (FEHB) plan but who are not covered under Medicare Part A (Hospital Insurance) must accept as payment in full an amount that approximates as closely as possible the inpatient hospital Medicare prospective payment rate. The rule will also amend current Medicare regulations to authorize HCFA to consider termination or nonrenewal of a hospital's Medicare provider agreement for knowingly and willfully failing to accept, on a repeated basis, the Medicare rate as payment in full from an FEHB plan. This rule will implement section 7002(f) of OBRA '90, enacted November 5, 1990. This rule is part of the Department's regulatory initiative.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule requires Medicare participating hospitals with emergency departments to provide upon request medical examinations and treatments for individuals with emergency medical conditions and women in labor. A participating hospital that has specialized capabilities or facilities (such as burn, shock trauma, or neonatal intensive care units) must accept an appropriate transfer if they have the capacity to treat the individual. Hospitals failing to meet those requirements may have their Medicare provider agreements terminated, and hospitals and responsible physicians may be subject to civil money penalties. Under section 9122 of COBRA '85, Medicare participating hospitals are required to accept CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA payment as payment in full for services provided to CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA beneficiaries. These regulations also implement section 9305(b) of OBRA '86, which requires Medicare hospitals to give patients a notice of their discharge rights.

Abstract: The final rule establishes in regulations generally applicable criteria and procedures for determining whether a service is "reasonable and necessary" under the Medicare program; it sets forth the coverage decisionmaking process; and it summarizes and provides an analysis of the public comments that we received in response to the January 30, 1989 proposed rule (54 FR 4302). The objective of the criteria and procedures set forth in this rule is to ensure that Federal funds are expended only for medical services that are appropriate to meet an individual's medical needs.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395y(b)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 411

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule implements the Medicare secondary payer (MSP) provision for disabled individuals who are covered under large group health plans (LGHPs). Under this provision LGHPs may not take into account that such individuals are entitled to Medicare. The rule contains procedures under which a plan can appeal a determination of nonconformance which could lead to a tax penalty. It reflects statutory revisions mandated by OBRA '86, OBRA '89, and OBRA '93, some of which also affect the MSP provisions for persons who are entitled on the basis of age or end-stage renal disease. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule with comment period amends the Medicare and Medicaid regulations by removing obsolete long-term care survey forms, guidelines, and procedures used by State agencies when they evaluate a Medicare skilled nursing facility or a Medicaid nursing facility for compliance with Federal certification requirements. Effective October 1, 1990, the application of new Federal participation requirements for these facilities with an increased focus on actual or potential resident outcomes has made the survey forms and process in existing regulations outdated. Retention of the outdated items could cause confusion in connection with directions State survey agencies must follow in determining facility compliance.

Abstract: This notice announces the Medicare program's intent to withdraw coverage for diagnostic nocturnal penile tumescence (NPT) testing in the sleep disorder clinic and to exclude coverage for nocturnal penile tumescence testing by plethysmography and other monitoring devices in all settings. Public Health Service studies show that NPT testing is not a reliable index for evaluating impotence. Therefore, it does not meet HCFA's criteria for effectiveness.

1404. NONCOVERAGE OF ELECTROSTIMULATION OF SALIVARY GLANDS FOR THE TREATMENT OF XEROSTOMIA (DRY MOUTH) (BPD-782-FN)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395y(a)(1)(A)

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice announces the Medicare program's intent to exclude from coverage electrostimulation of the salivary glands in the treatment of xerostomia secondary to Sjogren's Syndrome. Public Health Service (PHS) studies show that there is insufficient data to establish the clinical utility of electrostimulation to evaluate its long-term effectiveness, or to identify those xerostomia patients who would benefit from this procedure. Also, PHS reports that electrostimulation is not widely accepted as a treatment for xerostomia secondary to Sjogren's Syndrome.

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 263a(m)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 493.638; 42 CFR 493.649

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The preamble to this final rule with comment period announces updated fees that laboratories must pay as required by CLIA '88. Fee increases are necessary to meet the costs of program administration, which are to be borne by the laboratories. In addition, technical conforming changes are made to the regulations to ensure consistent and complete references. This rule is part of HCFA's regulatory reform initiative.

1407. • DEFINITION OF SKILLED NURSING FACILITY (SNF) AND HOME HEALTH AGENCY (HHA) FOR COVERAGE OF DURABLE MEDICAL EQUIPMENT (DME) (BPD-834-P)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1495x(n)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 409; 42 CFR 410

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would define skilled nursing facilities (SNF) (under Medicare and Medicaid) for purposes of Medicare coverage of DME and home health. A Medicare SNF (as defined under section 1819 of the Act) can not be considered a home under Medicare Part B for DME and home health coverage. This proposed rule would presume that all Medicaid NFs are section 1819(a) facilities and this would not be considered a home for DME and home health coverage. This rule would identify non- Medicare nursing homes as skilled facilities based upon the receipt of skilled care by a proportion of their resident population that is at least comparable to the proportion typically found in participating Medicare SNFs. This proposed rule is part of the Department's regulatory reinvention initiative.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395y(a)(1)(A)

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice announces proposed changes in Medicare's national coverage policy for liver transplantations. Currently, Medicare coverage for liver transplantation in adults is limited to seven diagnosis. This notice proposes to expand the diagnoses for which Medicare would cover a liver transplant to include all end stage liver disease except malignancies, hepatitis B, and hemochromatosis. We are also proposing a change in the criteria for approval of a facility to perform liver transplants.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1396p(c)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 435; 42 CFR 436

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations would conform the Medicaid regulations to section 1917(c) and (d) of the Social Security Act, as amended by section 13611 of OBRA 1993. Section 1917(c) of the Act addresses the treatment of transfers of assets for less than fair market value. These regulations would specify the conditions that would result in the denial of coverage for certain medical services to otherwise eligible individuals who transfer assets for less than fair market value. These regulations would also set forth the rules under which a trust must be considered in determining eligibility for Medicaid. The provisions would apply to any individual who established a trust and who is a Medicaid applicant or recipient.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 8621

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 96

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This Notice of Proposed Rulemaking will amend the DHHS block grant regulations to implement changes to the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) statute which were made by the Human Services Amendments of 1994 (Pub. L. 103-252). Several of the provisions in the new law are self-implementing, but a few require implementing regulations. The major provisions requiring implementing regulations are: (1) Inclusion of new Assurance 16, to require grantees to submit as a part of their annual application a description of their "self-sufficiency" activities and to submit a report to DHHS on the effect of these activities; (2) Inclusion of allowable uses of DOE rules for weatherization services provided with LIHEAP funds; (3) Inclusion for requirements for submission of data on households served. In addition, other related amendments to the regulations will be included, concerning the following issues: (1) Consideration of different weighting of factors under the allocation formula for the leveraging incentive program; (2) Hearing requirements for audit disallowances; and (3) Allotments for territories. requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 205.31

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule adds a new section 205.31 which will provide a simple administrative process for requesting waivers of certain AFDC regulatory provisions. Such waivers will give States more flexibility to devise procedures for the effective and efficient administration of their AFDC programs. The major provisions for which waivers will be granted are: (1) the requirements for prospective budgeting of income; (2) the time period for calculating the total amount of overpayment and the determination of when the initial overpayment begins; and (3) other provisions on various disregards and self-employment business expenses.

Abstract: This rule contains provisions regarding required State laws for reporting information concerning unpaid child support obligations to consumer reporting agencies. These provisions implement the requirements of section 212 of the Social Security Act Amendments of 1994, which amend title IV-D of the Social Security Act. These provisions require States to adopt procedures for periodic reporting of information to consumer reporting agencies. This regulatory package will also include technical changes to other child support regulations to support the President's Regulatory reinvention initiative.

1444. CHILD CARE—REVISED REGULATIONS

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 98.255; 45 CFR 98.256; 45 CFR 98.257

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Administration for Children and Families will amend existing regulations which govern the administration of child care programs under Title IV-A of the Social Security Act (AFDC Child Care, Transitional Child Care, At-Risk Child Care) and the Child Care and Development Block Grant. Based on recent legislative changes, as well as comments from state and tribal program administrators, child care advocates and other interested parties, we are examining a number of specific regulatory provisions. The purpose of this regulatory package will be to implement legislative changes, reduce program differences, and promote better program coordination. We do not expect these changes to result in significant program costs; administrative savings may result.

Semiannual Regulatory Agenda

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT (HUD)

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

24 CFR Subtitles A and B

[Docket No. FR-3895-02]

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12866 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, of regulations expected to be issued and under review.

SUMMARY: In accordance with section 4(b) of Executive Order 12866 "Regulatory Planning and Review," the Department is publishing its agenda of proposed regulations already issued or expected to be issued and of currently effective rules that are under review. Also, under section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the Department has prepared an agenda of regulations expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. As permitted by Executive Order 12866 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the two agendas are combined for publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Camille E. Acevedo, Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Room 10276, 451 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20410, (202) 708-2084. (This is not a toll-free number.)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12866 "Regulatory Planning and Review," published on October 4, 1993 (58 FR 51735), requires each agency to publish semiannually an agenda of regulations that the agency has issued or expects to issue and of currently effective regulations that are under agency review.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires each agency to publish semiannually a regulatory agenda of rules expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities," meaning small businesses, small organizations, or small governmental jurisdictions.

Executive Order 12866 and section 605 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act each permits incorporation of the agenda required with any other prescribed agenda. Accordingly, the agenda set out below combines the information required by the Executive order and by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. In addition, the agenda contains certain information not required by either the Executive order or by the Act, which the Department considers useful both better to inform the public and to enhance the Department's own inventory control over its body of regulations.

For purposes of Executive Order 12866, "regulation" or "rule" is defined as "an agency statement of general applicability and future effect, which the agency intends to have the force and effect of law, that is designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or to describe the procedure or practice requirements of an agency" subject to certain exceptions. The agenda published below concentrates upon regulatory material contained or expected to be contained in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) (or incorporated therein by reference) following publication in the Federal Register. As appropriate, however, issuances in the nature of general statements of policy may be published in the Federal Register but not for coordination in the CFR.

The Department also is subject to certain requirements involving congressional review of rulemaking action, including publication of an agenda. Section 7(o) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act (42 U.S.C. 3535(o)) requires that the Secretary transmit to the congressional committees having jurisdictional oversight (the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services) a semiannual agenda of all rules or regulations which are under development or review by the Department. A rule appearing on the agenda cannot be published for comment before or during the first 15 calendar days after transmittal of the agenda. If, within that period, either committee notifies the Secretary that it intends to review any rule or regulation which appears on the agenda, the Secretary must submit to both committees a copy of the rule or regulation, in the form it is intended to be proposed, at least 15 calendar days before it is published for comment. The semiannual agenda published today is the agenda transmitted to the committees in compliance with the foregoing requirement.

The agenda items are divided first by program office. Within each program office, the agenda items are divided into four groups: (i) Prerulemaking actions, (ii) publication or other implementations of notices of proposed rulemaking, (iii) publications or other implementations of final rules, and (iv) completed actions. Within each grouping, rules are listed in chronological order by the part number of the CFR affected. Where a rule affects multiple parts of the CFR, the rule is listed by the first affected part number. Priority rules include all regulations designated for priority development by the Department.

Items listed in this agenda are from the following offices within the Department: Office of the Secretary; Office of Housing; Office of Public and Indian Housing; Office of Community Planning and Development; Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity; Government National Mortgage Association; Office of Administration; and Office of the Inspector General.

For this edition of HUD's regulatory agenda, the most important significant regulatory actions are included in The Regulatory Plan, which appears in Part II of this issue of the Federal Register. The Regulatory Plan entries are listed in the Table of Contents below and are denoted by a bracketed bold reference, which directs the reader to the appropriate Sequence Number in Part II.

Dated: September 14, 1995.

Nelson A. Díaz,

General Counsel.

1461. • CONSOLIDATION OF NONDISCRIMINATION REQUIREMENTS (FR-3935)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2000d-1; 42 USC 3535(d); 29 USC 794; 42 USC 5309; 42 USC 3601 to 3619

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 1; 24 CFR 2; 24 CFR 8; 24 CFR 104; 24 CFR 107; 24 CFR 108; 24 CFR 146

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would consolidate into a single part the nondiscrimination provisions now located in seven main parts, to eliminate duplicative material. Also, appendices will be removed since the material provided in them can be provided in guidance that can be published and updated in a Federal Register notice.

1462. RULEMAKING POLICIES AND PROCEDURES—EXPEDITING RULEMAKING AND POLICY IMPLEMENTATION (FR-3292)

Priority: Other

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 552; 5 USC 553; 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 10

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would amend 24 CFR part 10, HUD's "rules on rules," to make possible the more timely implementation of new and changed policies of the Department in circumstances where notice and comment rulemaking is not required by law. The purposes of this rule are: to provide greater flexibility to the Department in implementing statutory and other changes to its program authorities; to avoid unnecessary rulemaking procedures; and to assure the more prompt delivery of program benefits provided for in new and amended statutes.

1463. DEPARTMENTAL POLICIES, RESPONSIBILITIES, AND PROCEDURES FOR PROTECTION AND ENHANCEMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY (FR-2206)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 4321; PL 95-557

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 50

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule streamlines existing regulations and proposes to address the following: (1) the Secretary's priorities for an interpretation of the Department's mission, by "helping people create communities of opportunities" through the promotion of good design, public amenities, and quality environments within improvements being proposed to the HUD process of environmental review and decisionmaking; (2) the Department's reorganization, which eliminates the ten Regional Offices, thereby affecting environmental responsibilities assigned to Regional and Field personnel by part 50; (3) the legislative and executive authorizations covering Federal-wide environmental policy and compliance applicable to new and existing HUD programs for which the Department retains the Federal environmental review responsibility under part 50; and (4) the updating of existing provisions of this part that need to be clarified, based on HUD's experience, since this part was originally issued. The rule would reduce regulatory burdens and procedural details consistent with environmental laws and other authorities and would assure policy consistency for all HUD programs.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 0; 5 CFR 7501

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would be based on the Office of Government Ethics' Standards of Ethical Conduct for Employees of the Executive Branch (to be published at 5 CFR part 7501). The rule would establish standards relating to the receipt of gifts, whether from prohibited sources, because of official position, or between employees. The rule would also restrict certain financial holdings and outside activities, and set standards regarding the use of official position and time, Government property, and nonpublic information.

Final Rule Stage

1466. • REINVENTION OF REFORM ACT REQUIREMENTS—ADVANCE DISCLOSURE AND ACCOUNTABILITY (FR-3954)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3537a; 42 USC 3545

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 4; 24 CFR 12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends 24 CFR parts 4 and 12 to implement the Department's reinvention of regulations process. Text that merely repeats statutory language or which lists items that may be subject to frequent amendment and, therefore, may be more appropriately addressed in published notices, is being removed.

1467. • GENERAL HUD PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS (FR-3940)

Priority: Other

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In order to eliminate redundancy in several program regulations which repeat requirements that are applicable to several HUD programs, HUD is creating a new part 5 that will contain: (1) common definitions; (2) the list of generally applicable other Federal requirements; and (3) waiver authority (i.e. authority to waive regulatory provisions).

1468. PUBLIC HOUSING LEASE AND GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES (FR-3819)

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d); 42 USC 1437d

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 10.3; 24 CFR 966.51; 24 CFR 966.4

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: HUD proposes to amend its regulations on eviction from public or Indian housing. If HUD determines that local law requires a pre-eviction due-process hearing in court (known as a "due process determination"), a tenant is not entitled to a hearing by the housing authority before eviction for drug-related or other criminal activity. This proposed rule would provide that HUD is not required to use notice-and-comment rulemaking procedures for issuance of a due process determination.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3545; 42 USC 3535(d); 12 USC 1715z; 42 USC 1437a; 42 USC 1437c; 42 USC 1437f

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 12; 24 CFR 219; 24 CFR 886

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule revises certain provisions in HUD's regulations covering the allocation of Flexible Subsidy assistance and Loan Management Set-Aside Section 8 assistance to certain projects assisted by HUD or whose mortgages are insured or held by HUD. Instead of awarding those funds competitively through the Notice of Funding Availability (NOFA) process, HUD will allocate those funds at its own discretion through Comprehensive Needs Assessments (CNA). The CNA approach will provide HUD with the flexibility to target limited resources to those projects most in need of repair.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 5 USC 552; 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 15

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends HUD's regulations regarding testimony and production of information by HUD employees. This rule includes former HUD employees within the scope of these regulations. HUD inadvertently removed them from coverage in 1987.

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535d

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, April 28, 1993.

Abstract: The provisions of this regulation ease the rent burden for working families and provide needed incentives for residents to improve their economic situations. These provisions assist families who are making the transition from welfare to gainful employment and encourage higher-income working families (who are candidates for homeownership) to remain in public housing. This regulation removes several of the structural disincentives that exist in current regulations, encourages families to become more self-sufficient, and fosters long-term upward mobility. This regulation includes implementation of an exclusion for deferred periodic payments of supplemental security income and Social Security benefits that are received in a lump sum and of several HUD discretionary income exclusions.

1481. • OCCUPANCY STANDARDS UNDER THE FAIR HOUSING ACT (FR-3815)

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3601 to 3620; 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 882.109; 24 CFR 960; 24 CFR 100

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Fair Housing Act prohibits discrimination in housing on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin. Such discrimination can include policies and practices such as restrictive occupancy standards that, in effect, work to exclude certain protected groups from otherwise acceptable housing. However, the Fair Housing Act states that nothing in the Act prohibits "reasonable" Federal, State, or local codes regulating maximum occupancy of dwellings. Housing industry officials, both public and private, have urged HUD to establish rules governing occupancy standards in order to provide guidance on what constitutes a reasonable, nondiscriminatory standard to limit occupancy. This rule would establish permissible policies and standards regarding the maximum number of persons who can occupy dwellings under the Fair Housing Act.

Abstract: This rule would provide many benefits to the mortgage lenders that would reduce their servicing costs and the confusion generated by adjustments to the annual mortgage insurance premium (MIP) on cases not endorsed within the first 6 months after amortization. The rule would change the method of payment and the reconciliation schedule, and clarify the due date. The changes would result in an increase in MIP income, thereby strengthening the Federal Housing Administration insurance fund. Also, it would cut down on the costly reconciliation now done by HUD.

Specifically, this rule would provide that the FHA Commissioner can accrue MIP from the beginning of amortization of all Section 530 (of the National Housing Act) loans and risk-based loans, no matter what time frame exists between the endorsement date and the beginning of amortization. It would also amend the existing regulation by requiring that mortgagees pay the monthly installments as due on the 1st and payable on or before the 10th of the month, whether or not collected from the mortgagor. A new system is being developed which would produce a monthly notice of premiums due, and the reconciliation would be made monthly by the lender when the premium is paid. There would be no requirement for annual reconciliation.

1498. • RISK-SHARING HOSPITAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE PROGRAM (FR-3914)

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1715z

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 242

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule implements a program under which the Secretary will be authorized to enter into risk-sharing agreements with mortgagees to facilitate the financing of hospitals. The concept of risk-sharing is one of the underpinnings of the Federal Housing Administration's (FHA's) reinvention efforts and is critical to our intensified focus on customer service. The hospital risk-sharing initiative is one component of a comprehensive risk-sharing strategy for all FHA program types to assure that FHA has a method of reducing its exposure and strengthening its financial and actuarial positions.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d); 42 USC 5401; 42 USC 5301

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 3280

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), DOT, and HUD are proposing amendments to the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations and the Manufactured Home Construction and Safety Standards concerning the transportation of manufactured homes. These proposed changes are needed to clarify the respective regulations of the FHWA and HUD, and to resolve differences between Federal regulations for the overloading of tires used in the transportation of manufactured homes.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 12 USC 2601

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 3500

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule presents for public comment alternative resolutions to the issue of disclosure of certain fees earned by mortgage brokers (or "retail lenders"), specifically addressing whether there is a need for disclosure of such fees. Addressing the need for disclosure is largely related to how HUD construes secondary market transactions. The rule is being considered for final development through the negotiated rulemaking process.

1501. TITLE I PROPERTY INSURANCE (FR-3716)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1703

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 201

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends 24 CFR part 201 to implement several changes to HUD's title I manufactured-home and property-improvement loan programs. The changes are directed to expand the availability and use of both programs, and to provide affordable homeownership. For the manufactured-home loan program, the changes involve reducing the minimum downpayment required on all manufactured- home-purchase loans, lot loans, and combination loans from the present level to 5 percent of the purchase price; adding appraisal fees and recording fees and taxes to the list of fees and charges that may be financed in the loan; modifying the allowable expense-to-income ratios to reflect the increased cost of complying with HUD's new energy standards for manufactured homes; and increasing the maximum allowances for certain foreclosure and repossession expenses. For the property-improvement loan program, the changes involve eliminating the requirement for equity at least equal to the loan amount on all loans over $15,000; increasing the maximum amount of an unsecured property improvement loan from $5,000 to $7,500; permitting the use of manufactured home improvement loans for site improvements under certain circumstances; and adding recording fees and taxes to the list of fees and charges that may be financed in the loan.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 202; 24 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This interim rule was published on August 16, 1995, which amended HUD's regulations in 24 CFR parts 203 and 206 to simplify the Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) Insurance Demonstration, and to expedite the processing of HECMs by permitting use of the Direct Endorsement program. The rule implemented the statutory disclosure amendments in section 334 of the National Affordable Housing Act. The rule also made other changes, including technical and clarifying changes, to improve and streamline the program based on the first 5 years of the demonstration.

Abstract: The amendments will streamline and make Federal Housing Administration processes more flexible for mortgagees and FHA's customers and clients and have no adverse impact on the public. The modifications result from the efforts of a work group consisting of mortgagees, State and local governments, trade associations, government-sponsored enterprises, FHA staff, and other interested parties.

1504. SINGLE FAMILY MORTGAGE INSURANCE—SPECIAL FORBEARANCE PROCEDURES (FR-3626)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d); 12 USC 1715(b)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 203

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would permit the mortgagee and the mortgagor, without obtaining the prior approval of HUD, to enter into a special forbearance agreement requiring the payment of arrearages before maturity of the mortgage. It would also eliminate the present gap in reimbursement of debenture interest that occurs if the mortgagor files a petition in bankruptcy after entering into a special forbearance agreement. The purpose of this rule change is to encourage mortgagees to make greater use of the special forbearance procedures when the mortgagor is temporarily unable to make full regular mortgage payments.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d); 42 USC 1715b

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 206; 24 CFR 234

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will add provisions to the regulations governing Federal Housing Administration (FHA) mortgage insurance on condominium units to permit insurance of mortgages on individual units in condominium projects that have not received FHA approval in advance under existing regulatory requirements. These "spot loans" would be approved under less stringent requirements than the existing requirements for mortgage insurance for condominiums, but the revised rule would require satisfaction of standards that would assure FHA adequate protection of the reduced risk involved of mortgage insurance on only a few loans in any particular project.

Abstract: This rule will amend 24 CFR 207.19(f)(3)(i), 221.530(c)(i), 232.45, and 242.75 to revise procedures for Reserve Funds releases to the effect that HUD is not exercising HUD's authority to review and act on (approve, approve in part, or disapprove) owners' requests for releases of funds from the Reserve Fund for Replacement Accounts of projects whose mortgages are unsubsidized or which do not receive project-base rental subsidies of any kind. The rule will provide that HUD may assert its authority to act on owners' requests for Reserve Funds releases on a case-by-case basis or for all affected projects at any time and without further rulemaking or publication procedures.

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will eliminate existing text in the CFR.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1715b; 12 USC 1715z

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 235

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends the regulations for refinancing mortgages under section 235(r) of the National Housing Act. Since the enactment of this program in 1988, mortgagees have not expressed an interest in participating in this program. Therefore, HUD seeks to enhance the program by providing for the payment by HUD, rather than by the mortgagee, of the incentive to the mortgagors and of specific refinancing costs, and by limiting the origination of these loans to the number of approved mortgagees that would make the program most attractive. This rule also eliminates obsolete regulations within 24 CFR part 235.

Abstract: HUD is amending its multifamily coinsurance regulations to provide coinsuring lenders with two new options in dealing with defaulted coinsured mortgages. Specifically, this interim rule permits coinsuring lender-issuers to request that HUD endorse certain defaulted mortgages for full insurance, without a GNMA takeover of the lender-issuer's entire portfolio. Additionally, this interim rule allows coinsuring lenders to advance funds to cure mortgage delinquencies on a coinsured mortgage and to reduce principal on that mortgage to a level that restores the financial viability of the project.

Abstract: This rule sets forth HUD's policies and procedures for the sale of HUD-held single-family mortgages. HUD is proposing to sell a large portion of its single-family mortgages to reduce losses to the FHA fund, decrease its inventory of single-family mortgages, and improve the services of these mortgages. The Department intends to sell both performing and nonperforming mortgages. In addition, all single-family mortgages would be sold without recourse and without FHA insurance. This rule also asks for public input in streamlining the regulations for the sale of HUD- held mortgages.

Abstract: On November 2, 1992, the Department published a final rule amending the regulations on the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) to address new statutory provisions. Included in the 1992 rule were provisions that allowed employer-employee payments for referrals of customers to entities that provided settlement services, and in certain situations, might have encouraged steering through the use of computer loan origination (CLO) operations. Serious objections have been raised to both provisions. As a result, the Department has reviewed these provisions in the 1992 rule and has proposed modifications on both referral fees and CLOs. The two issues will be addressed in separate final rules, the first of which is expected to concern referral fees/controlled business arrangements.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 000

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This document sets forth the administrative guidelines the Office of Community Planning and Development will follow in determining, on a case-by-case basis, that the amount of assistance being provided by HUD for a specific housing project, for which other government assistance is also being made available, is not more than is necessary to make the assisted activity feasible after taking into account the other government assistance. HUD is required to make these determinations, and to so certify, under section 102(d) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Reform Act of 1989 for certain CPD programs.

Abstract: Section 207 of the 1994 Act amended an eligibility category that was established by section 807(a) of the 1992 Act for the funding of certain services needed to carry out housing activities that are eligible under the CDBG or HOME programs. HUD will propose rules that will govern which specific activities may be assisted under this authority.

Section 807(a) of the 1992 Act also makes eligible the use of CDBG funds to pay operating expenses necessary to maintain the habitability of certain housing units that have been acquired through tax foreclosure. HUD intends to publish a proposed rule that will govern which expenses and which housing units may be assisted under this authority. In addition this proposed rule will make several technical amendments to 570.201, 570.202, and 570.200.

Abstract: This rule revises standards for approval of sites for HUD- assisted rental housing to assure that they promote housing choice and avoid locations that foster racial, ethnic, and economic segregation. It extends the applicability of such standards to the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) programs, and broadens the standards applied to the HOME program to include review for poverty concentration. The standards, as revised, generally will be applied not by HUD but by the local or State government or the Public Housing Agency.

The rule places these standards in a new part 150 in the chapter administered by the Assistant Secretary for Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity. The existing rules with provisions concerning site and neighborhood standards (public housing, Section 8, Section 202 and HOME programs) are proposed to be

Abstract: Section 810 of the Fair Housing Act provides that the Secretary shall refer complaints alleging a discriminatory housing practice to local public agencies the Secretary has certified. Currently, 24 CFR part 115 sets forth the criteria under which the Secretary will certify such State and local agencies. HUD's regulations at 24 CFR part 111 establish the requirements for the Fair Housing Assistance Program, through which HUD provides assistance to fair housing enforcement agencies. This rule proposes to consolidate parts 111 and 115, thus providing all necessary requirements in a single part and eliminating unnecessary or repetitive regulatory provisions.

Abstract: This rule would revise the current regulations in 24 CFR part 882 on adjusting Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation contract rents. The rule would modify the method used by housing agencies (HAs) to determine the amount of the annual increase in the contract rents by providing for HAs to conduct comparability studies for moderate rehabilitation projects, to prevent the application of the Annual Adjustment Factors from resulting in a material difference between rents charged for assisted units and similar unassisted units. The rule also would provide for special rent adjustments to Regulatory Plan: This entry is Seq. No. 55 in Part II of this issue of the Federal Register.

1556. PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING CEILING RENTS (FR-3880)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 25 USC 450e(b); 42 USC 1437a; 42 USC 1437d; 42 USC 1437n; 42 USC 1437aa; 42 USC 1437bb; 42 USC 1437ee; 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 913.107; 24 CFR 950.325

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would permit public housing authorities (PHA's) and Indian housing agencies (IHAs) to adopt caps on rents for projects or dwelling units that are assisted under the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 and are owned and operated by a PHA/IHA. These caps on the income-based monthly rental payment will be no more than a tenant family would pay under the existing income-based formula, and no less than the average monthly amount of debt service and operating expenses attributed to units of similar size in housing projects owned and operated by the PHA/IHA.

1559. INDIAN HOME: REVISED PROGRAM REGULATIONS (FR-3567)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 5301

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 92

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would streamline requirements and incorporate experience in program workings during the first two funding cycles. It will establish separate program regulations for Indian HOME and non-Indian HOME, for clarity, and will facilitate use of the program by client tribes. This rule relocates Indian HOME regulations to 24 CFR 954 and incorporates various legislative changes.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 5301

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 702 of the HUD Reform Act of 1989 moved the grant authority for CDBG funding to Indian tribes from Section 107 to 106 of the Housing and Community Development Act. Paragraph (b) of Section 702 includes the following provision: "The Secretary shall provide for distribution of amounts under this paragraph pursuant to specific criteria for the selection of Indian tribes to receive such amounts. The criteria shall be contained in a regulation promulgated by the Secretary after notice and public comment." This rule also relocates Indian CDBG regulations to 24 CFR 953 from 24 CFR 570 and 571, and incorporates comments received on the Interim Rule.

Semiannual Agenda of Rules Scheduled for Review or Development

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Interior.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development.

SUMMARY: This notice provides the semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development between October 1995 and April 1996. An agenda is required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12866.

ADDRESSES: Unless otherwise indicated, all agency contacts are located at the Department of the Interior, 1849 C Street NW., Washington, DC 20240.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: All comments and inquiries with regard to these rules should be directed to the appropriate agency contact. General comments relating to the agenda should be directed to the Office of Regulatory Affairs, Department of the Interior, at the address above or on 202-208-5271.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication, the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12866 that the Department publish an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued and of currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously, the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules that will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities. Rules that will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

For this edition of the Department's regulatory agenda, the most important significant regulatory actions are included in The Regulatory Plan, which appears in Part II of today's Federal Register. The Regulatory Plan entries are listed in the Table of Contents below and are denoted by a bracketed bold reference that directs the reader to the appropriate Sequence Number in Part II.

Dated: September 15, 1995.

Richard A. Stephan,

Federal Register Liaison Officer.

1573. PRINCIPLES OF ETHICAL CONDUCT

Priority: Other

Legal Authority: 5 USC 7301; 5 USC app (Ethics Reform Act of 1989); EO 12731

CFR Citation: 5 CFR 3501

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The U.S. Office of Government Ethics (OGE) has issued new standards of conduct regulations. The Department of the Interior (DOI) is preparing special conduct regulations (applies only to DOI employees) to supplement OGE's new standards of conduct. Interior's supplemental regulations, if approved by OGE, will be codified in 5 CFR Part 3501.

Government Levels Affected: None

Additional Information: On June 10, 1993, the Department published a final rule that removed portions of 43 CFR 20 that have been superseded by Standards of Conduct regulations issued by U.S. Office of Government Ethics(OGE). The remaining regulations in 43 CFR 20 are preserved until they can be recodified in 5 CFR 3501 on or before February 3, 1994. OGE recently extended this date until February 3, 1995. Draft proposed supplemental regulations have been submitted to OGE and it has agreed to extend the recodification deadline for the Department.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1201; 43 USC 1732(b); 43 USC 1740; 43 USC 1457; 43 USC 1782(c); 16 USC 668dd; 16 USC 460k-3; 16 USC 1 to 4

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 39

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would implement the Secretary of the Interior's June 1, 1993, recommendation to Congress that the Department promulgate regulations addressing rights-of-way pursuant to R.S. 2477 across lands now administered by the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. R.S. 2477--a provision adopted in 1866 that granted a right-of-way for the construction of highways across public land not reserved for public uses--was repealed in 1976, but valid existing rights-of-way were not terminated. This proposed rule is intended to clarify the meaning of the statute and provide a workable administrative process and standards for recognizing valid claims.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 25 USC 305a; PL 101-644 Indian Arts and Crafts Act of 1990

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 309

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations carry out the enforcement provisions of PL 101-644 to help ensure that American Indian and Alaska Native artists and craftspeople receive their fair share of the market by limiting unfair competition from products misrepresented as genuine Indian arts and crafts products.

Abstract: Under the auspices of the National Performance Review, a thorough review of the DIAR was conducted. The reviewers determined that only a few DIAR sections require codification in the CFR. This action is to effect the revision and retention of DIAR sections related to foreign acquisitions. Sections relating to evaluating offers and price adjustment proposals and the associated solicitation and contract provision will remain in the CFR.

1580. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS; TYPE B—BIENNIAL REVIEW

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c)

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA and the Clean Water Act allow natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or a discharge of oil. CERCLA requires that natural resource damage assessment regulations be promulgated and that the regulations be reviewed, and revised as appropriate, every two years. This rulemaking is the biennial review of the administrative process for conducting assessments as well as the site-specific "type B" procedures for determining injury and damages. This rulemaking will be closely coordinated with the natural resource damage assessment rulemaking being conducted by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration under the Oil Pollution Act of 1990.

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA and the Clean Water Act allow natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or a discharge of oil. In 1986, the Department issued site-specific "type B" procedures for determining injury and damages. State of Ohio v. United States Department of the Interior, 880 F.2d 432 (D.C. Cir. 1989), ordered the Department to revise the type B procedures, among other things, to allow for the assessment of all reliably calculated lost economic values. This rulemaking addresses one aspect of the court remand--the reliable calculation of lost nonuse values of injured resources. On March 25, 1994, the Department issued a final rule complying with all other aspects of the court remand (59 FR 14261).

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c)

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: CERCLA and the Clean Water Act allow natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or a discharge of oil. CERCLA calls for the promulgation of simplified "type A" assessment procedures involving minimal fieldwork for use in cases of minor releases or discharges. The Department has proposed type A procedures for use in coastal and marine environments and the Great Lakes. The Department is now considering whether and how to develop additional type A procedures.

Abstract: These regulations amend the Department's current regulations on employee testimony and response to subpoenas for documents. Further, the current regulations do not have a centralized review to allow for consistent decisionmaking throughout the Department. These regulations provide guidance to those requesting testimony of employees or production of documents as to what the Department must consider to make a reasonable and just decision.

Abstract: The agency proposes to amend its regulations in 43 CFR 4.300 through 4.308 relating to Tribal Purchase of Interests Under Special Statutes in order to provide standard procedures for implementation of two recent statutes expanding tribal purchase rights and escheat requirements, namely, Pub. L. 96-274, applicable to the Standing Rock Sioux Reservation in North and South Dakota, and Pub. L. 97-459, applicable to the Devils Lake Sioux Reservation of North Dakota. The Department's current regulations in 43 CFR 4.300 through 4.308 apply to the Yakima, Warm Springs and Nez Perce Reservations. The proposed amendments to these regulations will incorporate provisions necessary for consideration of cases arising under the two statutes cited above.

Abstract: The agency proposes to amend and update its regulations in order to clarify and streamline procedures for appealing to the Interior Board of Indian Appeals from decisions issued in Indian probate matters, decisions issued under authority of 25 CFR chapter I, and such other decisions in Indian matters as may be referred to the Board. Experience working with the present regulations has shown them to be confusing. In addition, some of the Board's regulations are out-of-date and do not address areas of jurisdiction, such as Osage will contests, that have been delegated to the Board by the Secretary of the Interior. Regulatory guidance is also needed for appeals that have specific procedural rules as part of the program regulations, such as tribal acknowledgements.

Abstract: The agency proposes: (1) Amendment of 4.207 to permit acceptance of compromise settlements in probate of estates of Indians who died owning property in trust or restricted status when all parties are advised of all facts and are cognizant of effect of the compromise on their rights, and where no family member is coerced into the agreement. Such settlements are already provided for in disputed cases; (2) amendment of 4.242 to require petitioner for reopening of an estate which has been closed more than 3 years to show due diligence in pursuing the claim. This will place in the regulation case law developed over the past 18 years; (3) amendment of 4.274 by adding a new paragraph (c) for allowance of immediate payment of claims where appropriate for better conservation of assets of the estate, and a new paragraph (d) to permit partial distribution of an estate to provide funds for the maintenance of the family where the ultimate distribution is unlikely to be disputed.

Abstract: This is not a regulatory action but a notice for publication in the Federal Register concerning the Department's interim policy on Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) and providing opportunity for the public to comment. This interim policy will be in effect for two years. During this interim phase, bureaus and offices of the Department will implement pilot initiatives to assess the applicability of ADR methods to a variety of disputes. At the conclusion of the interim phase, the results of these initiatives will be evaluated and a final ADR policy will be developed. This notice will establish the Department's interim policy on ADR and provide guidance on the establishment of ADR program initiatives. The use of ADR should reduce time and costs associated with resolution of disputes.

Abstract: The Service proposes to develop regulations that will provide boaters with a national pumpout/dump station symbol. Currently there is a confusing array of state and private pumpout and dump station symbols. This program was authorized by Congress to provide incentives to public and private boating facilities to develop a system to properly handle human waste from boaters. A national pumpout/dump station symbol will provide boaters with a single nationwide symbol of pumpout and dump locations and provide a consistent message about the program nationally in education materials produced by each state.

Abstract: The Service proposes to amend regulations in 50 CFR part 12 that establish procedures relating to property seized or subject to administrative forfeiture under various laws enforced by the Service. This revision is intended to provide uniform guidance for the bonded release, appraisement, administrative proceeding, petition for remission, and disposal of items subject to forfeiture. Also these revisions are intended to provide for greater consistency of Service seizure and forfeiture procedures with those of the U.S. Customs Service.

1600. IMPORTATION OF POLAR BEAR TROPHIES TAKEN IN CANADA

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1361 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes regulations concerning the importation of sport-hunted trophies of polar bears legally taken by the applicant while hunting in Canada. Further, these regulations provide application requirements, permit procedures, issuance criteria; permit conditions, and a fee for each permit issued as required by the Marine Mammal Protection Act for the Service to establish and charge a reasonable fee. This rule does not discuss legal and scientific findings required by the Act's 1994 amendments that need to be made prior to issuing an import permit.

1601. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: U.S. POPULATIONS OF ATLANTIC SALMON

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed that will determine the appropriate status for a distinct population segment (in seven eastern Maine river systems) of anadromous Atlantic salmon without critical habitat, under the Endangered Species Act. Where once the Atlantic salmon occurred from the Housatonic River, Connecticut to the St. Croix River on the Maine-New Brunswick, Canada border, now most salmon populations have been extirpated and some spawning habitat is no longer accessible or is unsuitable, due to dams or water pollution. Currently, remnant populations of anadromous Atlantic salmon are restricted to several rivers in eastern Maine. This is a joint Fish and Wildlife Service/National Marine Fisheries Service rule/finding with neither agency having the lead.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than one year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed that will determine the appropriate status for three aquatic invertebrates: Peck's cave amphipod, Comal Springs riffle beetle and Comal Springs dryopid beetle. These species are known only from springs in Comal County and Hays County, Texas. They are threatened by loss of necessary aquatic habitat due to increasing groundwater withdrawal by humans throughout the aquifer that supplies the springs and by the potential for contamination of their limited range.

Abstract: The Service proposes to confer designated port status on Atlanta, Georgia. Designated port status would allow the direct importation and exportation of fish and wildlife, including parts and products, through Atlanta, a growing international port. The addition of Atlanta as a port is contingent upon getting contributory funding from the Atlanta airport, and a Memorandum of Agreement will be signed between the airport authority and the Service. The Secretary of the Interior is responsible for designating these ports by regulations, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury after notice and the opportunity for public hearing.

1623. ALASKA REFUGES VISITOR SERVICES

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 460(k) et seq; 44 USC 3501 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service will propose regulations to implement section 1307 of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA). These regulations are needed to establish procedures for selecting and authorizing persons to provide visitor services, except guided sport fishing and hunting activities, on national wildlife refuges in Alaska. Such regulations are intended to ensure proper and uniform guidance on providing the preferences required by ANILCA in the solicitation, selection, and authorization of persons or Native Corporations to provide visitor services on refuge lands in Alaska, when such services must be limited to a level below the demand.

Priority: Other

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1533 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 10

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As a member Party to CITES, the United States is expected to implement those changes in the Appendices that were adopted by two-thirds of the Parties at the November 7-8, 1994 meeting of the Conference of the Parties to CITES. These species changes to the Appendices will become effective February 16, 1995. This rulemaking was inadvertently published under RIN 1018-AD07.

1625. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: BROTHER'S ISLAND TUATARA

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed to determine the status for the reptile, Brother's Island tuatara. This reptile is known only from North Brother's Island in Cook Strait, New Zealand. Although legally covered by an endangered classification, this species previously was considered part of the related and more widespread tuatara (Sphenodon punctatus). Both species are threatened by various factors (excessive human hunting) especially predation from introduced rats.

1626. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: CRITICAL HABITAT DESIGNATION FOR THE WESTERN SNOWY PLOVER

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Judicial, June 1, 1995.

Abstract: The Service proposes to designate critical habitat for the Pacific coast population of the Western snowy plover. The plover was listed as a threatened species on March 5, 1993. Critical habitat for the plover is proposed in coastal areas of Washington, Oregon, and California.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to introduce Colorado squawfish (Ptychocheilus lucius) into the lower Colorado River in Arizona and to determine the population to be "nonessential experimental" population according to section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act. The Service will propose a special rule to allow take in accordance with State law. In the past, Colorado squawfish were more widespread in the State of Arizona, occurring in several river drainages. This action is being taken in an effort to establish an additional population within the species' historic range.

1629. CAPTIVE-BRED WILDLIFE

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Fish and Wildlife Service regulates certain activities involving non-native endangered or threatened wildlife species that are born in captivity in the United States. Currently, this is accomplished by requiring persons who wish to conduct otherwise prohibited activities with such wildlife to register with the Service to obtain a captive-bred wildlife or CBW registration. These regulations will be reviewed to determine if further action is necessary to relieve certain restrictions on the public that may have become burdensome, counterproductive, or outmoded.

Additional Information: On June 11, 1993, the Service published a proposed rule that would revise the captive-bred wildlife regulations and the definitions of the terms "harass" and "enhance the propagation or survival". During the 90-day comment period, extensive comments on the proposal were received. The Service has decided to eliminate education as the sole basis for justifying issuance of a captive-bred wildlife registration, and a final rule to that effect was published on December 27, 1993 (58 FR 68323). The Service will split this action into three final rules and reopen the comment period on the balance of the issues in the proposals, including the question of the value of education as it relates to endangered species permits.

Abstract: The National Coastal Wetland Conservation Grant Program was established through the Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act. Funding for this grant program is provided from a portion of the funds deposited in the Sport Fish Restoration Account of the Federal Aid program. The proposed rules for 50 CFR 84 will be used for uniform administration of this new grant program. Such rules are needed to establish procedures from the selection and uniform administration of grants funded under the Act. Since grantees are State agencies, the requirements contained in 43 CFR 12 are applicable to audits, costs, and administration of grants under this program.

1640. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: FLAT-TAILED HORNED LIZARD

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1543

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory.
In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than one year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed to list the Flat-tailed horned lizard as an endangered or threatened species. When prudent, critical habitat will also be identified.

1649. RECLASSIFICATIONS OF SOME POPULATIONS OF SALTWATER CROCODILES WITH SPECIAL RULE FOR SALTWATER AND NILE CROCODILES

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: The Service will develop regulations to declassify populations of the Saltwater crocodile in Australia and determine the appropriate status for the Papua New Guinea populations. Also included in this rulemaking is a special rule to allow commercial trade in skins, other parts, and products of saltwater crocodiles from Australia and Papua New Guinea populations and from Nile crocodiles in Appendix II of CITES. The combination of actions proposed will have the effect of stimulating legal and responsible trade in crocodile hides, and in this respect, constitutes removal of a barrier to trade.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Marine Fisheries Service propose to amend the regulations implementing the Endangered Species Act by adding definitions for intercross and intercross progeny (to include hybrids). Also, 50 CFR 17.11(g) and 17.12(g) will be amended by adding wording to indicate that the listing of a taxon as endangered or threatened would include all individuals that share characteristic traits of that taxon, including individuals produced under conditions of confinement. The amendments are necessary in order to proceed with the evaluation and implementation of intercrossing as a recovery technique for the Florida panther.

Priority: Routine and Frequent

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory.

Abstract: This proposed rule will announce findings on the export of American ginseng from the 1994-96 harvest season in 21 states. The Service reviews information and data as a basis for determining whether to continue approval of export from specified states for this harvest season, or to initiate changes. Also, North Dakota has applied to export cultivated gingseng under a State program, and Michigan has submitted draft legislation and is intending to apply soon to export ginseng.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 10; 50 CFR 13; 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to amend 50 CFR part 13 which provides uniform permit procedures relating to the application, issuance, renewal, suspension, revocation and general administration of Service permits. The Service's criteria for suspension and revocation of permits and its review procedures will also be revised. Permit fee rates are amended to increase rates for the cost of processing certain permits. This change is necessary in order to recover a larger percentage of the cost of processing the permits. Several new permit fee exemptions will be added.

1662. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: JAGUAR

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory.
In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed to extend endangered status to the jaguar in the United States portion of its range, without critical habitat. The jaguar is currently listed as an endangered species from the U.S./Mexico border southward through Central and South America. Currently no known breeding population of jaguar is known in the United States.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: PL 103-238

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 13; 50 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 1, 1995.

Abstract: The Service will develop regulations that will implement the Marine Mammal Protection Act Amendments of 1994. Permit issuance criteria will be established for the importation of polar bear parts (other than internal organs) taken in sport hunts in Canada, including polar bears taken but not imported prior to the date of enactment of the Marine Mammal Protection Act amendments. Subsequent rules will provide permitting criteria and/or procedures for activities which impact upon marine mammals, including the taking of a marine mammal by harassment in the course of scientific research, the use of marine mammals for public display, scientific research or enhancement, and for the implementation of take reduction plans. Such rules may be developed jointly by the Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Marine Fisheries Service, Department of Commerce.

Abstract: The Service is reclassifying the Snake River spring/summer chinook salmon and the Snake River fall chinook salmon from threatened to endangered under the emergency provisions of the Endangered Species Act. This action reflects a determination by the National Marine Fisheries Service, Department of Commerce, which has jurisdiction for these species, that the species warrant emergency reclassification based on a projected decline in adult Snake River salmon abundance. This determination by the National Marine Fisheries Service was published in the Federal Register on August 18, 1994.

1686. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS: NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN POPULATIONS OF THE BOG TURTLE

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory. In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed that will determine the appropriate status for the northern population (ranges from New York to Maryland) of the bog turtle, and the southern population (ranges from southwestern Virginia to northern Georgia) as endangered due to similarity of appearance. This action is being taken because of constriction of the species' range, the declining size of remaining populations, and illegal collection. Critical habitat is not being proposed at this time.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Recent taxonomic work concluded that specific rank is warranted for the Virgin River chub, a federally listed endangered species found in the Virgin River system of Arizona, Nevada, and Utah. Additionally, researchers concluded that the chub in the Muddy River of Nevada, is conspecific with the Virgin River chub. Previously this distinctive population of the Virgin River chub, a category 2 candidate for Federal listing, was considered a separate, unnamed subspecies of roundtail chub, and was referred to as the Moapa roundtail chub. Because of this recent taxonomic work, the Service accepts that specific rank is warranted for the Virgin River chub and proposes to change the listing of the Virgin River chub in the Virgin River from a subspecies to a vertebrate population segment in the List of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife. In addition, the Service initiates a status review of the Virgin River chub in the Muddy River to determine whether this vertebrate population warrants listing as a threatened or endangered species.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1361 to 1407; 16 USC 1531 to 1544; 16 USC 4201 to 4245; PL 99-625

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to amend the general regulations for threatened species under Endangered Species Act by establishing a new exemption for certain small landowners and low impact activities that are presumed to individually or cumulatively have little or no lasting effect on the likelihood of survival and recovery of threatened species of fish and wildlife, and, therefore, have only minor or negligible adverse effects. This exemption would be applied to all threatened species of fish and wildlife listed in the future unless the Service concluded for a given species that the exemption was inappropriate because its individual or cumulative biological effects would not be insignificant for the species as a whole. This proposal also seeks to establish an additional general exemption for activities that are conducted in accordance with a State-authorized or -developed habitat conservation strategy for threatened species which the Service has found to comprehensively address the threats to the species and promote the species' survival and recovery.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 22

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to outline the permit process for take of bald eagles under the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act when incidental take is authorized under the Endangered Species Act. This proposed rulemaking will outline a process where an action affecting bald eagles would first be assessed under Section 7 or 10 of the Endangered Species Act to determine whether it is likely to jeopardize the species. If take is anticipated, an Endangered Species Act incidental take statement or habitat conservation plan permit with reasonable and prudent measures to minimize that take would be developed. That statement/permit would then be reviewed by the Service for addition of any appropriate migratory bird management provisions.

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory.
In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than one year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed that will determine the appropriate status for sixteen plant taxa from California: Hoffmann's rock-cress, Santa Rosa Island manzanita, Island barberry, Soft-leaved paintbrush, Santa Rosa Island dudleya, Munchkin dudleya, Santa Cruz Island dudleya, Island bedstraw, Hoffmann's slender-flowered gilia, Island rush-rose, Island alumroot, Santa Cruz Island bushmallow, Santa Cruz Island malacothrix, Island malacothrix, Island phacelia, and Santa Cruz Island fringepod. The plant taxa and their habitats have been affected by soil loss, habitat alteration by mammals alien to the Channel Islands, direct predation by these same alien mammals, habitat alteration by native seabirds, and seabirds and vehicular traffic, overcollection for scientific or recreational purposes, and competition from other plants. All 16 taxa are endemic to the northern Channel Islands (Anacapa, Santa Cruz, Santa Rosa, and San Miguel) with the exception of one poulation of island rush-rose that occurs on the more southerly island of Santa Catalina.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to designate the whooping crane population in the Rocky Mountains as an experimental nonessential population and to remove whooping crane critical habitat designations from four national wildlife refuges: Bosque del Apache in New Mexico, Monte Vista and Alamosa in Colorado, and Grays Lake in Idaho. The private lands involved are holdings inside refuge boundaries and a 1-mile buffer around Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge. The Service further proposes to use this population, and captive-reared sandhill cranes and whooping cranes, in experiments to evaluate methods for introducing whooping cranes into the wild where migration is required.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 29, 1989.
Section 8 of the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Act directs the Secretary of the Interior to promulgate regulations governing nonfederal oil and gas development by 1/29/89.

Abstract: Several sections of 36 CFR part 9, subpart B contain ambiguous language which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 30% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to propose revisions to the existing regulations to incorporate congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; and removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs.

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The NPS is revising portions of 36 CFR 1.2, 1.4, and 13.2. Section 1.2 defines the primary scope and applicability of 36 CFR parts 1-5, and parts 7 and 13. Section 1.4 contains definitions for terms used in the text of the regulations. Section 13.2 modifies section 1.2 as it relates to National Park System units in Alaska. This revision clarifies the applicability of those NPS regulations that apply in all National Park System areas to navigable waters located within park boundaries.

1746. VOYAGEURS NATIONAL PARK: AIRCRAFT OPERATIONS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1; 16 USC 3; 16 USC 9a

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.33

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking amends the current special regulations for Voyageurs National Park by adding a section designating areas open to aircraft use within the Park. This addition is necessary because National Park Service general regulations require such special regulatory designations for areas in parks open to the operation or use of aircraft. The intended effects are to increase safety, protect resources, and provide appropriate enjoyment to park users.

Abstract: The National Park Service proposes to establish a special regulation to permit the operation of local commercial vehicles on 5.8 miles of park roads between the Northeast and Interior entrances to Badlands National Park. The park currently allows limited local commercial use of these roads and this rulemaking would exempt this portion of park roads from the general prohibition on commercial vehicles in National Park areas. The Superintendent will be provided the discretion to require permits and fees for this use. The proposed rule will prohibit transportation of hazardous materials and overwidth/overweight vehicles except in limited circumstances.

Abstract: The National Park Service proposes to change the special regulations relating to the use of and designated routes for snowmobiles and snowplanes within Grand Teton National Park and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Memorial Parkway. The proposed rule will define more clearly the use of snowmobiles, snowplanes, and designated routes. This rule can eliminate the use of snowmobiles in the Potholes-Baseline Flats area at the discretion of the Superintendent and establish special regulations allowing snowmobile use on the Continental Divide Snowmobile Trail. The proposed rule will also establish a requirement for operators of snowmobiles within Grand Teton National Park to have a valid driver's license or learner's permit.

Abstract: The National Park Service is promulgating a regulation to require mountain climbers to register a minimum of 60 days before any climb on Mount McKinley or Mount Foraker in Denali National Park. Mountaineering in the park has increased dramatically over the past 10 years, and climbing-related injuries and deaths have correspondingly increased. By requiring advance registration, the Denali Park staff will be able to provide safety and other related climbing information to prospective mountaineers in advance of their climb. When this rule becomes final, it will replace an interim rule that became effective March 31, 1995 (60 FR 16579).

Abstract: The National Park Service proposes to revise the requirements for State and local historic preservation programs as well as the way the NPS administers these programs. The proposed changes are intended to provide more flexibility in (1) State historic preservation office staffing; (2) State Historic Preservation Review Board membership and operations; and (3) carrying out State Historic Preservation Officer responsibilities. The revision streamlines the process for certification of local governments to participate officially in the national historic preservation program. This proposed revision also officially recognizes the growing role of tribal historic preservation programs. Some of Abstract: The National Park Service proposes to modify restrictions on admission to Oregon Caves in Oregon Caves National Monument. This proposed regulation would allow children over a specified height and with a measurable physical ability to enter the caves, regardless of age. The present restriction states that children under the age of six are not permitted to enter the caves. A search of historical records has failed to find any extensive discussion of or justification for this particular age limit. There also appears to be little justification for using six years of age in determining who enters the caves. A child's size and endurance determine his or her cave traveling abilities more than age.

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 29; 43 USC 1457

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 115

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will modify existing regulations governing the Individual Indian Monies Trust (IIM) Funds and establish guidelines on accepting new IIM accounts. The Federal Government has sole responsibility for the protection of Indian trust funds which have been either collected from receipts from Indian trust land or through judgment awards to tribes and/or individuals.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs has established the Office of Trust Funds Management to oversee Indian Trust Funds operations. The modified and new regulations will result in the added protection, and more efficient handling of the Indian trust funds.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 25 USC 640(d)

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 161

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations are necessary for implementation of the livestock and grazing control provisions of 25 USC 640(d). In 1982 the Federal District Court for Arizona abolished 25 CFR 153, Grazing Regulation for the Joint Use Administrative Area and ordered the Secretary to promulgate new regulations for the control of grazing and livestock for the former Joint Use Administrative Area. Due to a lack of tribal concurrence, regulations were not promulgated for lands partitioned to the Navajo Tribe. Navajo tribal concurrence has been recently obtained; therefore, the BIA needs to move forward with publication of these regulations. Any cost associated with the implementation of these regulations will be assumed within the BIA annual budget. Cost associated with compliance of the provisions of these regulations will be borne by the Navajo Tribe or its members. There is no associated cost to the general public.

Abstract: This rule will revise the regulations to comply with current statutes and Departmental policy. It will add provisions or clarify procedures for land acquisitions under Part 151 and will provide stronger and more consistent guidelines for reviewing trust applications than the current case-by-case review, which uses general criteria. The streamlined regulations will benefit tribes and individual Indians who request real property acquisition for trust status. No additional costs will be incurred by applicants or the Bureau.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250; 30 CFR 251; 30 CFR 256

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will amend current regulations requiring lessee surety bonds. The value of surety bonds required by current regulations for leases approved before November 27, 1993, is not adequate to protect the government from loss due to lessees' failure to comply with the terms of OCS leases. This rule embodies a comprehensive approach to the complex problems associated with the movement of smaller operators into the OCS. The potential costs are the increase in cost to obtain a higher level of bond coverage. Benefits would be the enhancement of smaller operators' ability to provide necessary surety, and to provide greater protection of the public interest by reducing the potential for losses to the government.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334(a)

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 256

Abstract: This action will better enable MMS to set lease terms in reaction to changing oil and gas market conditions by offering leases at royalty rates that reflect lower market prices. This rule will allow modification of the minimum royalty from 12-1/2 percent of the production amount or value to an effectively lower rate that would be described in the lease terms portion of a sale's final notice. This lower rate could be designated over the life of the lease as a constant or sliding scale measure, or it could emerge as a result of the lessee's fulfillment of specified conditions (e.g., no royalties would be due until production reaches a designated level or a predetermined capital cost allowance is recovered). MMS expects to better respond to changing market conditions because of this modification and believes that this action will cause increased bidding competition for new leases. For those selected tracts offered under a reduced royalty bidding system, the proposed rule is expected to bolster domestic production and maintain or increase employment in the oil and gas sector.

Abstract: A study group was formed to review regulatory requirements that became effective on March 1, 1988. This group proposed changes to the forms and submission requirements and the method for calculating assessments. The minerals industry and the general public will be requested to comment on the proposed changes to the rules on transportation and processing allowances.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 25 USC 396; 25 USC 2101; 30 USC 181; 30 USC 351; 30 USC 1001; 30 USC 1701; 31 USC 9701; 43 USC 1301; 43 USC 1331; 43 USC 1801

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule is designed to improve MMS's administration of allowances and to provide incentives for payors to comply with the reporting requirements of the regulations. It will amend the current regulatory requirements for allowance forms submission, amend the allowance payback and late payment charges for forms that are not filed on time, retain the need for regulatory approval thresholds, and propose alternative approaches to administering allowances.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends regulations regarding the valuation of gas produced from Federal leases and agreements for arms-length and non arms-length contracts. Due to the variety of situations in producing and marketing gas products, MMS's purpose is to provide a valuation procedure that closely reflects market conditions and allows royalty to be based upon information readily available to the lessee. The procedure will minimize the administrative burden on industry and MMS.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will revise the requirements for warning systems, personnel protection, hydrogen sulfide (H2S) and sulphur dioxide (SO2) detection and monitoring. A recent equipment failure at an H2S gas facility resulted in the flaring of gas containing high concentrations of H2S, which resulted in the risk of exposure to high concentrations of H2S and the discharge of large volumes of SO2. As a result of this incident, the current regulations are being revised to adequately address the flaring of gas containing H2S. Since the revisions are extensive, the rule is being reproposed.

Final Rule Stage

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA), 43 USC 1339, requires that a lessee or payor under an offshore lease submit a request to Minerals Management Service (MMS) for recoupment or refund of an overpayment (credit adjustment) within 2 years of the date of the original payment. However, current law does not provide for a time limitation on credit adjustments under onshore Federal or Indian leases similar to that provided in the OCSLA. This rule would add a new provision entitled "Limitations on Credit Adjustments" which would restrict credit adjustments without prior authorization to payments due within 5 years before the date of the adjustments. The rule provides that MMS could authorize credit adjustments with respect to payments made more than 5 years but less than 10 years before the date of the adjustments. However, credit adjustments with respect to any payment made more than 10 years before the date of the adjustment would be prohibited.

The Debt Collection Act of 1982 (DCA), 31 USC 3716, allows Federal agencies to collect outstanding claims by administrative offset. The DCA instructs each agency to prescribe regulations before collecting a claim by administrative offset, of royalties, interest, or other amounts due under Federal and Indian oil, gas, and other mineral leases.

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1321; EO 12777

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 18, 1992.

Abstract: Regulations are being developed to implement the authority of Minerals Management Service (MMS) under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA) as amended by the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. These regulations will address oil spill prevention and response in State submerged lands as well as in the Outer Continental Shelf. A nonregulatory alternative will not meet the mandate of the FWPCA as amended. The expected costs will depend on the extent to which existing practices in State and Federal waters meet the new mandated requirements. The expected benefits will be an assurance that oil spill prevention and response capability are being addressed on all facilities in both State and Federal waters.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334(j)

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.175

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MMS regulations do not now address burning of liquid hydrocarbons. When the rules were written, liquid hydrocarbons were not burned and there was no need to address the subject. Economic changes, coupled with an increase in well test times and distances from shore, have caused some operators to ask to burn liquid hydrocarbons. Currently, MMS is citing its mandate to conserve resources to restrict this practice. However, to have clear regulatory backing for this policy, MMS is planning to issue a proposed rulemaking. This proposed rule will give the public the opportunity to comment on the proposed restrictions on burning liquid hydrocarbons.

Abstract: Responsibilities of Minerals Management Service include the collection of royalties, bonuses, rentals, and related revenues from Federal and Indian mineral leases. These monies are, for the most part, collected from the current designated payor on the lease. However, if MMS is unable to collect from the current payor, it must pursue collections from a prior payor(s), the lessee, or an assignee of the lease. Existing regulations are unclear as to the responsibilities and liabilities of the parties involved. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to clarify payor, lessee, and assignee requirements and responsibilities.

1817. BASIS FOR COAL WEIGHT DETERMINATION

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 870

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Some processors purchase raw coal from operators on an estimated clean coal basis. The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's rules require reclamation fee payment on the actual gross weight of the clean or raw coal at the time of sale, transfer or use. Records required to document the basis of a coal sale are not clearly defined. Legislative changes provide OSM the authority to audit coal preparation plants, tipples and loading facilities. Records a person operating a coal preparation plant must maintain on coal purchases are not specified in regulation. A person operating a preparation plant is not liable for fee payment on coal sales that exceed purchases. This rule would allow an operator who sells coal to a processor, who actually cleans the coal, to pay fees on the same basis on which the operator is paid by the processor. The person who operates a coal preparation plant would be liable for reclamation fee payment on all coal sold that exceeds coal purchased. Records to be maintained to document the basis for coal sales would be defined in regulation.

Abstract: These rules will enable permittee operations which encounter an unanticipated event resulting in a violation to obtain new permits. The authority for this would exist from October 24, 1992, through September 30, 2004. The rules will also shorten the period of liability for revegetation from 5 years to 2 in the east and midwest and from 10 years to 5 in the arid west for remining sites. The rules will ensure that remining sites do not lose their abandoned mine land eligibility. The rules are required to implement section 2503 of the Energy Policy Act of 1992.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201

Abstract: This rule would: (1) require that written findings be provided to all parties in an informal conference held during the permitting process regardless of the decision of the Regulatory Authority and (2) increase the protection afforded private landowners with property within the permit area of approved mining and reclamation permits. Preliminary information indicates that the rule may increase the costs of operations to the coal industry in certain states while protecting the property values of private homeowners.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 701

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The term "affected area" as defined in 30 CFR 701.5 excludes public roads, if, among other things, there is substantial public use. The rule was remanded by the Federal District Court because the definition excluded too broad a class of public roads. Suspension of that rule has caused confusion and left state regulatory authorities and OSM with imperfect guidance in a difficult area. Consistent with the Federal District Court ruling this rule will provide clarification and nationwide consistency concerning the extent to which public roads must be included in the affected area. There would be some increased costs to regulatory authorities and the coal industry since certain public roads that are not now regulated will need to be incorporated into the affected area of existing permits.

Abstract: This rule will define requirements for the crediting/disposition of revenues. The rule notifies water districts of a review of legislation, repayment contracts, and amendments, and of current Bureau practice relating to collection and crediting/disposition. The rule also states that inappropriate direct crediting of revenues was discontinued effective January 1, 1994. Since the Bureau does not have the option to dispose of revenues other than as required by law, the intent of this review is to ensure that revenue crediting follows the requirements of law.

Deadlines were established in a contract settlement contract. On the basis of this contract, the Federal District Court vacated its previous order on this rulemaking.

Abstract: A lawsuit settlement contract, signed in September 1993, requires the Bureau of Reclamation to propose new regulations implementing the Reclamation Reform Act of 1982 on a westwide basis. The contract also requires the Bureau to prepare and EIS considering the impact of the proposed regulation and alternatives. The contract specifies that the proposed rules and draft EIS be published by December 1, 1994, and the final rules and EIS be published by August 1, 1995. These dates have been extended by the litigants to March 10, 1995, and November 15, 1995.

1830. REGULATIONS FOR ADMINISTERING ENTITLEMENTS TO COLORADO RIVER WATER IN THE LOWER COLORADO RIVER BASIN

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 43 USC 617; 43 USC 391; 43 USC 485; 43 USC 390

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 415

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Colorado River water has been apportioned for consumptive use among water users with valid water rights within the States of Arizona, California, and Nevada. This rule would amend current rules for apportioning water from the lower Colorado River basin. The principal data analyzed prior to writing the rule were the records of diversions, return flow, and consumptive use of Colorado River water. Reclamation is obligated to prepare and maintain records of this information pursuant to a 1964 decree by the U.S. Supreme Court in Arizona v. California. Reclamation determined what information is necessary and obtained approval from Office of Management and Budget for the collection of this information. Reclamation also reviewed each lower basin State's water use and projected future use and concluded that a failure by the United States to take action to eliminate diversion of water by illegal diverters would harm legal entitlement holders. Thus, the initial purpose of the rule was to establish a method to eliminate illegal diversion of Colorado River water.

The Lower Colorado Region began compiling a mailing list of known and potentially interested parties when the rule was in preliminary draft stage. The draft rule has been distributed to water users and all then-known and potentially interested parties on three occasions: May 1991, December 1992, and May 1994. The region held a series of public meetings at nine locations in Arizona, Nevada, and California from June 14-30, 1994. Advance notice of the meetings was sent to all known and potentially interested parties. The list of parties includes both traditional and nontraditional constituents. These meetings were held to tell the public why the rule is needed, summarize the major provisions, and explain how they would be able to review and comment on it when the rulemaking process advances to the stage of a proposed rule. Reclamation will expand the outreach program during the public comment period that may be extended to 6 months. A series of public hearings on the rule will be held during the public comment period and Reclamation will meet with interested water districts, cities, other water users, or public interest groups.

As a result of the outreach, Reclamation has broadened its perspective to take other interests into consideration. For example, Reclamation has agreed to do a programmatic environmental impact statement, rather than a less extensive environmental assessment, on the effect of the draft rule. Portions of the draft rule, such as criteria for water conservation plans, will be reviewed and may be revised to accommodate specific needs of water users. Provisions such as nonuse of entitlements and the leasing, marketing and banking of saved water are being revaluated based on comments from the lower basin States, water users, and environmental interests.

Reclamation is committed to fulfilling the Secretary's obligations as water master of the lower Colorado River but will keep a flexible approach in the rulemaking process and seek to obtain a consensus among the lower basin States to the extent possible.

Proposed Rule Stage

1873. TRANSPORTATION AND UTILITY SYSTEMS IN AND ACROSS, AND ACCESS INTO, CONSERVATION SYSTEM UNITS IN ALASKA

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1; 16 USC 3; 16 USC 668dd et seq; 16 USC 3101 et seq; 43 USC 1201

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Judicial, April 30, 1995.

Abstract: This rule will revise regulations implementing the provisions of Title IX of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA). The regulations concern transportation and utility systems (TUS) in Alaska when any portion of the route of the TUS will be within any conservation system unit, national recreation area, or national conservation area. The regulations detail the procedures that must be followed to obtain Federal approval needed for a TUS. In addition, the regulations address special access, temporary access, and access to inholdings.

Abstract: This proposed amendment would revise the Department's regulation implementing Title II to clarify the requirement for installation of curb ramps at existing pedestrian walkways and to extend the time period for compliance beyond the current deadline of January 26, 1995. This amendment responds to public concerns about the unique and significant capital expense involved in the installation of curb ramps.

The amendment would establish a two-tier system under which public entities would be required to provide access to pedestrian walkways serving government offices, public transportation, public accommodations, places of employment, and the residences of individuals with disabilities by January 26, 2000. Access to existing pedestrian walkways in other areas would be required by January 26, 2005. The proposed rule would require public entities to included a schedule for the implementation of these requirements in their transition plans.

Abstract: On July 26, 1991, the Department published its final rules implementing titles II and III of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability by public entities (title II) and in places of accommodation and commercial facilities (title III). Those regulations included accessibility guidelines but did not specifically include guidelines for facilities designed for children.

This rule amends the ADA accessibility guidelines to include guidelines based on children's dimensions and anthropometrics and applies to newly constructed and altered facilities that are designed for use primarily by children. The rule ensures that newly constructed and altered children's facilities are readily accessible to and usable by children with disabilities.

Abstract: This rule would amend 21 CFR, parts 1310 and 1313, to require that persons importing or exporting regulated chemicals: report to DEA the actual date of importation or exportation and the actual amount of regulated chemicals imported or exported; establish a 60-day time limit on the validity of chemical import/export declarations; and clarify that the threshold levels for hydrochloric acid, anhydrous hydrochloric acid, and sulfuric acid apply to both exports and transshipments to designated countries. 21 U.S.C. 971 requires that persons provide DEA with notification of imports and exports of regulated chemicals at least 15 days in advance of the proposed transactions. Experience has shown that the actual date of import/export and amount of chemicals involved often vary significantly from the proposed date and amounts reported to DEA. The proposed changes will allow DEA to collect and maintain accurate information regarding regulated chemical imports/exports.

Abstract: In years past, most pharmaceutical manufacturers and wholesalers, as a service to their customers, accepted returns of outdated/damaged merchandise. Also, agencies such as DEA and state Boards of Pharmacy accepted surrendered drugs or witnessed their disposal by controlled substance registrants. Over the past several years, environmental concerns and regulations have eliminated many of the disposal options which had been available. As a result, drug producers and government agencies alike are increasingly reluctant to be involved in the disposal process. Due to these factors and the time and resources expended by DEA and manufacturers, a disposer registration has become an essential link in the legitimate distribution chain. Therefore, DEA is proposing the establishment of a new category of controlled substance registrant as a disposer.

Abstract: The Domestic Chemical Diversion Control Act of 1993 removed the exemption from regulation for chemical mixtures. Chemical mixtures are now regulated, unless specifically exempted by the Administrator. In the proposed rule regarding the implementation of the Domestic Chemical Diversion Control Act of 1993, DEA proposed regulations regarding exemption of chemical mixtures. Based on industry comments, the proposed regulations were subsequently withdrawn for reassessment and consultation with industry. These proposed regulations establish the new provisions regarding the exemption of chemical mixtures. Based on extensive consultations with industry, the regulations are intended to establish the least possible burden on industry while remaining consistent with the requirements of the law.

Abstract: DEA is proposing to remove certain pseudoephedrine products from the exemption granted to drug products that are marketed under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, based on evidence that the products are being diverted for the illicit manufacture of controlled substances. DEA is proposing to limit the regulation of these products to the distribution level through waiver of the registration requirement for retailers and establishment of a threshold that will not require recordkeeping and reporting for sales of personal use quantities to legitimate users. Further, the number of products to be regulated has been limited.

Abstract: Consistent with the White House National Performance Review initiative, DEA has conducted a review of Title 21, Code of Federal Regulations, Parts 1300 to End. In the course of this review, DEA has identified a number of areas in the regulations where steps can be taken to eliminate outdated requirements, consolidate related sections, and otherwise streamline the regulations. This action should reduce the regulations and provide a more consistent and easily understood framework of guidelines for industry to follow in complying with the requirements of the Controlled Substances Act.

Final Rule Stage

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 1; 8 CFR 3; 8 CFR 103; 8 CFR 208; 8 CFR 212; 8 CFR 242

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, June 1991.

Abstract: Proposed regulations were published in the Federal Register on June 7, 1994 (59 FR 29386) (hereinafter referred to as the June proposed rulemaking), concerning motions and appeals in immigration proceedings and on May 13, 1994 (59 FR 24977) (hereinafter referred to as the May proposed rulemaking), concerning fees. The June proposed rulemaking was promulgated to implement section 545 of the Immigration Act of 1990, Public Law 101-649, which requires both time and number limitations on motions to reopen and reconsider and changes in the substantive and procedural aspects of motion and appeal practice. The May proposed rulemaking was promulgated to establish an alternative procedure for filing proof of fee payments with the Board of Immigration Appeals (Board).

Since the publication of these two proposed rules, the agency has further examined its current appeal procedures and has decided to establish a uniform central system for filing and tracking appeals before the Board. Under the proposed procedure, parties would file a notice of appeal from a decision of an Immigration Judge and remit the appeal fee or fee waiver petition with the notice of appeal directly to the Board. The rule would also require that motions to reopen and motions to reconsider decisions of the Board be filed directly with the Board accompanied by the appropriate fee or fee waiver petition. This rule would supersede the May and June proposed rulemakings.

This proposed centralization of the appeals procedure is fundamentally interrelated to the proposed changes of both the May and June proposed rulemakings. Therefore, the agency has determined to merge these substantive and procedural proposals into one rule and to provide an opportunity for public comment on this merged rule. The June proposed rule has been changed to clarify certain provisions and to reflect many of the commentors' concerns. The single unified proposed rule is published herein and addresses both the language of section 545(d) of the Immigration Act of 1990 and new procedural changes to the filing of appeals, motions, and their concomitant fees with the Board.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 3

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Immigration Act of 1990 provides that an alien entrepreneur and his or her family may obtain lawful permanent residence on a conditional basis, subject to the requirements of a timely petition and interview for removal of the condition two years after obtaining such status. Termination of such status is made reviewable in deportation proceedings before an Immigration Judge. This rule sets forth the procedures that an Immigration Judge will follow in reviewing the termination by the Immigration and Naturalization Service of conditional permanent resident status of alien entrepreneurs and their families.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1443; 8 USC 1448

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 337

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On February 3, 1995, at 60 FR 6647, the Department of Justice published a rule finalizing the procedures implementing an administrative naturalization process as provided for by recent changes in the immigration laws. This rule amends those procedures slightly by extending concurrent jurisdiction to administer the oath of allegiance to Immigration Judges with certain officers of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. This change will provide a more formal setting for the oath of allegiance and add to the solemnity of the occasion upon which a person becomes a citizen of the United States. In addition, it will alleviate in some measure the burden on Service personnel and resources to hold periodic naturalization ceremonies by expanding the responsibility for this duty to Immigration Judges.

Abstract: This regulation provides changes to the grounds of exclusion applicable to those seeking admission to the US either on a temporary or permanent basis, and sets forth the circumstances under which discretionary waivers of excludability are available. The amendments reflect statutory changes made by section 601 of the Immigration Act of 1990, IMMACT 90, as well as subsequent technical amendments to the statute. The rule is necessary to ensure implementation of, and regulatory compliance with, the statute as enacted by Congress.

This rule also changes language in 8 CFR 209.2(b) that pertains to the adjustment of status of aliens who, though granted asylum, are determined to be inadmissible aliens pursuant to the provisions set forth in IMMACT.

Abstract: The Visa Waiver Pilot Program allows nationals of designated countries to apply for admission to the US at land border ports as well as at air and sea ports and to enter the US for business or pleasure for up to 90 days without first obtaining a nonimmigrant visa.

INS No. 1447 permits nationals of 13 additional designated countries, Andorra, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Monaco, New Zealand, Norway, Spain, and San Marino to apply for admission for 90 days or less as nonimmigrant visitors for business or pleasure without first obtaining a nonimmigrant visa

INS No. 1447R amends section 217 by removing Andorra, Austria, Italy, and Monaco as countries participating in the Visa Waiver Pilot Program. This action is necessary because these countries no longer meet the criteria for continued participation in the program.

INS No. 1674 provided notice of the Congressional extension of the VWPP through 9-30-96.

INS No. 1685 extends the VWPP to nationals of Ireland and also allows nationals of designated countries whose method of arrival at port-of-entry had previously precluded them from participating in the VWPP to now participate.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 245

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation amends 8 CFR 245.1(b)(12) to clarify that an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence on a conditional basis under either section 216 or section 216A of the Act remains ineligible for adjustment of status under section 245 of the Act even after the alien's status has been terminated under section 216 or section 216A of the Act respectively.

This rule also clarifies procedures for fiance(e) who marry after the 90 day period of fiance(e) admission has ended; and also clarify that persons who have had conditional residence terminated are not eligible to adjust status.

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1224

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 234

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation is to be implemented in conjunction with regulations issued by the Department of Health and Human Services, Public Health Service (PHS). The rule ensures implementation of regulatory compliance with section 601(a) of the Immigration Act of 1990, Pub. L. 101-649 (IMMACT) as it relates to the physical and mental examination of aliens arriving into the United States. The rule also serves to provide guidance for the designation of civil surgeons and the creation and implementation of a program aimed at monitoring their activities to ensure compliance with the applicable INS/PHS regulations.

Abstract: The Immigration and Naturalization Service (Service) is proposing a change in the criteria currently used for approving testing entities to administer standardized United States government, history and written and oral English testing for persons applying to become naturalized United States citizens. Dramatic increases in the number of individuals filing to become citizens and the need to strengthen the approval criteria in order to prevent fraud necessitate this change. After implementation, this rule will provide permanent procedures for approving testing entities to administer oral and written English language and civics testing and will allow the Service to focus manpower resources of naturalization interviews warranting greater investigation.

This rule while adding a section to 8 CFR, will assist the public by controlling the authorization of local testing centers, thereby eliminating fraud which is now plaguing the system.

Abstract: This rule streamlines the regulatory process for executing a final order of exclusion by sliding forward the 72-hour waiting period, which currently falls after the Service assumes custody of the alien pursuant to a notice to surrender or arrest, to the period immediately after service of the decision upon the alien, in conformity to the current deportation procedure. The rule also eliminates the subsequent step of obtaining the alien's specific consent or request to waive the 72-hour period when the alien has already waived appeal of the Immigration Judge's exclusion or deportation order on the record of proceeding before the Immigration Judge. These revisions are necessary in order to eliminate unnecessary detention costs to the taxpayer and potential delays resulting from the current 72-hour provision.

Abstract: This document proposes to amend existing Immigration and Naturalization Service (Service) regulations to increase the fee imposed when a check submitted to the Service in payment of a fee is not honored by the bank upon which it is drawn, from $5.00 to $30.00. The purpose of the proposed change is to enable the Service to recoup the administrative costs incurred in processing all returned checks and other defaulted payments. This action will result in the Service no longer losing money as a result of bad check activity. The rule will apply to all returned checks, including Immigration User Fee payments bounce, fines, penalties, etc.. The rule is necessary in order for the INS to recover the entire cost associated with the processing of defaulted payments.

Abstract: Currently INS inspects all crew members on a cruise vessel that arrives for the first time in a US port-of-entry, then only inspects those crew members every 90-days with another physical presentation. The inspectors inspect every new arriving and departing crew member and obtain crew manifests on all voyages of the vessel. The use of the 90-day waiver is necessary to meet the statutory requirement of inspecting everyone arriving in the US, while concurrently attempting to address the cruise industry's growth and INS' budgetary and personnel constraints.

Abstract: This rule sets forth the requirements that a carrier must satisfy in order that the INS may reduce, refund, or waive a fine incurred by the carrier for the transportation of an improperly documented alien to the US. The rule notifies the public of the requirements the INS expects the carriers to implement at ports of embarkation to satisfy the INS that they have properly screened all passengers on their vessel or aircraft bound for the US. The rule also notifies the public of the circumstances under which the INS may reduce, refund, or waive fines imposed on the carrier for the boarding of improperly documented aliens.

Certain qualified carriers that have achieved an Acceptable Performance Level (APL) in the number of improperly documented aliens brought to the United States, as determined by the INS, and having a satisfactory fines payment record, will be eligible for fines mitigation, the extent of the mitigation being determined by the carrier's APL.

Abstract: The rule clarifies INS policy relating to the custody and costs of detention of stowaways, especially those seeking asylum. The rule will require carriers to remove most stowaways on the vessel or aircraft on arrival, and will allow for INS detention of asylum-seeking stowaways. The rule will also delineate carrier and INS costs for such detention.

Abstract: The INS proposes to change regulations at 8 CFR 214.2(c)(2) relating to persons entitled to pass in transit to and from the UN Headquarters District. The current rules restrict aliens in transit to the UN from traveling beyond the UN Headquarters District (defined as a 25-mile radius of Columbus Circle, NY,NY). The proposed changes would allow an alien on official business in possession of a C-2 nonimmigrant visa to travel outside the UN Headquarters District unless otherwise provided by the Secretary of State. The changes also describe the term "official business" so that alien consultants to the UN may be included in the regulations.

Abstract: This interim rule implements the Immigration and Nationality Technical Corrections Act of 1994, by establishing procedures for certain United States women to confer citizenship to their foreign-born children. The purpose of the rule is to ensure that all women receive equal treatment under laws relating to nationality. Implementation of the rule would allow for the issuance of certificates of citizenship to certain foreign-born children previously ineligible to acquire citizenship from their U.S. citizen mothers.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposed sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to grant permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This rule established special H-2A regulatory criteria, and supplemented the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule has amended Service regulations which pertain to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Abstract: Regulations published under this RIN implement provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act as established by section 302 of the Immigration Act of 1990, Pub. L. 101-649, which allow for the establishment and implementation of Temporary Protected Status.

Recent regulatory actions:

INS No. 1608 provides for exceptions to deadlines for registering for TPS and updates the application process.

INS No. 1612 provides for the removal of obsolete TPS language.

INS No. 1740 relays the Service's action of granting an automatic extension until 1-31-96 of the validity of any EAD or work permit bearing an expiration date of 12-31-94, and previously issued to a Salvadoran on the basis of DED. This action should ensure ample opportunity for Salvadoran beneficiaries of DED to apply for a new EAD based on a pending asylum application.

INS No. 1729 provides for the extension of designation of Somalia for TPS through 9-17-96.

INS No. 1730 provides for the extension of designation of Bosnia-Hercegovina for TPS through 8-10-96.

INS No. 1689 provides for the extension of designation of Liberia for TPS through 3-28-96.

Abstract: This regulation implements section 511 of the Immigration Act of 1990, Pub. L. 101-649, by providing that a lawful permanent resident applying for advance permission to enter the United States under section 212(c) of the Act may not be granted such permission if he or she has been convicted of an aggravated felony and has served a term of imprisonment of at least five years.

The Immigration and Nationality Technical Corrections Act of 1994, Pub. L. 103-416, revised the definition of "aggravated felony", thereby requiring changes to the interim regulations. A second interim rule will be promulgated.

This rule will also provide that certain specified aliens are ineligible for discretionary relief under section 212(c) of the Act for a period of five years from the date of the barring act if the alien fails to appear for deportation, appear at an asylum hearing, or voluntarily depart.

Abstract: This rule implements section 514 of the Immigration Act of 1990 (IMMACT 90), Pub. L. 101-649, by extending from ten to twenty years the bar on reentry into the United States after deportation or removal of aliens who are convicted on one or more aggravated felonies. The change applies to admission occurring on or after January 1, 1991.

The Immigration and Nationality Technical Corrections Act of 1994, Pub. L. 103-416, changed the statutory definition of "aggravated felony" thereby requiring further modifications to the regulatory document. A second interim rule will therefore be promulgated.

Abstract: This rule codifies existing policy guidelines on the classification of nonimmigrant treaty aliens. The regulation is necessary to fulfill U.S. treaty obligations, avoid confusion and ensure uniform adjudication of applications, and to facilitate change of status and stay of business traders and investors.

The rule responds to the need for uniformity between the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Department of State, which have dual jurisdiction over E treaty aliens. It will encourage trade and investment in the United States by citizens of countries with whom the United States has treaties and ensure fair and consistent adjudication and enforcement by Service field offices throughout the United States and in the reviewing courts.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 214

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations implement provisions of the Immigration Act of 1990 (IMMACT), Pub. L. 101-649, as they relate to temporary alien workers seeking nonimmigrant classification and admission to the US under sections 101(a)(15)(H),(L),(O), and (P) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act).

INS Regulation No. 1653 proposes to bring the H, O, and P Classification regulations into conformity with the employer sanctions provisions of Section 274a of the Act. It precludes foreign employers from filing petitions for O and P nonimmigrant aliens. Prospective foreign employers seeking to utilize these classifications will be required to employ the services of an established US agent in order to file a petition for an O or P nonimmigrant. The rule also would amend the H nonimmigrant regulations by requiring foreign employers seeking to petition for H-2B nonimmigrants to also utilize the services of an established US agent.

Abstract: INS No. 1606-93 provides for the removal of the requirement for the registration and fingerprinting of certain nonimmigrants bearing Iraqi and Kuwaiti travel documents who apply for admission to the United States. The rule also permits the Immigration and Naturalization Service, through the publication of a public notice in the Federal Register, to require the registration and fingerprinting of certain nonimmigrants.

This rule makes final an interim regulation which provides the Service with regulatory flexibility to respond swiftly to national security emergencies. It removes a requirement from the CFR and permits the Service to modify practice by Public Notice.

Abstract: This rule amends existing regulations concerning admission of certain nurses seeking nonimmigrant classification under the H-1A category. This rule is necessary due to a change in the method that the National Council of State Boards of Nursing (NCLEX) uses to administer the permanent state licensure examination. With the change in testing procedures the rule will provide that nurses entering the US, on the basis of a temporary license issued by the state of intended employment, pass the NCLEX within 6 months after the date of their initial admission to the US.

Abstract: This regulation would certify designated outside entities to take fingerprints of applicants for immigration benefits. The regulation would require the designated outside entities to receive training and to verify the identity of the applicants. The certification process would place the outside entities under INS oversight and protect the integrity of the fingerprinting process. This rule will improve the integrity of the fingerprint collection system and relieve resources strains on the Service.

Abstract: This rule proposes to amend the Immigration and Naturalization Service (Service) regulations which permit district directors in individual cases, to waive a nonimmigrant visa or passport requirement, under section 212(d)(4)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), if they are satisfied that a nonimmigrant alien is unable to present these documents because of an unforeseen emergency. The rule will clarify that carriers are liable for fines imposed under section 273(a) of the Act for bringing nonimmigrants to the United States who do not have a valid passport, nonimmigrant visa, or border crossing identification card, even if a waiver of these documents is granted by the district director at the time of entry into the United States. This rule is necessary to conform to the statutory requirement that a fine be imposed when a nonimmigrant is transported to the United States without the proper documentation.

The rule will clarify that carriers are liable for fines imposed under section 273(a) of the Act for bringing nonimmigrants to the United States who do not have the proper documentation even if a waiver of these documents is granted by the district director.

Abstract: This rule allows for the collection of a fee at the time of application for participation in a Dedicated Commuter Lane (DCL), instead of at the time of approval of the application. The DCL program is a pilot project established at selected land border ports of entry to expedite the transborder movement of eligible, pre-screened, low-risk groups through designated traffic lanes. The rule clarifies the fee requirements for use of the DCL.

Abstract: This rule allows certain persons in the US to adjust status to that of a lawful permanent resident before October 1, 1997. These persons, although eligible for immigrant visa issuance abroad, have been barred from adjustment of status because they had entered the US without inspection or had violated the conditions of temporary nonimmigrant status. The rule allows prospective lawful permanent or conditional residents to avoid the difficulties and expense of travel to a US consulate or embassy abroad. It continues to penalize these violators of the immigration laws by requiring most adult applicants to pay an additional sum in excess of the standard adjustment filing fee. After adjusting status they may lawfully live and work in the US and may later be eligible to seek US citizenship through naturalization.

Abstract: Two regulatory initiatives dealing with the processing of alien witnesses have been prepared by the INS. INS No. 1683-94 provides the application and approval process for the admission of aliens in S nonimmigrant classification. It provides guidance to the various law enforcement agencies needing alien witnesses and informants to complete critical law enforcement initiatives in the United States. INS no. 1728-95 establishes a fee for the processing of Form I-854, Inter-Agency Alien Witness and Informant Record, for Law Enforcement Agency (LEA) requests for S Nonimmigrant classification for eligible alien witnesses and informants. The fee is necessary to recover the costs of the processing of requests for immigration benefits on Form I-854 and results from an analysis of the cost of these services. The fee is needed to comply with specific Federal immigration laws and Federal user fee statute and regulations.

Abstract: The rule would remove the obsolete Form I-151, Alien Registration Receipt Card, from the listing of forms recognized by the Service as evidence of registration for lawful permanent residence in 8 CFR 264.1. (A previous final rule, published on 9/20/93 at 58 FR 48775, had already removed I-151 from the list of prescribed Service forms in 8 CFR 299.) By removing from the regulations the last reference to Form I-151 as a valid document, this rule would complete the Services declared policy of establishing the current Form I-551 as the exclusive form of registration for lawful permanent residents.

Pub. L. 103-416, Section 220, statutory provisions in effect upon approval.

Abstract: This rule implements changes to INS regulations resulting from recent legislative changes instituted by the Immigration and Nationality Technical Corrections Act, Public Law 103-416. The changes allow certain foreign medical graduates who entered the US in J-1 status, and their J-2 dependent spouse and children to obtain a waiver of the 2 year home country physical presence requirement pursuant to a request by a State Department of Public Health, or its equivalent, thus allowing them to work at a health care facility in an area designated by the Secretary, Health and Human Services, as having a shortage of health care professionals. This rule will allow foreign medical graduates to change their nonimmigrant status in the US from J-1 exchange visitor to H-1B specialty occupation worker.

Abstract: This rule provides procedures, criteria, and clarifying language for according immigrant status to children of widows or widowers who were not previously eligible for immigration benefits as derivative immediate relatives. It expands the definition of immediate relative to include children of an alien who qualifies as a widow or widower. Before the regulatory change alien children of a widow or widower were not included in the classification of immediate relative to accompany or follow-to-join a principal alien. This rule expands the definition of immediate relative to include children of an alien who qualifies as a widow or widower.

Abstract: To encourage the payment of fines, liquidated damages, and user fees, this notice informs interested parties that the INS intends to evaluate a transportation line's fines, user fees, and liquidated damages payment record before entering into any agreements with the transportation line. INS will also evaluate existing transportation line agreements for possible cancellation, if it is determined that fines, liquidated damages, or user fees imposed against or owed by the transportation line are not paid to the INS in a timely manner. This action is necessary to ensure timely payment of a transportation line's fines, liquidated damages, and user fees. In both cases the INS will notify the affected carrier to satisfy its debts to the INS. Delinquent fines have made this policy necessary. The National Fines Office currently shows that carrier fines which have been delinquent over 30 days amount to over $5 million dollars.

2017. NOTICE OF POLICY REGARDING FINES IMPOSED ON CARRIERS WHO BRING ALIENS TO THE UNITED STATES WITHOUT PROPER DOCUMENTATION

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 273

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The INS informs interested parties of its intention to modify its fines policy regarding fines imposed on carriers for the transportation of aliens in possession of fraudulent documentation. The INS intends to fine carriers which bring aliens in possession of fraudulent documents where the fraud is reasonably apparent. The INS also affirms its policy with regard to other issues which include: fines and Transit Without Visa (TWOV) passengers arriving with cancelled visas, used "one entry" visas, or visas issued prior to the addition of accompanying children. This policy was first stated in an INS letter to the Air Transport Association dated March 12, 1992.

Ports-of-Entry will recommend fines against those carriers that transport aliens to the United States who are in possession of reasonably apparent fraudulent documents. This will increase the amount of fines for certain carriers that transport these fraudulently documented aliens and encourage all carriers to improve their screening procedures of passenger documentation prior to their embarkation for the United States.

2018. NOTICE TO CARRIERS OF THE INS POLICY REQUESTING THE U.S. CUSTOMS SERVICE (USCS) TO DENY OR REVOKE PERMISSION TO UNLADE PASSENGERS FOR THOSE THAT ARE DELINQUENT IN INS FINES LIQUIDATED DAMAGES

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 19 USC 58b; 19 USC 66; 19 USC 1433; 19 USC 1436; 19 USC 1459; 19 USC 1590; 19 USC 1594; 19 USC 1623; 19 USC 1624; 19 USC 1644; 49 USC app 1509

CFR Citation: 19 CFR 122

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: To assist in the collection of monies owed by carriers, the INS will request that the US Customs Service (USCS) consider denying or revoking permits to unlade passengers for certain carriers that are delinquent in their fines, liquidated damages, and user fee payments. According to USCS regulations (19 CFR 122) USCS District Directors may deny or revoke a permit/license if specific reasons exist for denial or revocation. A denial to land by the USCS would remain in place until satisfactory arrangements were made with the INS for payment of delinquent fines, liquidated damages, or user fees.

Carriers that are delinquent in their fines, liquidated damages, or user fees, may have their permits to unlade passengers in the United States denied or revoked by the USCS upon request by the INS.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 231

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule makes modifications to the current regulations at 8 CFR 231.1 regarding fines against carriers for violation of section 231(a) of the Act regarding the submission of properly completed arrival/departure manifests, Forms I-94. This rule modifies the criteria the INS will use to fine carriers under section 231 of the Act.

New criteria put forth in this policy notice will clarify the requirements regarding the carrier's submission of properly completed arrival/departure manifest Forms I-94, allowing the INS and carriers to improve cooperation to achieve rapid facilitation of the traveling public.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, January 11, 1995.

Abstract: This rule provides consolidated procedures for requests for designations of violent crime or drug emergency areas and appropriate Federal Assistance under section 90107 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994. In general, section 90107 provides that the chief executive of a State or local government may make a written request to the Attorney General that the President designate a state or part of a state to be a "violent crime or drug emergency area." This rule specifies the information to be submitted in support of such a request, sets forth the procedures to be followed by the requesters, and provides the process and criteria for Attorney General review of such requests. Section 90107 also provides the President may (1) direct any Federal agency, with or without reimbursement, to utilize its authorities and the resources granted it under Federal law in support of State or local assistance efforts and (2) provide technical and advisory assistance, including communications support and law enforcement-related intelligence information.

Priority: Routine and Frequent

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 28 USC 586(e)(1)

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 58

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: United States Trustees have the authority to appoint one or more individuals to serve as chapter 13 standing trustees in a judicial district if the number of chapter 13 cases warrants the appointment. Under 28 USC section 586(b) standing trustees receive a percentage of all funds paid under chapter 13 plans to pay for their compensation and actual necessary expenses. The Director of the Executive Office for United States Trustees, by virtue of authority delegated by the Attorney General, fixes each standing trustee's percentage fee and the maximum annual compensation. 28 USC section 586(e)(1). This rule is designed to eliminate conflicts of interest, curb unnecessary expenses, and ensure financial and management accountability.

2050. MOTOR VEHICLE THEFT PREVENTION PROGRAM

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: PL 103-322, sec 220001, Violent Crime Cntl & Law Enf Act, 1994

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, March 13, 1995.

Abstract: This rule develops, in cooperation with the States, a national voluntary motor vehicle theft prevention program under which the owner of a motor vehicle may voluntarily sign a consent form with a participating State or locality in which the motor vehicle owner states that the vehicle is not normally operated under certain specified conditions. Under this program, the owner agrees to display program decals or devices on the owner's vehicle and to permit law enforcement officials in any State to stop the motor vehicle and take reasonable steps to determine whether the vehicle is being operated by or with the permission of the owner, if the vehicle is being operated under the specified conditions.

Participating States and localities will authorize law enforcement officials in the State or locality to stop motor vehicles displaying program decals or devices under the specified conditions and take reasonable steps to determine whether the vehicle is being operated by or with the permission of the owner.

This rule establishes the specified conditions under which stops may be authorized by owners who state that they do not ordinarily operate their vehicles under such conditions: (1) driving a vehicle between 1:00 a.m. and 5:00 a.m.; and (2) driving a vehicle across a United States land border or into a United States port.

Abstract: This rule revises the existing Department of Justice regulation concerning the use and examination of materials submitted pursuant to the Antitrust Civil Process Act to add references to "answers to interrogatories" and "transcripts of oral testimony" as types of materials subject to the provisions of the Act, and to add references to "agents" of the Department having the authority to use and copy such materials. These changes are necessary to conform the language of the regulation to the current provisions of the Act. The rule also makes minor changes to the spelling and capitalization of certain words used in the regulations for purposes of conformity with the Act and internal consistency.

Priority: Other

Legal Authority: 42 USC 13031

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 81

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Title 42 U.S. Code section 13031 requires persons engaged in certain specified professions and activities on federal lands or facilities to report incidents of child abuse to the appropriate Federal, state, or local agency designed by the Attorney General. Title 42 USC section 13031(d) requires the Attorney General to designate an agency to receive and investigate certain reports of child abuse. For Federal lands, facilities, or federally contracted facilities where no agency qualifies for designation, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is designated as the agency to receive and investigate reports of child abuse made pursuant to 42 USC section 13031.

Abstract: This rule eliminates an unnecessary provision establishing general procedures for the receipt and consideration of comments submitted pursuant to subsection 2(b) of the Antitrust Procedures and Penalties Act, which requires the Department of Justice to seek public comments concerning proposed settlements of civil lawsuits brought by the United States under the antitrust laws. The specific procedures for submitting comments to the Department concerning proposed settlements are publicly communicated each time such comments are solicited, making the promulgation of general procedures unnecessary. It is also unnecessary to establish, by regulation, internal Department procedures for the consideration of such comments once received.

Abstract: This regulation amends and adopts rules that govern the processing of petitions for remission and mitigation of forfeitures by the Criminal Division, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and the United States Marshals Service of the United States Department of Justice. It is intended to provide a basis for similar rules to be adopted by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the Internal Revenue Service, the United States Secret Service of the Department of the Treasury, and the United States Postal Service. The Department proposes this regulation in an effort to ameliorate the harsh results in individual forfeiture cases and to provide relief to innocent persons whose property is used by others for criminal purposes.

Abstract: United States Trustees appoint private trustees to serve in bankruptcy cases filed under title 11, United States Code. Pursuant to 28 USC section 586(d), the Attorney General is required to prescribe by rule qualifications for membership on panels from which the United States Trustees appoint trustees to serve in specific bankruptcy cases filed under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code. In addition, the Attorney General is required to prescribe by rule qualifications for appointment as a standing trustee in cases filed under chapters 12 and 13 of the Bankruptcy Code. The qualifications prescribed by the Attorney General pursuant to 28 USC section 586(d) are found at 28 CFR 58.3, 58.4. This rule amends those qualifications by adding a requirement that the applicant have three years of either bankruptcy experience or experience as a fiduciary. In addition, this rule clarifies that the United States Trustees have authority not only to establish panels of trustees in the first instance, but also to revise and periodically reconstitute such panels. Finally, the rule sets forth certain technical amendments to 28 CFR Part 58.

Abstract: Section 170101 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 encourages States to establish registration systems for persons who are: (1) convicted of a criminal offense against a victim who is a minor; (2) convicted of a sexually violent offense; or (3) found to be a sexually violent predator. The establishment of such a system by a State is a condition for eligibility for full funding under section 506 of the Omnibus Crime and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3756). Section 170101(a)(1) directs the Attorney General to establish guidelines for the States to follow in developing conforming registration systems. Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: Subtitle A title II Violent Crime Cont and Law Enf Act of 1994; PL 103-322; 108 Stat 1796

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, January 13, 1995.
Sec 20105 of title II of Violent Crime Cont and Law Enf Act of 1994 requires the Attorney General to issue rules and regulations re use of title II grant funds within 90 days of Act enactment.

Abstract: This regulation implements authorization for grants to States, and States organized in multistate compacts, for assistance to adult and juvenile correctional systems. The program recognizes that States and local jurisdictions have experienced substantial increases in jail, prison and juvenile confinement populations in recent years, resulting in escalating costs and serious difficulties in managing overcapacity correctional populations. Because of these constraints, correctional systems have often been unable to implement new programs, develop alternative confinement strategies, or open new facilities. This program seeks to provide funds to address the immediate needs of correctional facilities and programs.

In particular, the program emphasizes the need to make available both conventional jail and prison space for the confinement of violent offenders and to ensure that violent offenders remain incarcerated for substantial periods of time through the implementation of truth in sentencing laws. Accordingly, subtitle A directs the Attorney General to award grants to construct, develop, expand, modify, operate or improve correctional facilities and other correctional facilities that will free secure prison space for the confinement of violent offenders.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's semiannual agenda of regulations that have been selected for review or development during the coming year. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12866 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act. The agenda lists all regulations that are expected to be under review or development between October 1995 and October 1996, as well as those completed during the past 6 months.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, U.S. Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 219-6197.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the agency contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12866 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981, and applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after that date. It requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). Executive Order 12866 became effective September 30, 1993, and in substance, requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal, or review during the coming 1-year period. The focus of all departmental regulatory activity will be on the development of effective rules that are understandable and usable to the employers and employees in all affected workplaces.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining the publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12866.

For this edition of the Department of Labor's regulatory agenda, the most important significant regulatory actions are included in The Regulatory Plan, which appears in Part II of this issue of the Federal Register. The Regulatory Plan entries are listed in the Table of Contents below and are denoted by a bracketed bold reference, which directs the reader to the appropriate Sequence Number in Part II.

All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let departmental officials know how our regulatory efforts can be improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

Robert B. Reich,

Secretary of Labor.

2074. COORDINATED ENFORCEMENT OF FARM LABOR PROTECTIVE STATUTES

Priority: Other

Legal Authority: 29 USC 49 et seq; 29 USC 201 et seq; 29 USC 651 et seq; 29 USC 1801 et seq; 8 USC 1188(g)(2); 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 42

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department intends to revise its regulations for coordinated enforcement of farm protective statutes. The rule will clarify existing regulatory language and update the regulations by making nomenclature and other technical amendments. The sections also will be reorganized for clarification. These regulations were first promulgated in 1980 to coordinate the farm labor enforcement activities of the Department's Employment and Training Administration, the Employment Standards Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Office of the Solicitor of Labor (45 FR 39489). The regulations establish a National Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee, which meets quarterly, consisting of the heads of the above DOL agencies, to oversee that coordination. A Regional Farm Labor Coordinated Enforcement Committee, which meets quarterly, is established in each DOL regional office. The Regional Committee is made up of the head of each of the above Agencies' regional offices. Each Regional Committee holds at least one annual public meeting to discuss farm labor issues.

Additional Information: Since 1980, a number of changes have taken place in DOL's farm labor activities, such as: The Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act has been replaced by the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act; the title of the head of the National Committee has been changed from Under Secretary to Deputy Secretary; the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 has amended the Immigration and Nationality Act, authorizing DOL to enforce work contracts executed by employers of alien (H-2A) farmworkers; the role of States in operating the Employment Service under the Wagner-Peyser Act was enhanced in 1982; regional offices of the Employment Standards Administration no longer exist and the regional farm labor enforcement role is now coordinated by the Regional Administrator for Wage Hour; and the Assistant Secretary for Policy has assumed a role in farm labor programs at the national level. These and other changes necessitate updating the coordinated enforcement regulations.

2075. ADMINISTRATIVE CLAIMS UNDER THE FEDERAL TORTS CLAIMS ACT AND RELATED STATUTES

Priority: Other

Legal Authority: 28 USC 2672; 31 USC 3721; 29 USC 1706(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 15

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will revise existing regulations issued pursuant to the Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA) and the Military Personnel and Civilian Employees' Claims Act (MPCECA) to conform to previously issued delegations of authority. The regulation will revise the existing regulation to reflect delegations of authority to regional offices of the Office of the Solicitor to process and decide FTCA claims which seek damages up to $25,000 and which delegated authority to process and decide claims in excess of $25,000 to the Counsel for Claims. It will clarify procedures for submitting and processing claims and revise outdated addresses and telephone numbers. A number of changes are also necessary to clarify the manner in which claims are submitted and the manner in which an award is calculated. The existing regulation will be amended to reflect a change in underlying statutory authority for payment of claims arising out of the operation of Job Corps Centers, to reflect an increase in maximum amount payable on such claims and to clarify the manner in which such claims are submitted.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 4

Abstract: The Service Contract Act (SCA) applies to Federal contracts principally for the furnishing of services through the use of service employees and, on contracts over $2,500 where the predecessor contract was not subject to a collective bargaining agreement, requires the Department of Labor to determine prevailing wages and fringe benefits in the locality to be paid to various classifications of workers on the contract. Prevailing wage determinations issued by the Department, which become part of the Federal contract, establish the minimum compensation for employees performing on that contract. The Service Employees International Union (SEIU) sued DOL in March 1991 over DOL's methodology for determining health and welfare fringe benefits, and for not periodically updating fringe benefit levels. The District Court remanded the case to DOL for exhaustion of administrative remedies, which led to the DOL's Board of Service Contract Appeals decision that remanded the case to the Wage Hour Division to consider alternative methods of implementing the statute. DOL is developing information on the occupational mix of service contract employees utilizing procurement data in the Federal Procurement Data System, and a survey of SCA-covered contracts is expected to be completed in early 1996. This study is expected to provide information necessary to more fully develop proposed fringe benefit methodologies and will also provide data for purposes of economic impact analyses. A notice of proposed rulemaking will invite comment on alternatives for developing an appropriate SCA fringe benefit determination procedure.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, May 11, 1995. Final, Statutory, October 1, 1995.

Abstract: The Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 signed on October 13, 1994, amends several Acts administered by the Department of Labor: (1) It amends the Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act (CWHSSA) to limit its applicability to contracts in an amount of $100,000 or greater. (2) It amends the Davis-Bacon Act (DB) to provide waivers from the Act's prevailing wage requirements under selected laws for volunteers performing services to a State or local government or agency and for volunteers performing services to a public or private nonprofit recipient of Federal assistance. (3) It repeals section 7299 of title 10 of the U.S. Code which applied the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (PCA) to contracts for construction, alteration, furnishing, or equipping of naval vessels. It also amends the PCA to eliminate the requirements that contractors on covered contracts be either manufacturers or regular dealers in the items to be supplied under the contract but retained the Secretary of Labor's authority to define the terms "regular dealer" and "manufacturer." Two separate regulatory actions are planned: (1) a notice of proposed rulemaking to implement the changes to CWHSSA and PCA (see 60 FR 46553; 9/7/95); and (2) proposed regulations governing the use of volunteers on certain federally-assisted construction projects subject to DB.

Abstract: In accordance with the authority provided by Title V of the Independent Offices Appropriations Act of 1952, often referred to as the "user fee statute," and the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1995 (PL 103-333), the Department is proposing to establish and collect user fees to recover the costs of providing certain services that are required by law and, without which, the recipients of the services would not legally be allowed to engage in particular employment practices. The services for which user fees are to be collected include processing applications and issuing farm labor contractor certificates of registrations under the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Workers Protection Act; processing applications and issuing certificates authorizing employers to employ certain students at special minimum wages under section 14(b) of the Fair Labor Standards Act; and processing applications and issuing certificates authorizing employers to employ homeworkers under section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 contains certain labor standards requirements for foreign agricultural workers employed under the H-2A foreign agricultural worker program, as well as for U.S. workers hired by employers who utilize foreign agricultural workers. The standards relate to pay, working conditions, housing, transportation and recruitment. The Employment Standards Administration issued an interim final rule on June 1, 1987 (53 FR 20524) that incorporates the labor standards issued by the Employment and Training Administration (ETA) and sets forth procedures for enforcement of these labor standards.

Abstract: This rule implements regulations governing the filing and enforcement of attestations by employers seeking to use aliens admitted as students on F-1 visas (hereafter F-1 student) in off-campus work. Under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), as amended by the Immigration Act of 1990, employers are required to submit these attestations to DOL and the educational institution in order for such students, if otherwise qualified, to receive work authorizations from the Attorney General. The attestation process has been administered by ETA, while complaints and investigations regarding violations are handled by ESA. Statutory authority for the initial program expired on September 30, 1994, but on October 25, 1994, Public Law 103-416 revived and extended the program through September 30, 1996.

Abstract: Section 13(a)(15) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) provides an exemption from minimum wage and overtime compensation for domestic service employees engaged in providing companionship services. Section 13(b)(21) of the FLSA provides an exemption from overtime compensation for live-in domestic service employees. DOL proposed certain technical amendments to update the regulations, 29 CFR Part 552, Application of the Fair Labor Standards Act to Domestic Service, and to clarify that these exemptions are applicable to third-party employers or temporary help agencies only where the domestic service worker is jointly employed by the third-party employer or temporary help agency and the family or household using their services. (58 FR 69310) After reviewing the public comments, the Department intends to adopt the technical changes to update the regulations, including a revision necessitated by recently-enacted amendments to Title II of the Social Security Act under Public Law 103-387 (Social Security Domestic Employment Reform Act; 10/22/94, (see 60 FR 46766) and to reopen and extend the period for filing written comments on proposed revisions affecting third-party employers (Section 552.109).

Abstract: The Energy Policy Act of 1992, Public Law 102-486, was enacted on October 24, 1992. Among other provisions, this law amended the employee protection provisions for nuclear whistleblowers under former Section 210 of the ERA. The amendments affect only ERA whistleblower complaints and do not extend to the procedures established in 29 CFR Part 24 for handling employee whistleblower complaints under the Federal statutory employee protection provisions other than the ERA. The legislative amendments to ERA apply to whistleblower claims filed under section 211(b)(1) of the ERA as amended (42 USC section 5851(b)(1)) on or after October 24, 1992, the date of enactment of section 2902 of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (section 2902, Public Law 102-486; 106 Stat. 2776). The Department proposes to establish modified procedures and time frames for handling ERA complaints under 29 CFR Part 24 to implement the statutory amendments.

Abstract: Under the 1990 Amendments to the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), DOL is responsible for implementing Section 258 of INA, which establishes certain requirements for, and places certain limitations on, foreign crewmembers performing longshore work in U.S. ports. These regulations govern the filing and enforcement of attestations by employers seeking to use foreign crewmembers, which are filed with DOL in order to be allowed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to use these crewmembers to perform specified longshore activities. ETA administers the attestation process, while complaints and investigations regarding the attestations are handled by ESA. In two separate enactments (PL 103-198 (107 Stat. 2304) and PL 103-206 (107 Stat. 2419)), Congress recently enacted exceptions to the limitations on performance of longshore work by foreign crewmembers in the State of Alaska. The Department intends to promulgate rules as necessary to implement the statutory exception.

Abstract: Under section 4.7 of 29 CFR Part 4, any service contract of the Federal Government in an amount less than $2,500 that is subject to the McNamara-O'Hara Service Contract Act of 1965 must contain a clause specifying that the contractor or any subcontractor shall pay the minimum wage under the Fair Labor Standards Act. This rule deletes the clause requirement to conform the regulations to a new class of Federal government purchases established by the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994. Requirements otherwise applicable to Federal contracting are eliminated for purchases under $2,500 for the purpose of facilitating the use of government credit cards for the making of low dollar value purchases of supplies and services. The rule facilitates the streamlining objectives of the new micro-purchase authority established by the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1552

Abstract: U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on March 25, 1987 that the legislative veto provisions were unconstitutional but the first right-to-hire provisions were constitutional, therefore, rulemaking can proceed on the monetary benefits aspect of the employee protection provisions. In 1991 the DOT determined there were no job losses due to deregulation. In September 1993, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia ordered the DOT to develop broader guidelines to apply to the air carriers, which may result in a finding of job losses due to deregulation. Therefore, rulemaking is proceeding on the monetary provisions of the employee protection provisions.

Abstract: Experience in several recent disasters has highlighted the complexity and time-consuming nature of the monetary benefit provisions of the current regulations and brought into question other provisions of the current regulations which are perceived to be unduly restrictive and/or result in perceived inequities in some disaster situations. These issues will be addressed in two stages. First, an ANPRM was published, with a 60-day comment period, on 12/08/94 at 59 FR 63670. This ANPRM outlined provisions in the Disaster Unemployment Assistance (DUA) program regulations (20 CFR Part 625), other than the monetary benefit provisions, that have come into question and solicits public comment and suggestions relative to these provisions and on other provisions for review and potential revision in a future NPRM. Second, an interim final rule will be published with a 60-day comment period to simplify the monetary benefit provisions. This rule will eliminate cumbersome individual and agency administrative provisions, remove inconsistencies in the establishment of DUA weekly amounts, and simplify the formula to establish DUA weekly amounts so as to benefit disaster impacted individuals.

Legal Authority: PL 103-182 title V

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 617

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 1, 1995.
Final regulation to be issued to the maximum extent feasible by 12/31/95.

Abstract: Title V of the North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act (PL 103-182) amends Chapter 2 of Title II of the Trade Act of 1974 by adding a new Transitional Adjustment Assistance Program (NAFTA-TAA) for workers who lose their jobs because of increased imports from or a shift of production to Mexico and Canada. Most of the provisions of Title V are in the form of amendments to Chapter 2, Title II, of the Trade Act. While some of the provisions are not in the form of amendments to the Trade Act, they nonetheless must be given effect in implementing the NAFTA-TAA program. A proposed rule to amend the regulations on the trade adjustment assistance program for workers was published in the Federal Register on January 17, 1995. Comments on this proposed rule are requested before March 20, 1995.

Abstract: It is the purpose of title IV, section 402, of the Job Training Partnership Act to provide job training, employment opportunities, and other services for those individuals who suffer chronic seasonal unemployment and underemployment in the agriculture industry. These conditions have been substantially aggravated by continual advancements in technology and mechanization, resulting in displacement, and contribute significantly to the Nation's rural employment problem. This problem is Federal in scope. No alternative solutions are under consideration at this time. Benefits include fuller rural employment. Over $80 million is appropriated annually by Congress for this program. This rule would implement changes made by the 1992 amendments to JTPA.

The alternatives considered were to implement the program under existing nonregulatory authority or to allow the States to develop such programs voluntarily. The cost of the program is the one or two staff years per State needed to conduct the RQC

The regulation will clarify the scope of the exception from the MEWA definition for plans maintained under or pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements by providing criteria which will serve to distinguish health benefit arrangements which are maintained by legitimate unions pursuant to bona fide collective bargaining agreements from health insurance arrangements promoted and marketed under the guise of ERISA-covered plans exempt from state insurance regulation. The regulation will also serve to limit the extent to which health plans maintained pursuant to bona fide collective bargaining agreements may extend plan coverage to individuals not covered by such agreements.

Abstract: Section 502(l) of ERISA requires the Secretary of Labor to assess a civil penalty against a fiduciary who breaches a fiduciary duty under, or commits a violation of, part 4 of Title I of ERISA, or any other person who knowingly participates in such breach or violation. The Department has published an interim rule setting forth the procedures for the assessment of penalties under ERISA section 502(l) and for petitioning the Secretary to exercise his or her discretion to waive or reduce the mandated assessment, as well as a proposed rule that defines the following pivotal terms contained in section 502(l): "applicable recovery amount," "breach of fiduciary responsibility or violation," "settlement agreement", and "court order." The Department intends to finalize these two regulations.

Abstract: PWBA has undertaken a comprehensive review of the current reporting and disclosure framework to identify changes that will serve to assure the disclosure of useful and timely information, while eliminating any unnecessary administrative burdens and costs on plans and plan sponsors attendant to compliance with these requirements. As an initial step in this process, PWBA solicited comments, recommendations and information from the public concerning the need for regulatory and legislative changes in the disclosure area. PWBA concluded that only marginal changes to the disclosure requirements can be accomplished through the regulatory process and, therefore, reform efforts should focus on regulatory changes relating to the streamlining of the Form 5500 Series, and related annual reporting regulations, in addition to possible legislative changes to both the reporting and disclosure provisions.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 29 USC 502(c)(2)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 2560; 29 CFR 2570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 502(c)(2) of ERISA provides the Secretary of Labor with the authority to assess civil penalties of up to $1,000 a day against plan administrators who fail or refuse to file complete and timely annual reports (Form 5500 Series Annual Return/Reports) as required under section 101(b)(4) of ERISA and the Secretary's regulations. PWBA has maintained a program for the assessment of civil penalties for noncompliance with the annual reporting requirements. Under this program, plan administrators filing late annual reports may be assessed $50 per day for each day an annual report is filed after the date on which the annual report(s) was required to be filed, without regard to any extensions for filing. Plan administrators who fail to file an annual report may be assessed a penalty of $300 per day, up to $30,000 per year, until a complete annual report is filed. The Department may, in its discretion, waive all or part of the assessment of these civil penalties upon a showing by the administrator that there was reasonable cause for the failure to file a complete and timely annual report. The implementation of a Delinquent Filer Voluntary Compliance Program, under which administrators otherwise subject to the assessment of higher civil penalties will be permitted to pay reduced civil penalties for voluntarily complying with the annual reporting requirements under Title I of ERISA, encourages reporting compliance.

Abstract: The Office of Labor-Management Standards (OLMS) is proposing to amend Receipts and Disbursements Report (Form LM-21) to narrow the scope of reporting. A Receipts and Disbursements Report is required in the circumstances specified in Section 203(b) of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, as amended (LMRDA). It is required to be filed by any labor relations consultant, or other individual or organization, who has made or received payment as a party to an agreement or arrangement with an employer, pursuant to which he has undertaken persuader or information-supplying activities on behalf of the employer. The proposed amendment would reflect reporting guidelines established in Donovan v. The Rose Law Firm, 768 F.2d 964 (8th Cir. 1985). This judicial decision narrowed the scope of reporting to eliminate reporting of receipts and disbursements in connection with labor relations advice and services rendered to employers for whom no persuader or information-supplying activities were undertaken.

Abstract: A NPRM has been issued soliciting comments on a proposed revision of the Department's regulation on the reasonableness of a union's meeting attendance requirement for union officer candidacy so that the regulation will conform to the decision of the D.C. Circuit in Doyle v. Brock, 821 F.2d 788 (1987). 29 CFR 452.38 currently provides that the reasonableness of a union rule requiring candidates to have attended a specified number of membership meetings during the period immediately preceding the election must be gauged in the light of all the circumstances of the particular case, including the impact of the rule (i.e., the number or percentage or members disqualified by its application). In Doyle, the court found that the Secretary was arbitrary and capricious in not bringing litigation against a local in connection with its meeting attendance requirement that disqualified 97 percent of the membership. The court found that the impact of the rule was sufficient to make it unreasonable without regard to any other circumstances. The NPRM was prepared after reviewing comments from the public on the previously issued ANPRM.

Abstract: The Office of the American Workplace proposes to revise the guidelines concerning its procedures for administering section 5333(b) of the Federal Transit law, commonly known as section 13(l). These revised guidelines will replace the existing guidelines in their entirety. Section 5333(b) requires that certain protective arrangements for transit employees be in place as a condition of Federal financial assistance for transit projects. The proposed changes have been developed to standardize the certification process, thereby insuring certification of protective arrangements in a prompt manner after an application has been submitted, and to make the certification process more predictable for the parties involved.

Abstract: This regulation implements Executive Order 12954, "Ensuring the Economical and Efficient Administration and Completion of Federal Government Contracts." The Order states that it is the policy of the executive branch of the Federal Government in procuring goods and services that, to ensure the economical and efficient administration and completion of Federal Government contracts, contracting agencies shall not contract with employers that permanently replace lawfully striking employees. The regulation establishes a procedure for the Department of Labor to determine if an organizational unit of a Federal contractor has permanently replaced lawfully striking employees and, if so, whether it is appropriate to terminate the contract for convenience and/or debar the contractor.

Abstract: The Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 established the first comprehensive respirable dust standards for coal mines. These standards were designed to reduce the incidence of coal workers' pneumoconiosis ("black lung") and silicosis and eventually eliminate these diseases. While significant progress has been made toward improving the health conditions in our Nation's coal mines, miners continue to be at risk of developing occupational lung disease, according to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH). On January 31, 1995, Secretary of Labor Robert Reich announced his intention to appoint an advisory committee to make recommendations for the elimination of black lung and silicosis among coal miners. The advisory committee is expected to convene in late 1995.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 56; 30 CFR 57; 30 CFR 77

Abstract: Accidents involving surface haulage equipment constitute a major safety problem in the mining industry. A review of fatal mining accidents during the past 3 years shows that 30% of the deaths involved surface haulage equipment. This equipment includes large 240 ton haulage vehicles, over-the-road trucks, front-end loaders, and other equipment. Causes of surface haulage accidents include brake failures, unsafe grades, overloaded vehicles, and "blindspots." To address this problem, MSHA intends to issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking which would request information on the safe operation of surface haulage equipment and which would focus on these and other factors linked to accidents involving surface haulage equipment.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75

Abstract: Recent fatalities in underground coal mines involving roof-bolting machines indicate the need to both modify the design of such machines and take additional precautions in their use. MSHA has evaluated roof-bolting machines currently in use focusing on potential hazards to the machine operators during the drilling and roof-bolt installation procedures. MSHA believes that machine design features may contribute to or cause accidents, and that changes in machine design and operating procedures would make operating the equipment safer for the machine operator. The Agency intends to issue an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to obtain additional information and data on mine operators' experiences with these machines. The Agency is exploring the use of negotiated rulemaking to address this issue.

Abstract: Several epidemiological studies have found that diesel exhaust presents potential health risks to workers. These possible health effects range from headaches and nausea to respiratory disease and cancer.

In 1988, a Secretarial advisory committee made recommendations to the Secretary of Labor concerning safety and health standards for the use of diesel-powered equipment in underground coal mines. One of the recommendations was for the Secretary of Labor to set in motion a mechanism whereby a diesel particulate standard could be set. Based on that recommendation, the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) published an advance notice of proposed rulemaking, in January 1992, seeking information relative to exposure limits, risk assessment, sampling and monitoring methods, and control feasibility. Because of the potential health risk to miners from exposure to diesel particulate, MSHA is investigating a variety of approaches that would control the exposure of miners to diesel particulate.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75

Abstract: Since 1970, Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) regulations have generally prohibited belt haulage entries from being used to ventilate active working places. The intention of this prohibition is to prevent smoke from a belt conveyor fire from being coursed to miners in their workplace. Improved technology, including sophisticated atmospheric monitoring systems, has since made it possible to safely use "belt air" to ventilate active working places. This rulemaking would permit the use of belt air, provided that certain safety requirements are met. In many cases, the use of belt air may result in more efficient and effective ventilation systems, enhancing the health and safety of miners. Additionally, because this regulation will eliminate the need for mine operators to seek regulatory variances from MSHA, costs and burdens on both industry and MSHA will be reduced.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75

Abstract: There are two major types of coal mines -- bituminous and anthracite. The mining methods used and hazards encountered in underground anthracite mines are significantly different from underground bituminous coal mines. Mining methods in anthracite mines include minimal use of mechanized equipment, slow rate of advance into the coal seam, pitching and undulating seams, and non-explosiveness of coal dust. Because of these differences, some mine operators find it difficult to comply with existing safety standards at their anthracite mines. These individual anthracite mine operators must request a variance from existing standards to change the requirements. The variance process costs time and money. Because anthracite mines are usually small operations, this burden can be significant. MSHA has received 250 variance requests from anthracite mine operators over the last 2 years. MSHA intends to issue a proposed rule to modify several existing safety standards to address more appropriately the specific conditions of the anthracite mining industry.

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 56; 30 CFR 57

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing standards for metal and nonmetal mines require that selected supervisors be trained in first aid and that first-aid training be made available to all interested persons. The intent of this standard was to ensure that, in the event of an emergency, a person competent to administer first aid was available at the mine site during each working shift. MSHA recognizes that there are persons highly trained and competent to administer first aid other than supervisors; yet, the standard, as written, does not allow the mine operator this flexibility. MSHA, therefore, is developing a proposed rule to revise this standard to remove the requirement that selected supervisors have to be trained in first aid, and to substitute the requirement that a person trained and capable of administering first aid be available at the mine on all shifts. This proposal would be consistent with a petition for rulemaking submitted to the Secretary by a large segment of the mining industry.

Abstract: Today's complex mining environment subjects miners to well-known hazards, such as coal mine dust and crystalline silica; to emerging hazards, including hazardous wastes burned as fuel supplements at cement kilns; and to changing hazards from the many chemicals brought onto mine property. This rule would provide miners with the means to receive necessary information on the hazards of chemicals to which they are exposed and the actions necessary to protect them from such hazards. In developing this rule, MSHA has reviewed OSHA's hazard communication standard, information collected by NIOSH, and public comments. For its final rule, MSHA intends to publish a user-friendly regulation which will facilitate compliance by mine operators, while providing increased health and safety protection to miners.

Abstract: The Mine Safety and Health Administration's (MSHA's) current air quality standards for exposure to hazardous airborne contaminants were promulgated over 20 years ago. They do not fully protect today's miners, who are potentially exposed to an array of toxic chemicals, including lead, cyanide, arsenic, benzene, asbestos, and other well-documented hazards. Some miners have developed occupational illness (e.g., lead poisoning, acute cyanide poisoning, and silicosis) as a result of their exposure. This final rule would update permissible exposure limits (PELs) applicable to hazards encountered in metal and nonmetal and coal mines, revise requirements for exposure monitoring, improve precautions for handling restricted-use chemicals, provide for miner observation of monitoring, and establish provisions for medical surveillance and transfer of miners required to use respirators and miners exposed to certain carcinogens.

Abstract: The Secretaries of Labor and Health and Human Services have issued a joint proposed finding that the average concentration of respirable dust to which each miner is exposed can be measured accurately over a single shift. This joint finding would also rescind their earlier joint finding published in July 1971 and affirmed in February 1972. MSHA believes that enforcement based on single, full-shift samples will enhance mine operators' compliance with the requirement to maintain the average concentration of respirable dust in the mine atmosphere during each shift where miners work or travel at or below the applicable standard.

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: To ensure that only safe products are used in mines, MSHA sets approval requirements and tests products itself. This rulemaking would allow MSHA to accept testing of certain mine equipment performed by independent laboratories. It also would allow MSHA to approve products which satisfied alternative testing and evaluation requirements, provided that the alternative requirements were equivalent to MSHA's own, or could be enhanced to be equivalent. By reducing its testing activities, MSHA could direct more resources toward verifying that products in use have been manufactured in compliance with the relevant approval. This rulemaking is consistent with a recommendation of the National Performance Review.

Abstract: The final rule would implement new procedures and requirements for testing and approval of flame-resistant conveyor belts to be used in underground mines. These revisions would replace the existing flame test for conveyor belts. Current regulations require that conveyor belts be flame resistant in accordance with specifications of the Secretary. As part of this rulemaking, the Agency also would promulgate conforming amendments to safety standards.

Abstract: In mining operations, the majority of the fatalities associated with confined spaces occur in storage bins, hoppers, tanks, and stockpiles. The primary hazards to miners occur from being trapped by shifting piles of loose materials, falling into materials, and being struck by overhanging materials. Due to the many chemicals used and stored in mining, the toxic and physical hazards encountered in mining are identical to those confined space hazards that exist in general industry. MSHA intends to explore both regulatory and non-regulatory options to address the hazards associated with working in confined spaces at mines.

2151. SAFETY STANDARDS FOR METHANE IN METAL AND NONMETAL MINES

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 57

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current MSHA regulations place metal and nonmetal mines with a history of, or a potential for, methane liberation (gassy mines) into several categories. Safety standards for methane detection and prevention apply to a mine depending on its category. Recent legal decisions have narrowed the application of existing gassy mine standards, leading MSHA to conclude that the standards may need to be revised to protect adequately all miners who work in gassy mines. This action would revise the existing safety standards for methane in metal and nonmetal mines to address dangerous levels of methane in outburst cavities in abandoned, idle, and worked out areas of category II-A mines. It would further address the use of approved equipment in category III mines. The Agency is exploring the use of negotiated rulemaking to address this issue.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6101 et seq Age Discrimination Act of 1975

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, September 10, 1979.
45 CFR 90 requires publication of the NPRM no later than 90 days after publication of government-wide rule, and submission to HHS of final rule within 120 days of NPRM.

Abstract: The proposed regulatory action is necessary to comply with the Department's statutory and regulatory obligations under the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended (the "Act"). The Act and the general, government-wide implementing rule issued by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) (45 CFR 90) require each Federal agency providing financial assistance to any program or activity to publish proposed regulations implementing the Act no later than 90 days after the publication date of the government-wide rule, and to submit final agency regulations to HHS no later than 120 days after publication of the NPRM. As a practical matter, while DOL has not issued proposed or final regulations under the Age Discrimination Act, it has complied with its enforcement obligations. Furthermore, discrimination on the basis of age is prohibited under Section 167 of the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982, and the implementing regulations at 29 CFR 34.

Abstract: The proposed revision to the nonprocurement common rule is issued in response to Executive Order 12689 and section 2455 of the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 ("the Act") which was signed into law October 13, 1994. E.O. 12689 requires agencies to establish regulations for reciprocal government-wide effect across procurement and nonprocurement areas for each agency's debarment and suspension actions, after technical differences between the procurement and nonprocurement regulations governing debarments and suspensions are resolved. Section 2455 of the Act provides that the debarment, suspension, or other exclusions of a participant in a procurement activity under the Federal Acquisition Regulation, or in a nonprocurement activity under regulations issued pursuant to E.O. 12549, shall be given reciprocal government-wide effect.

Abstract: On July 19, 1993, the Oil, Chemical, and Atomic Workers International Union (OCAW) and Public Citizen's Health Research Group (HRG) petitioned for an emergency temporary standard to lower the permissible exposure limit (PEL) for hexavalent chromium compounds (CrCL) to 0.5 micrograms of hexavalent chromium per cubic meter of air (ug/ms) as an eight hour, time weighted average (TWA). The current PEL is 100 ug/m3, as an 8-hour time-weighted average. Occupational exposure to hexavalent chromium is known to cause lung cancer, bronchial asthma, nasal septum perforations, skin ulcers, and irritative dermatitis. CrVL includes chromic acid, chromates, lead chromate, and zinc chromate, all measured as Cr03. OSHA thoroughly reviewed the petition. While OSHA agrees that there is clear evidence that exposure to CrVL at the current PEL of 100 ug/m3 can result in significant risk of lung cancer and other CrVL-related illnesses, based on the Agency's analysis, OSHA finds that the currently available data are not sufficiently definitive in certain critical areas to support the need for an ETS, particularly in light of the extremely stringent statutory criteria for issuing and sustaining such action. While OSHA is denying the petition for an ETS, the Agency will issue a Section 6(b) rulemaking action to be responsible to the stakeholders' requests and to protect the 200,000-700,000 workers exposed to hazards of chromium annually.

Abstract: Under the Reagan Administration, OSHA embarked on a project to update and consolidate the varying OSHA standards that were applied in the shipbuilding, shiprepair, and shipbreaking industry. A shipyard employer was subject to both the "shipyard" standards that applied only to shipboard hazards and OSHA's general industry standards for landside operations. This resulted in inconsistent, and sometimes contradictory, requirements for essentially the same operation. Phase 1 of this project aimed at establishing a truly vertical standard for shipyard employment and addressed six subparts of shipyard employment safety standards (Confined Spaces, Welding, Access/Egress, Personal Protective Equipment, Fall Protection and Scaffolding). Proposals on these hazards were issued in November 1988 (53 FR 48092). The remaining hazards were categorized as Phase II of the consolidation project (including general work practices and fire safety). This action is endorsed by the Shipyard Advisory Committee which was chartered in 1989 to update and consolidate existing shipyard standards. This particular proposal will consolidate and update the provisions of 29 CFR 1910 (general industry) and 29 CFR (shipyard employment) into one comprehensive Part 1915 that will apply to all activities and areas in shipyards. The operations that are addressed in this subpart relate to housekeeping, illumination, sanitation, first aid, and lockout/tagout. About 75,000 workers are exposed annually to these hazards.

Abstract: Under the Reagan Administration, OSHA issued an ANPRM on respirators to address 6,850-11,000 cancer fatalities and 66,500 illnesses occurring annually. Existing standards had been in place for more than 20 years and did not take into consideration the current state-of-the-art for respiratory protection. In addition, the general industry standard for respirators contains redundancies and includes several advisory provisions which should be eliminated or changed. OSHA reviewed the current standards and issued a proposal to modernize the requirements on November 15, 1994 (59 FR 58884). In developing the proposal, OSHA worked closely with the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) and the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA). On April 17, 1995 (60 FR 19162), OSHA extended the comment period until May 15, 1995. Hearings began on June 6, 1995 and ended on June 20, 1995. The post-hearing comment period is scheduled to end on September 20, 1995.

On May 25, 1995 (60 FR 27707), OSHA published a notice to schedule a technical panel discussion on assigned protection factors as part of the pending rulemaking hearing.

2169. SCAFFOLDS (PART 1926) (CONSTRUCTION: SAFER SCAFFOLDS)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 40 USC 333

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the Reagan Administration, OSHA issued a proposal (51 FR 42680) to address the 23 fatalities and 15,600 injuries still occurring annually from scaffolds in the construction industry. The existing OSHA standard is poorly formatted and contains unnecessary specific coverage for certain types of scaffolds. The proposal raises several significant issues including (1) the use of crossbraces as guardrails, (2) the use of fall protection during scaffold erection and dismantling operations, and (3) the role of engineers in scaffold design.

2170. SAFETY AND HEALTH REGULATIONS FOR LONGSHORING (PART 1918) AND MARINE TERMINALS (PART 1917) (SHIPYARDS: PROTECTING LONGSHORING WORKERS)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current longshoring standards have been in place since 1960. The language in many instances addresses the hazards of cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Since much of the current standard is out-of-date, there are problems with compliance. Settlement agreements following the 1983 Marine Terminal standard (49 FR 30886), identified problems with OSHA's existing longshoring standard. Also, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the National Maritime Safety Association requested revisions to the current standard. On June 6, 1994, (59 FR 28594) OSHA issued a proposal to address the 18 fatalities and 7,593 injuries occurring annually. The proposed revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for modern, effective, and safe work practices in the cargo handling industry. OSHA held public hearings on this proposal and the record closed 4/30/95.

Abstract: Under the Reagan Administration, OSHA embarked on a project to update and consolidate the varying OSHA standards that were applied in the shipbuilding, shiprepair, and shipbreaking industry. A shipyard employer was subject to both the "shipyard" standards that applied only to shipboard hazards and OSHA's general industry standards for landside operations. This resulted in inconsistent, and sometimes contradictory, requirements for essentially the same operation.

Phase 1 of this project aimed at establishing a truly vertical standard for shipyard employment and addressed six subparts of shipyard employment safety standards (Confined Spaces, Welding, Access/Egress, Personal Protective Equipment, Fall Protection and Scaffolding). Proposals on these hazards were issued in November 1988 (53 FR 48092). The remaining hazards were categorized as Phase II of the consolidation project (including general work practices and fire safety). This action is endorsed by the Shipyard Advisory Committee which was chartered in 1989 to update and consolidate existing shipyard standards.

This particular regulatory action will revise the existing shipyard employment standards covering scaffolds and will consolidate all related and applicable 29 CFR part 1910 provisions. It will develop, in part, performance-oriented standards, address current gaps in coverage, address new technology, and eliminate outmoded and redundant provisions.

Abstract: On October 10, 1985, EPA referred 1,3-butadiene (BD) to OSHA for possible regulatory action under section 9(a) of the Toxic Substance Control Act. On April 11, 1986, OSHA responded to the EPA referral indicating that the Agency has preliminarily concluded that BD poses risk to the occupationally exposed population at the current OSHA permissible exposure limit and that the risk can be reduced or prevented through the promulgation of a revised standard. On October 1, 1986 (51 FR 35003), OSHA published an ANPRM initiating regulatory action within the meaning of section 9(a) of TSCA. Comments were submitted to OSHA by December 30, 1986. Based on the comments received in response to the ANPRM, OSHA developed a proposal which was published on August 10, 1990. Hearings were held in Washington, D.C. on January 15, 1991, and in New Orleans, Louisiana on February 20, 1991. Submission of the post-hearing comments and briefs were scheduled to end on June 22, and July 22, 1991 respectively; however, OSHA extended the dates to September 27, and October 28, 1991. The post-hearing comments and briefs were again extended and finally closed on November 26, 1991, and February 10, 1992, respectively.

Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) on April 2, 1987, (52 FR 10586). OSHA used the information received in response to the ANPRM, as well as other information and analysis, and published a proposal, March 23, 1993 (58 FR 15526), that would reduce the permissible exposure limits for four glycol ethers and provide protection for approximately 46,000 workers exposed to the substances.

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the UAW to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride. This request was based on information obtained from the EPA and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. An estimated 209,479 workers are exposed to the hazards of MC annually. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to MC and OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard. OSHA published an ANPRM on November 24, 1986 (51 FR 42257). After reviewing and analyzing the comments received in response to the ANPRM, OSHA published a proposal in the Federal Register on November 7, 1991 (56 FR 57036). The comment period closed on April 6, 1992. On June 9, 1992, OSHA published a notice of informal public hearings that were held in Washington, DC September 16-24 and in San Francisco, CA on October 14-16, 1992. The post-hearing comment period for new evidence closed on January 14, 1993, and the final date for submitting post-hearing summations and briefs was March 15, 1993. The record was reopened on March 11, 1994, for 45 days to address MC exposure in the furniture stripping industry, an NCI study relating brain cancer to occupational exposure to MC, and information regarding the use of MC as a solvent in adhesive formulation in flexible foam manufacturing.

Abstract: A critical element of OSHA's comprehensive enforcement strategy under the Occupational Safety and Health Act is assurance that employers have abated cited hazards. A May 1991, General Accounting Office report entitled, "Options to Improve Hazard-Abatement Procedures in the Workplace," pointed out deficiencies in OSHA's abatement verification procedures and how they could be improved. The Department of Labor Inspector General, as well as OSHA's internal audits, also identified similar problems. Currently, unless an employer voluntarily complies with OSHA's request to submit documentation, OSHA has no means to require employers to submit proof of hazard abatement. From 1972 to the present, OSHA has implemented several administrative measures to induce employers to provide abatement documentation, but at least 30 percent of cited employers still do not voluntarily do so. OSHA's April 19, 1994, proposal (29 FR 18508) would require cited employers to provide hazard abatement documentations. The NPRM addresses the kinds of evidence to be required, what notice to employees is needed, potential penalties for non-reporting, possible certification forms for compliance, and other questions.

Abstract: The Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-499) established the criteria under which OSHA should develop and promulgate the Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response standards. OSHA issued an interim final standard on December 19, 1986, (51 FR 45654) to comply with the law requirements. OSHA issued a permanent final rule for provisions on training to replace this interim rule on March 9, 1989 (29 CFR 1910.120).

On December 22, 1987, as part of an omnibus budget reconciliation bill (PL 100-202), section 126(d)(3) of SARA was amended to include accreditation of training programs for hazardous waste operations. OSHA issued a proposal on January 26, 1990 (55 FR 2776) addressing this issue. OSHA held a public comment period following the issuance of the proposal and held a limited reopening of the public record in June 1992 to allow additional public comment on an effectiveness of training study conducted by OSHA. OSHA has also developed nonmandatory guidelines to further address minimum training criteria.

2180. CONTROL OF HAZARDOUS ENERGY (LOCKOUT)—CONSTRUCTION (PART 1926) (PREVENTING CONSTRUCTION INJURIES/FATALITIES: LOCKOUT)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Abstract: OSHA was petitioned by UAW in May 1979 to issue an emergency temporary standard for locking out machinery and equipment. OSHA did not issue an emergency temporary standard, but did issue a general industry rule on September 1, 1989 (54 FR 36644). Still, OSHA has not yet issued a rule for the preventing accidents during equipment repair and maintenance for the construction industry. 4,000,000 workers annually are exposed to this hazard in the workplace. As a result, OSHA intends to issue a proposal to address this industry.

Hazards at construction sites resulting from the absence of effective lockout/tagout procedures to control hazardous energy appear to be caused by several factors, all associated with the nature of the construction industry. These factors basically related to such considerations as the types of machines and equipment found in construction; the makeup of the industry in which employment is relatively "short term," lasting only as long as the length of the current project; the presence of multiple employers having different employer/employee relationships and the temporary nature of the "in-the-field" maintenance activity. OSHA expects the proposal to address lockout-related hazards in those construction work-site areas in which the available data indicate these hazards to be major.

Abstract: This is the second leading cause of fatalities in the private sector, behind only highway vehicle fatalities. On average, there are 107 fatalities and 38,330 injuries annually in the workplace.

The present standard has proven to be ineffective in reducing the number of accidents involving powered industrial trucks. As a result, there has been strong Congressional interest that OSHA issue a new standard to more effectively address this hazard. OSHA intends to revise the present standard to increase its effectiveness by requiring, in performance language, initial and refresher training as necessary. The frequency of the refresher training will be based upon the ability of the vehicle operator to retain the knowledge, skills and abilities to perform the job safely. OSHA will also given guidance as to what information the instruction should include. There will also be other amendments to the standard to increase its effectiveness.

Abstract: OSHA was petitioned in March 1987 by the Action on Smoking or Health (ASH), Public Citizen, and the American Public Health Association to issue an emergency temporary standard on environmental tobacco smoke (ETS) in the workplace. In March 1992, OSHA was petitioned by the AFL-CIO to establish workplace IAQ standards. In December 1992, ASH again petitioned for rulemaking on ETS. In January 1993, Labor Secretary Lynn Martin, under the Bush Administration, directed OSHA to begin rulemaking to address the hazards of exposure to ETS.

Everyday, more than 20 million American workers face an unnecessary health threat because of poor indoor air quality (IAQ) and ETS in the workplace. Thousands of heart disease deaths, hundreds of lung cancer deaths, respiratory disease, legionnaire's disease, asthma, and other ailments are linked to this occupational hazard. More specifically, it is estimated that each year, there are approximately 700 cases of lung cancer and 13,000 deaths from heart disease among nonsmoking workers exposed to ETS. Further, America's workers are at risk of developing over a hundred thousand upper respiratory symptoms, as well as many thousands of headaches from poor indoor air quality. EPA estimates that 20 to 35 percent of all workers in modern mechanically ventilated buildings may experience air-quality problems that could result in illnesses, absenteeism, lost productivity, and discomfort.

Surveys have estimated that as many as 85 percent of the polled companies had some sort of smoking restriction in place, due to either concerns about production safety or employee health and safety. The fact that this is a national problem suggests that it should be solved at the Federal level.

OSHA published a Request for Information on September 20, 1991, to collect information to determine if a standard regulating indoor air quality is justified and feasible. Information was requested on the ventilation system performance necessary to optimize indoor air quality, techniques for improving ventilation, building maintenance programs, existing workplace indoor air policies, and local and State laws addressing indoor air quality.

After reviewing and analyzing available information, OSHA published a proposed rule on April 5, 1994. The proposal would require employers to write and implement indoor air quality compliance plans that would include inspection and maintenance of current building ventilation systems to ensure they are functioning as designed. In buildings where smoking is allowed, the proposal would require designated smoking areas that would be separate, enclosed rooms where the air would be exhausted directly to the outside. Other proposed provisions would require employers to maintain healthy air quality during renovation, remodeling and similar activities. The provisions for indoor air quality would apply to 70 million workers and more than 4.5 million nonindustrial indoor work environments, including schools and training centers, offices, commercial establishments, health care facilities, cafeterias and factory break rooms. ETS provisions would apply to all 6 million industrial and nonindustrial work environments under OSHA jurisdiction. OSHA preliminarily estimates that 5,583 to 32,502 cancer deaths and 97,700 to 577,818 coronary heart diseases related to occupational exposure to ETS will be prevented over the next 45 years. This represents 140 to 722 cancer deaths and 2,094 to 13,001 heart diseases each year. OSHA preliminarily estimates that the proposed standard will prevent 4.5 million upper respiratory problems over the next 45 years. This is approximately 105,000 upper respiratory symptoms per year. These estimates understate the prevalence of building-related symptoms since they only reflect excess risk in air conditioned buildings.

Abstract: In January 1993, OSHA issued a general industry rule on preventing suffocation/explosions in confined spaces. (58 FR 4462) This standard did not apply to the construction industry because of differences in the nature of the worksite. In discussions with the United Steel Workers of America on a settlement agreement for the general industry standard, OSHA agreed to issue a standard to extend the protection to construction workers, appropriate to their work environment. 1,000,000 construction workers are exposed to this hazard annually.

Abstract: Under the Reagan Administration, OSHA embarked on a project to update and consolidate the varying OSHA standards that were applied in the shipbuilding, ship repair, and shipbreaking industry. A shipyard employer was subject to both the "shipyard" standards that applied only to shipboard hazards and OSHA's general industry standards for landslide operations. This resulted in inconsistent, and sometimes contradictory, requirements for essentially the same operation. Phase 1 of this project aimed at establishing a truly vertical standard for shipyard employment and addressed six subparts of shipyard employment safety standards (Confined Spaces, Welding, Access/Egress, Personal Protective Equipment, Fall Protection and Scaffolding). Proposals on these hazards were issued in November 1988 (53 FR 48092). The remaining hazards were categorized as Phase II of the consolidation project (including general work practices and fire safety). This action is endorsed by the Shipyard Advisory Committee which was chartered in 1989 to update and consolidate existing shipyard standards. This particular proposal will consolidate and update the provisions of 29 CFR 1910 and 29 CFR 1915 into one comprehensive Part 1915 that will apply to all activities and areas in shipyards. The operations that are addressed in this subpart relate to fire brigades, fire extinguishers, sprinkler systems, detection systems, alarm systems, fire watches, and emergency plans. 100,000 workers are potentially exposed to these hazards annually.

Long-Term Actions

Abstract: OSHA issued a final standard on preventing suffocation/explosions in confined spaces in general industry on January 14, 1993 (58 FR 4462). OSHA reached a settlement agreement with the United Steel Workers of America in June 1994. As part of this settlement agreement, OSHA issued a proposal on November 28, 1994 (59 FR 60735) proposing minimal revisions to paragraph (k) of the existing rule to clarify the standard and to make compliance easier. OSHA has proposed to state more clearly the employer's duty to ensure effective rescue capability for employees who enter permit-required confined spaces and to allow more flexibility in the point of a retrieval line attachment. OSHA is also asking whether the standard should have provisions to provide affected employees or their representatives with the opportunity to observe the evaluation of confined spaces, including atmospheric testing or monitoring, and to have access to evaluation results. Hearings are scheduled to be held September 27, 1995 - October 2, 1995.

Abstract: This regulatory action is in response to a recent Court ruling. OSHA issued permissible exposure limits (PELs) for hundreds of toxic substances in 1971, based on national consensus standards. New developments in technology and emerging scientific data indicated that many of the PELs were obsolete because significant risk of cancer and other chronic disease is related to current exposure limits. As a result, OSHA attempted to address the exposure limits. On January 19, 1989, OSHA published a final standard to update the PELs for general industry for the toxic substances originally covered in 1971, and other substances requested by public commenters. On June 12, 1992, (57 FR 26001) OSHA published a proposed rule to establish corresponding PELs for the construction, maritime, and agriculture industries. On July 10, 1992, the Eleventh Circuit Court for Appeals overturned OSHA's standard for general industry, citing the Agency's generic rulemaking approach as inadequate. While determining appropriate action, OSHA delayed public hearings and indefinitely extended the public comment period for the construction, agriculture and maritime industries. OSHA intends to publish a new proposal to address its inadequate PELs for general industry, construction, maritime, and agriculture.

Abstract: As endorsed by the Advisory Committee on Construction for Occupational Safety and Health, this OSHA standard will clarify and revise several relatively minor problems with existing construction safety standards to ease compliance with the requirements. Some examples of such problems are: (1) an inability to enforce the voluntary provisions of consensus standards, (2) a general personal protective equipment requirement that cannot be enforced unless a specific requirement exists elsewhere in the standard, (3) ambiguity about the application of certain subparts of the construction safety standards that are intended to apply to only Federal and Federally-financed or Federally-assisted construction projects and not to other projects, (4) ambiguity about the application of the stairways and ladders standards to scaffolds, (5) any other problems of a similar magnitude that are discovered during the development of the NPRM.

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 89 (Revision)

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 31, 1995.
Legal deadline reflects the statutory requirement that the list be updated on an annual basis.

Abstract: The above-mentioned statute requires the Secretary of State to compile, and update annually through Notice-and-Comment rulemaking procedures, a list, by particular longshore activity, of countries where performance of such activity is prohibited by law, regulation, or in practice in the country concerned. According to the statute cited above, the Attorney General will use this list for enforcing restrictions on work performed by crewmembers of vessels from such countries. Compilation of the list itself does not involve any significant costs and is based upon information being provided to the Department of State by U.S. diplomatic missions overseas as well as by the public. Questions regarding the policy justification for the list and its use are best directed to the Departments of Labor, Transportation, and Justice.

Abstract: The Immigration Act of 1990 (the Act), Pub. L. 101-649, enacted on November 29, 1990, constitutes a comprehensive revision of the United States immigration law. This law modified certain nonimmigrant visa (NIV) classifications and created others. The Immigration and Nationality Act at section 104 (8 U.S.C. 1104) grants the Secretary of State general authority over the issuance and refusal of visas and to promulgate necessary regulations. This regulation also incorporated RIN 1400-AA52, Visas: Documentation of Nonimmigrants Under the Immigration and Nationality Act, as Amended; Business and Media Visas, Treaty Trader, and Treaty Investors.

2201. • ESTABLISHING OF REGISTRY IN STATE DEPARTMENT FOR INFORMATION ABOUT EXECUTION OF INTERNATIONAL WILLS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: International Legal Materials, vol XII, no.6, Nov. 1973, p 1302

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 92.81(b)(3)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: By resolution of the international diplomatic conference that adopted the final text of the 1973 convention on the forms of international wills, there was a recommendation that States establish an internal system to permit the optional registration of information to facilitate the discovery of international wills. The President transmitted the convention to the Senate on July 2, 1986, with the recommendation that the Senate give its advice and consent to U.S. ratification of the convention, and information about the intention to establish the Registry in the Department of State (Senate Treaty Doc. 99-29). The Senate gave advice and consent on August 2, 1991. Implementing legislation (the International Wills Act) is required before the United States can take further action to ratify the convention.

Department Regulatory Agenda; Semiannual Summary

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, DOT.

ACTION: Department regulatory agenda.

SUMMARY: The regulations agenda is a semiannual summary of all current and projected rulemakings, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. The agenda provides the public with information about the Department of Transportation's regulatory activity. It is expected that this information will enable the public to be more aware of and allow it to more effectively participate in the Department's regulatory activity. The public is also invited to submit comments to continuously open regulatory review dockets, suggesting items for consideration as part of the Department's ongoing review of existing regulations.

ADDRESSES: The mailing address for the initiating offices of the Department which appear in the agenda is 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590; except for the Federal Aviation Administration, which is located at 800 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20591, and the U.S. Coast Guard, which is located at 2100 2nd Street SW., Washington, DC 20593.

Agenda

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Improvement of Government regulations is a prime goal of the Clinton Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation (Department) achieve these goals and in accordance with Executive Order 12866 "Regulatory Planning and Review" (58 FR 51735; October 4, 1993) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual regulations agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding 12 months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for and reviewed by the Department Regulations Council, the Department's regulations agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on May 8, 1995 (60 FR 23590). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in April 1996.

For this edition of the Department's regulatory agenda, the most important significant regulatory actions are included in The Regulatory Plan, which appears in Part II of this issue of the Federal Register. The Regulatory Plan entries are listed in the Table of Contents below and are denoted by a bracketed bold reference, which directs the reader to the appropriate Sequence Number in Part II.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Public Law 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared; i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that, each year, the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding 12 months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Economic Assessment/Evaluation

DOT requires an economic analysis for all its rulemakings. A preliminary and final economic assessment (similar to what used to be identified as a "Regulatory Impact Analysis") is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively, that is likely to be very costly. For other rulemakings, a regulatory evaluation is prepared.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department that formulates regulations.

Significant rulemaking is now being referred to in this agenda as an agency priority. This means a rulemaking that is very costly, controversial, or of substantial public interest; would have a major impact on another Federal agency; would have a substantial effect on State and/or local or tribal governments; would have a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem; would initiate a substantial regulatory program or change in policy; would be substantially different from international requirements or standards; would materially alter budgetary impacts; or otherwise involves important legal or policy issues.

Office of Management and Budget (OMB)/Secretarial Review

Any rulemaking document OMB identifies as significant is subject to its review and will be classified as significant by DOT. A few rulemakings identified as agency priority by DOT, but not significant by OMB, and some rulemaking documents (e.g., extensions of compliance dates), although part of an otherwise significant rulemaking, are not subject to OMB review. All DOT agency priority rulemaking documents are subject to review by the Secretary of Transportation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget memorandum of August 2, 1995.

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB memorandum, for each initiating office, the agenda is divided into five categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, (4) long-term actions, and (5) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action; (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision, on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12866 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading entitled "Additional Information" (which will also note any differences between OMB's "significant" and DOT's "agency priority" classification); (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., an Economic Assessment, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), or a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis; (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications.

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules), to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review under Executive Order 12866 must follow such a decision. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days of completion of this review. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (•) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Request for Comments

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information, as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved.

DOT

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12866 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked. The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and, therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this regulations agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department or any of the offices within the Department with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action, in addition to the items listed, is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda in general or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, DC, on October 3, 1995.

Federico Peña,

Secretary of Transportation.

Appendix A - Instructions for Obtaining Copies of Regulatory Documents

Some Administrations within the Department differ in procedures or as to inclusion on a mailing list. For the offices listed below, persons desiring to obtain a copy of a specific regulatory document to be issued that is listed in this agenda should communicate, either by telephone or by letter, with the contact person listed with the regulation at the addresses below.

2209. +COMMERCIAL SPACE TRANSPORTATION: FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY REQUIREMENTS FOR LICENSED LAUNCH ACTIVITIES

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 70101 to 70119

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by the Office of Commercial Space Transportation (OCST) are required to obtain insurance or demonstrate financial responsibility, in amounts and on terms prescribed by OCST, to protect against third-party or government property damage claims resulting from the licensed activities. Licensees and other launch participants are also required to enter into reciprocal waivers of claims arising out of licensed activities. In addition, persons engaged in commercial launch operations must provide proof of financial responsibility, or offer other assurances, adequate to protect the Government when its property or personnel are involved in such operations. This rulemaking codifies the procedures by which OCST sets appropriate levels and terms of insurance and financial responsibility required to be carried by persons subject to its authority. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1301 et seq

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department proposes to establish a set of guidelines to encourage the voluntary development of peak and off-peak pricing systems for airport landing fees at congested U.S. airports. The guidelines would encourage the application of economic incentive to promote more efficient use of existing airport facilities, which would reduce congestion and delays. This policy statement is significant because of substantial public interest.

2211. +PASSENGER MANIFEST INFORMATION

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will eliminate existing text in the CFR.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 44909

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 243

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, March 16, 1991.

Abstract: In 1990, Congress mandated by statute that the Secretary of Transportation require all U.S. airlines to comply with a Passenger Manifest Collection Regulation for international flights. Comments were requested on the most cost-effective methods. Since that time, and as part of the President's Reinvention Initiative, DOT is recommending legislation to repeal this requirement because of the high costs and small benefits that would result. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest and the congressional mandate.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1657

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 5.21; 49 CFR 5.35

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is considering a new rulemaking procedure to expedite the processing of noncontroversial changes to its regulations. Rules that the Secretary judges to be unlikely to result in public comment would be published as "direct final" rules. Such direct final rules would advise the public that no adverse comment is anticipated and that, unless written adverse comment or notice of intent to submit such comment is received within a specified number of days, the rule will become effective 60 days from the date of publication in the Federal Register.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324(a); 49 USC 1324(c)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is considering the use of regulatory negotiation to seek consensus among air carrier, consumer, airports, equipment manufacturers, oxygen suppliers, and safety regulators concerning the use of oxygen by passengers on air carriers. The need for action stems from a current situation where all carriers do not allow passengers to bring their own oxygen aboard. Issues involve conforming with FAA hazardous materials rules and the question of providing oxygen during long layovers.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1371

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 207; 14 CFR 208

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposed to make direct air carriers responsible for returning charter passengers stranded by strikes or other service interruptions, by eliminating the force majeure clause from charter contracts. However, the CAB subsequently issued an interpretive rule (ER-1387, 49 FR 33436) which was affirmed in court. (Arrow Air, Inc. v. Dole, 784 F2d 1118 (1986).) Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6102

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 376

Abstract: This rulemaking action was initiated by the Civil Aeronautics Board to implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. A draft final rule was submitted to HHS, as required by that Act, and was approved. However, in view of current airline practices with respect to travel by the elderly, and the absence of complaints of discrimination based on age, there no longer appears to be a need for further rulemaking action, and the NPRM will be withdrawn.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 253; 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The CAB proposed to amend its rules requiring notice of contract terms for domestic travel to require that actual notice be given passengers of terms absolving carriers from any responsibility to transport a passenger to the destination named on the ticket, or to reimburse the passenger for expenses in reaching the airport noted on the ticket when a flight is diverted to another airport in the same metropolitan area. Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. The Board considered a final rule but did not decide what action to take. DOT is terminating this proceeding as unnecessary since it appears that carriers no longer have the policies that promoted the CAB's concern.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International, and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. A CAB NPRM proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted, and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT decided not to act on these "counter signs" separately, but rather to consider whether there should be a comprehensive re-examination of all forms of notice to passengers, including notices on tickets.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 322(a)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current rule is being revised to address comments on the NPRM of 11/04/88 and Federal agency concerns on the current rule, and to update deviations from the common rule. OMB has decided not to merge into the existing rule those requirements that apply to universities, hospitals, and other nonprofit organizations; that rulemaking has been assigned the separate RIN 2105-AC02. OMB is considering the need for a common rule. This action is considered significant because it involves agencies and departments Governmentwide.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 322(a); 31 USC 1352

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, March 22, 1990.

Abstract: This regulation will implement the provisions of a new section 1352 to title 31, United States Code, that prohibits the use of appropriated funds to influence certain Federal contracting and financial transactions. Organizations that use their own funds to pay for lobbying activities are required to disclose such activity. The rule will be issued as a common rule based on guidance issued by the Office of Management and Budget on December 20, 1989 (54 FR 52305). Final action is awaiting OMB resolution of comments received on the interim final rule and possible changes to legislation restricting lobbying activities.

This action is considered significant because it involves agencies or departments governmentwide.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1374; 49 USC 1377; 49 USC 1386; PL 101-164

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 252

Legal Deadline: None

Although there is no judicial or statutory deadline for the Department's implementation, the statutory ban was effective 02/25/90.

Abstract: This interim final rule amends the rules governing smoking aboard aircraft to incorporate a statutory ban on smoking aboard most U.S. flight segments. The statutory ban applies to both U.S. and foreign air carriers. This rulemaking proposed to clarify the current rule and make other minor changes. The interim final rule was significant because of substantial public interest. The present action would merely finalize that already taken and is, therefore, not considered significant.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1374(a); 49 USC 1374(c)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: An SNPRM proposed three additions to part 382 to implement the Air Carrier Access Act of 1986. The additions concern standards for boarding chairs; airport terminal transportation systems; and substitute service for persons denied the opportunity to fly because of inaccessible small aircraft. In view of other rulemaking concerning airport and small aircraft accessibility, the Department has determined that further action on these proposals is unnecessary.

Abstract: This action will implement OMB Circular A-110, providing uniform guidance for administering grants to institutions of higher education, hospitals, and other nonprofit organizations. The regulation is essentially a word-for-word issuance of the requirements in OMB Circular A-110. An interim final rule was issued because of the limited ability to change the requirements from those in the Circular.

Abstract: The Department is proposing to amend its rule governing the amount by which certain U.S. air carriers may limit their liability to passengers for lost, damaged, and delayed baggage. This action is in response to a petition by Public Citizen and Aviation Consumer Action Project to increase the minimum liability limit from $1,250 to $1,850 per passenger. The Department is also requesting comment on two alternate proposals: (1) to raise the limit to $1,850 with a mechanism that automatically provides for periodic future increases, or (2) to raise the minimum liability limit to $2,000.

Abstract: This rulemaking grants an exemption to United States and foreign air carriers from the requirement in 14 CFR Part 221 that they file with the Department tariffs applicable to the foreign air transportation of property. This information is no longer necessary to fulfill departmental policy objectives and, because of the common practice of using freight forwarders, does not necessarily reflect actual prices paid by the public.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 41712

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: To ensure that consumers are given pertinent information on the nature of change-of-gauge services, the Department is proposing to codify and augment its current disclosure requirements for itineraries with one flight number that involve a change of aircraft. The Department requested comments on the following three proposed requirements, which would apply to U.S. air carriers, foreign air carriers, and, where appropriate, ticket agents (including travel agents) doing business in the United States: (1) that transporting carriers include notice of aircraft changes in their written or electronic schedule information provided to the public, in the Official Airline Guide, and in computer reservation systems; (2) that consumers be given reasonable and timely notice before they book transportation that a particular service with a single flight number entails a change of aircraft en route, and (3) that written notice of the aircraft change be provided on or with each ticket for such service. This proposal, in part, responds to the petition of American Airlines in Docket 47546 to ban the practice of "funnel flights." The Department intends also to address the complaints of TACA International Airlines, Aviateca, and Nicaraguense de Aviacion (NICA) in Dockets 49511, 49512, and 49513, respectively, against Continental Airlines for operating funnel flights.

Abstract: The Department is amending the regulations concerning Great Lakes pilotage by revising the procedures for determining Great Lakes pilotage rates and revising the financial reporting requirements mandated for Great Lakes pilot associations. The purpose of these changes is to improve the ratemaking process. The final rule with request for comments was issued in April, 1995. A final rulemaking document responding to the comments received will be issued shortly. The Department considers this action to be significant because the setting of pilotage rates is controversial and of significant interest to the public and Congress.

Abstract: This rule would revise DOT drug testing procedures in so-called "shy bladder" situations. It would also remove an obsolete provision that can potentially cause confusion concerning the proper relationship of laboratories and medical review officers, add language concerning unresolved laboratory positive test results, and provide guidance concerning the role of consortia and third party administrators in the DOT drug and alcohol testing programs.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221; 49 CFR 1.56(j)(2)(ii)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule permits official filing of international air carrier rules tariffs in an electronic format. Currently they are filed in paper form. Nearly all official filings are filed for effect on less than bilateral/statutory notice, with an accompanying Special Tariff Permission Application. The carriers are thus filing each rule provision on paper twice. This rule allows a single electronic filing to replace two paper filings. About 43,000 rule pages are changed each year in 9,000 submissions.

Abstract: This revision to the nonprocurement common rule is issued in response to Executive Order 12689 and section 2455 of the Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994. The Executive Order requires agencies to establish regulations for reciprocal governmentwide effect across procurement and nonprocurement debarment and suspension actions, after technical differences between the procurement and nonprocurement regulations are resolved. This regulation establishes that reciprocity.

Abstract: The Office of the Secretary is revising its document filing requirements to conform to its new electronic docket system. Documents will be scanned into images and stored on unalterable disks. The changes will facilitate one physical scanning process and ensure that the highest quality image is captured. The rule will also reduce the required number of paper copies and provide for submission of a disk copy in one of several specified formats.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1374(a); 49 USC 1374(c)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action was to amend rules implementing section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Air Carrier Access Act of 1986, to jointly require commuter air carriers and federally assisted airports to provide lifts or other equipment to board passengers with mobility limitations on commuter aircraft (primarily those with 19-30 seats). The rule was to addresses existing problems that result, in some cases, in individuals being denied air transportation, and to harmonize requirements relating to airport facilities in the department's section 504 and Air Carrier Access Act rules. This action is being removed from the Agenda and being incorporated into the existing major rulemaking with the same title (RIN 2120-AB62) which is addressing these issues.

2258. +PROCEDURES FOR TRANSPORTATION WORKPLACE DRUG- AND ALCOHOL-TESTING PROGRAMS (BLOOD TESTING)

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act of 1991; 49 USC 1657

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 40

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A February 1994 action adopted uniform testing procedures to be used by all DOT agencies conducting alcohol-testing programs and made changes in DOT drug-testing procedures pursuant to the Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act. A second action in December 1994 determined that blood testing could not be used in DOT alcohol testing. A third action extended the date by which transportation employees must use a new Federal Drug Testing Custody and Control Form. This series of actions is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Abstract: DOT is amending its rules implementing the Privacy Act of 1974 to exempt from certain provisions of the Act the Coast Guard's Joint Maritime Information Element Support System. This system is a multi-agency database of vessel movements around the world. Coast Guard has been selected by the other agencies to manage the database. This change insulates additional law enforcement records from access by the subjects of those records while investigations are ongoing.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1233

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 100

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project would expand the information required in marine event permit applications to include appropriate needed information on environmental impacts of the events. The current permit application information requirements were promulgated prior to enactment of the environmental laws with which the Coast Guard must comply prior to taking final action on the permit applications. This project would amend current regatta and marine parade regulations for required permit application information to require the applicant to provide both navigational and environmental information to the Coast Guard early in the application process. This would enable the Coast Guard to process marine event permit applications in a more timely manner while complying with its responsibilities for consideration of environmental impacts.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 2110; 46 USC 664; 31 USC 9701

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 159

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory project would establish direct user fees for Coast Guard services relating to equipment approvals, factory inspections, acceptance of independent laboratories and acceptance of servicing, repair, and testing facilities. The proposed fees are based on average workload, personnel, and overhead costs. The fees collected will be deposited in the general funds of the U.S. Treasury as offsetting receipts for Coast Guard activities. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4302; 46 USC 12501

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 181

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would expand the length of the hull identification number (HIN) to include information about a vessel and function as a vessel identification number. The rulemaking would also require manufacturers to supply a Certificate of Origin (COO) with each vessel produced to ensure documented certification of this information and establish a chain of ownership. These regulations to provide information identifying vessels and establishing evidence of vessel ownership are needed to help develop a Vessel Identification System (VIDS).

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4302; 46 USC 4310

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 160

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Coast Guard proposes to establish approval procedures for recreational inflatable personal flotation devices (PFDs), revise the approval procedures for other kinds of recreational PFDs, and make editorial changes to the equipment approval procedures. These procedures are intended to establish an efficient approval procedure for PFDs and other equipment relying more heavily on accepted independent or recognized laboratories. The Coast Guard anticipates that recreational boaters will be more likely to wear inflatable PFDs than currently approved devices, thereby increasing use of PFDs by the boating public and saving lives.

Abstract: This project will amend the requirements for notice of arrival and departure in 33 CFR 160, Subpart C. Section 160.207 will now apply to non-excepted vessels over 300 gross tons destined for or departing from all ports and places of the United States, and to all non-excepted foreign vessels, regardless of tonnage, destined for or departing from all ports and places of the Seventh District. A vessel's owner, operator, classification society, International Maritime Organization (IMO) Number, and 24-hour point of contact will become reportable under the requirements of notice in sections 160.207 through .213, with exceptions for barges carrying certain dangerous cargo. These changes will aid in the elimination of substandard ships from U.S. waters, improve emergency response, and facilitate the enforcement of requirements for Certificate of Financial Responsibility.

Abstract: Rulemaking would redefine and establish more stringent qualifying criteria for individuals engaged in transporting and transferring various categories of oil and dangerous liquid cargoes. The Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978 mandated the establishment of personnel qualification and manning standards for tank vessels. In addition, the International Convention on the Standards for Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers 1978 (STCW) has entered into effect and establishes international standards for tank vessel personnel qualifications. In view of the length of time since publication of the NPRM, a supplemental NPRM was issued.

Abstract: This rulemaking was initiated to establish a requirement for training in the use of ARPA for licensed deck officers on vessels fitted with ARPA units. Existing International Maritime Organization (IMO) guidelines were used in drafting the proposed requirements. These IMO guidelines are being replaced with the implementation of the 1995 Amendments to the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers (STCW). As a result, the Coast Guard is withdrawing this rulemaking with the intention of initiating another rulemaking implementing the new requirements when they become effective in February 1997.

Additional Information: On January 13, 1994 the Coast Guard published a Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (SNPRM) containing the proposed completed revision of the regulations governing small passenger vessels. A new Subchapter K was introduced for small passenger vessels carrying more than 150 passengers or more than 49 overnight passengers. Seven public hearings were held throughout the country and the comment period closed June 13, 1994. An Interim Final Rule (IFR) will be published adopting many of the solutions suggested in the comments. It will provide an opportunity for public comment on those solutions.

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4502; 46 USC 4506; 46 USC 6104(c); 46 USC 10603(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 28

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 1, 1993.

Abstract: The Commercial Fishing Industry Act of 1988 requires the Secretary of Transportation to prescribe regulations for certain safety equipment and vessel operating procedures. A final rule establishing requirements for navigation, radio, firefighting, and lifesaving equipment, and fuel, ventilation, and electrical systems was published in August, 1991. Regulations have also been proposed to address vessel stability and lifesaving appliances. Additionally, an interim final rule established immersion suit requirements. Regulations for immersion suits on vessels operating on seasonally cold waters have also been proposed. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its impact on the commercial fishing industry.

Additional Information: The final rule published 08/14/91 addressed most issues raised in the NPRM. A final rule implementing provisions of the Aleutian Trade Act is being handled under RIN 2115-AE77. Stability for vessels less than 79 feet in length, survival for vessels operating near shore with less than four persons on board, and requirements for carriage of immersion suits have been addressed separately. These remaining issues will be subject of a combined final rule. Coast Guard docket 86-024 titled Uninspected Fish Processing Vessels (RIN 2115-AC34) has been incorporated into this project.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 2716; 42 USC 9608

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 130 to 132; 33 CFR 137

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking implements the provisions concerning financial responsibility for vessels in the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 and the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act. It prescribes the means by which owners and operators of vessels establish and maintain evidence of insurance or other evidence of financial responsibility sufficient to meet their potential limits of liability under these Acts. This rule is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Analysis: Regulatory Evaluation 07/01/94 (59 FR 34210)

Additional Information: The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (OPA) repealed or superseded certain oil spill liability provisions under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 USC 1321), title III of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments of 1978 (43 USC 1814), the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act (43 USC 1653), and the Deepwater Port Act of 1974 (33 USC 1517). The financial responsibility provisions of those Acts were replaced by a single financial responsibility regime under OPA and keyed to the broader liability of OPA. In addition to financial responsibility requirements under OPA, which is limited to oil, this project would include financial responsibility requirements under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, which concerns hazardous substances. This consolidation would allow the issuance of a single, unified Certificate of Financial Responsibility for vessels, replacing separate certificates and financial responsibility regimes under the previously mentioned Acts.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 18, 1992.

Abstract: This rulemaking partially implements sections 4202(b)(4) and 5005 of the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, P.L. 101-380 (OPA-90), concerning tank vessel and facility response plans. Section 4202(b)(4) of the OPA-90 amends section 311(j)(5) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (FWPCA), which requires owners and operators of tank vessels and facilities to develop response plans for responding to worst-case discharges (or substantial threat thereof) of oil or hazardous substances. Section 5005 requires that response plans for tank vessels operating in Prince William Sound, Alaska, and facilities permitted under the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Authorization Act provide for additional measures of oil spill preparedness. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest and environmental considerations. This rulemaking covers tank vessel requirements for oil-spill response plans. A separate rulemaking under RIN 2115-AE88 will address tank vessel response plans for hazardous substances. Facility response plan requirements for oil and hazardous substances will also be addressed by separate rulemakings under RINs 2115-AD82 and 2115-AE87, respectively.

Abstract: This action would provide the Coast Guard discretionary authority to review the criminal record of each applicant for a merchant mariner credential and require that each merchant mariner credential applicant make available information contained in the National Driver Register (NDR). The regulation would create procedures to allow an applicant for a license, Certificate of Registry, or merchant mariner document to comment upon any data received from the NDR before the data could be used against an individual merchant mariner's application. RIN-AD96, concerning national driver registry data, has been consolidated into this rulemaking.

2308. RECREATIONAL INFLATABLE PERSONAL FLOTATION DEVICE STANDARDS (CGD 94-110)

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4302; 46 USC 4310

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 160

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will add regulations for the approval of inflatable personal flotation devices (PFDs) for use on recreational boats. These new regulations will establish structural and performance standards for these inflatable PFDs, as well as the procedures for Coast Guard approval of such inflatable PFDs. Most of the technical requirements will be based on an industry consensus standard. The costs to the industry will include such items as approval testing and production testing similar to other approved lifesaving equipment, and will be optional since no one will be required to replace an existing PFD with one of these devices. Costs will be minimal.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1333; 46 USC 3306; 46 USC 5115

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 30 to 31; 46 CFR 70 to 71; 46 CFR 90 to 91; 46 CFR 107

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking will provide owners of U.S. tank vessels, passenger vessels, cargo vessels, miscellaneous vessels and mobile offshore drilling units an alternative method to fulfill the requirements for vessel design, inspection, and certification. Under the rule, the Coast Guard will issue a certificate of inspection based upon a recognized classification society's report that the vessel complies with the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea, as amended (SOLAS), other applicable international conventions, classification society rules, and other specified requirements. This will reduce the burden on vessel owners and operators by eliminating duplicative plan reviews and inspections by the classification society and the Coast Guard.

DOT—USCG

Final Rule Stage

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 46 USC 2110; PL 102-587

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Coast Guard is removing the regulations on recreational vessel fees. The statutory authority for the fees began to be repealed (in yearly phases) by section 5 of the High Seas Driftnet Fisheries Enforcement Act of 1992. The last remaining authority for recreational vessel fees ceased as of October 1, 1994 and the regulations for these fees should be removed.

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 162.029

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would have established standards and procedures for the approval of gaseous-type fixed fire-extinguishing systems aboard pleasure craft and other uninspected vessels. Most such systems use halons, which this rulemaking would have allowed (although not required). International protocols banned halons, as ozone-depleting substances, on and after January 1, 1995. Because replacements for halons are not fully evaluated yet, the Coast Guard has decided to withdraw this rulemaking.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 3703

Abstract: A regulatory change is not needed because no new U.S. Flag vessels of this type are being built and no new building is anticipated in the near future. In addition, international rules for gas carriers are sufficient. The resources devoted to this project's development can be more effectively used elsewhere; therefore, this project is terminated.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4102; PL 100-540

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 25; 46 CFR 26

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking was intended to require emergency position indicating radio beacons (EPIRBS) to be carried on certain uninspected passenger vessels and assistance towing vessels. The proposed EPIRB requirements would have applied to vessels operating on the high seas and on the Great Lakes beyond three miles from the coastline. The Coast Guard also proposed requiring visual distress signals on all uninspected vessels not presently required to carry them, when those vessels operate in coastal waters. The Coast Guard has decided to withdraw this project in an effort to focus its available resources on other regulatory projects.

Abstract: This rulemaking project was initiated to adopt regulations requiring an emergency tow wire on tank barges while transiting certain port areas of the Pacific Northwest. The project is no longer necessary because the Coast Guard issued separate regulations on December 22, 1993, which require an emergency tow wire or tow line on all offshore oil barges. The Coast Guard is therefore terminating further rulemaking under docket number CGD13-90-028.

Legal Authority: 33 USC 511

Abstract: With the upsurge of interest in bridge alterations, it has become necessary to clarify the procedures for declaring a bridge to be an unreasonable obstruction and, most importantly, how a bridge qualifies for alteration under the Truman-Hobbs Act. This rule clarifies and updates the procedures contained in 33 CFR 116 to more clearly reflect the procedures currently in use.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1231; 50 USC 191

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 165

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action established a Regulated Navigation Area at the Oliver Lock and Dam on the Black Warrior River, placing restrictions on downbound tows through the lock during high tail-water gauge readings. Subsequently, we rescinded the rule when it was no longer needed. The final rule for National Vessel Traffic Service Regulations, RIN 2115-AD56, published July 15, 1994 (59 FR 36316) and RIN 2115-AF12, published May 31, 1995 (60 FR 28326) removed the obsolete CFR section establishing the Regulated Navigation Area as part of our clean-up effort.

2339. +ESTABLISHMENT OF LIGHTERING ZONES (CGD 93-081)

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 3715(b)

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 156

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (OPA 90), single-hull tankers otherwise not permitted to operate within the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) may enter the EEZ to lighter (offload oil to another vessel) in designated zones 60 miles or more offshore. This project establishes four lightering zones in the Gulf of Mexico, off the coasts of Corpus Christi, Galveston, Louisiana, and Mobile, and impose operating requirements on lightering in the zones. It also establishes restricted areas in which lightering will not be permitted. Except for establishing the restricted area, this project will not affect existing lightering practices for vessels permitted to operate in the EEZ under OPA 90. This action is considered significant because of its potential effects on the tank vessel industry, public interest, and its potential environmental impact.

Abstract: This rule implements resolutions under the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships (MARPOL 73/78) adopting several new Special Areas. Special Areas are oceanographical areas of the seas that, because of such factors as ecological conditions or volume of vessel traffic, deserve special measures to prevent pollution by oil, noxious liquid substances, and garbage.

2341. FACSIMILE FILING OF COMMERCIAL INSTRUMENTS RELATED TO VESSEL DOCUMENTATION (CGD 94-070)

Priority: Other

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 14 USC 664; 31 USC 9701; 42 USC 9118; 46 USC 2103; 46 USC 2107; 46 USC 2110; 46 app USC 841a; 46 app USC 876

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation amends the vessel documentation regulations to provide for optional filing of commercial instruments by facsimile, and establishes a filing and recording handling fee for filing instruments by facsimile. Facsimile filing of commercial instruments has been identified as one way in which a centralized vessel documentation center can deliver timely services to distant vessel documentation customers and be responsive to time sensitive matters. Filing commercial instruments by facsimile should further streamline the vessel documentation process and provide the public with more timely constructive notice of these instruments.

Priority: Other

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 46 USC 633

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 1.05

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project revises 33 CFR subpart 1.05 to accurately reflect recent changes in Coast Guard rulemaking procedures. It also provides for a "direct final" rule process in which certain rules would be published and become final unless adverse comments were received within a given time period. These revisions will not have an economic impact on the public, and will simply conform 33 CFR Subpart 1.05 to current Coast Guard rulemaking procedures.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1231

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 162

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation amends the speed limits for vessels, less than 100 gross tons, operating in the nondisplacement mode on connecting waters from Lake Huron to Lake Erie. The normal speed limits in this area are determined in large part by concerns about wake damage. However, lesser wakes are created by nondisplacement vessels and it appears that normal speed limits unnecessarily impede their passage. The Coast Guard allowed nondisplacement vessels to operate at higher speeds under similar conditions during two temporary test periods from April 1,1993 to November 30, 1994, with satisfactory results.

2354. AIRWORTHINESS STANDARDS; CRASH-RESISTANT FUEL SYSTEMS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes changes to the airworthiness standards to improve the crash resistance of fuel systems on normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. The FAA has determined that improved crash resistance of these fuel systems is necessary to prevent deaths and injuries due to fire in survivable crashes. The proposed design changes would limit fuel spillage near ignition sources and would provide additional time for the survivors to evacuate the airplane.

Abstract: This notice would propose to update parts 47 and 49 of the Federal Aviation Regulations to reflect changes in the law, legal interpretations, other recent rulemaking actions, and the FAA's current aircraft registry practices. The intent of these proposed changes is to articulate, modernize, and simplify the existing regulations rather than alter established procedures.

2356. +PART 145 REVIEW: REPAIR STATIONS

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354; 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1427

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 43; 14 CFR 65; 14 CFR 145

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FAA proposes to update and revise the regulations for repair stations. This action is necessary because many portions of the current repair station regulations do not reflect technical advances in aircraft maintenance practices or aircraft technology. The revisions would reorganize the repair station rules to reduce duplication of regulatory language and eliminate obsolete information. The proposal also would establish new requirements that relate to repair station ratings and classes, manual requirements, recordkeeping, and personnel. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

2357. 1-G STALLING SPEED AS A BASIS FOR COMPLIANCE WITH PART 25 OF THE FEDERAL AVIATION REGULATIONS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1424; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to redefine the airplane reference stalling speed as the 1-g stalling speed in lieu of the minimum stalling speed. It would: (1) provide for a consistent, repeatable reference stalling speed; (2) ensure consistent and dependable maneuvering margins; (3) clarify the requirement for the use of 1-g stalling speeds in determining structural design speeds; (4) increase the head-on gust structural design requirement; and (5) provide for adjusted multiplying factors to maintain essentially equivalent requirements in areas where the use of minimum stalling speed has proven adequate. These changes are needed since the stalling characteristics of modern jet transports as determined by current methods can result in inconsistent reference stalling speeds. These changes may result in a higher level of safety where current methods have resulted in artificially low reference stalling speeds.

Abstract: This action would assess reasonable charges for certain services provided by the FAA. The charges would be set at a level approximating the cost to the Government to provide these services and would be adjusted periodically as the cost of these services change or as prescribed in the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988. The cost of providing services for aircraft registration and recording and replacement of airmen certificates is not being fully recouped in accordance with the changes reflected in the Consumer Price Index of All Urban Consumers, which was published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor, or as set by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988. This rulemaking would also consolidate all service fees by placing them in part 187 of the Federal Aviation Regulations.

Abstract: In the 1950's, a vertical separation minimum of 2,000 feet was established for use between aircraft operating above flight level 290. Reducing the 2,000-foot separation requirement to 1,000 feet would increase flight level availability, increase en route airspace capacity, enable aircraft to fly at more fuel efficient altitudes, and increase air traffic controller flexibility. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would revise the requirements for developing noise exposure maps and noise compatibility programs and submitting them for FAA approval. The revisions are intended to expedite and simplify the part 150 process. Under the revised process, the mandatory set of noise abatement measures which are presently required to be considered by each airport sponsor would be limited in scope depending on the characteristics of each airport and its surrounding community. The new process would be supported by appropriate guidance, training, review, standardization, and consultation requirements. 2366. +MODE S TRANSPONDER REQUIREMENT FOR PART 135 OPERATORS

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1422; 49 USC 1427; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the Mode S transponder requirement for all aircraft operating under part 135 and certain aircraft operating under part 121 based on the expected availability of operational capabilities of Mode S ground sensors. For part 121 operators, the action would affect only those aircraft not required to have Traffic Alert and Collision Avoidance System II. An aviation rulemaking advisory committee has recommended that the FAA conduct a study of the installed Mode S ground sensor to determine the extent of the benefits derived and the costs involved in equipage. This action is a relieving action made necessary by the fact that ground sensors are not in place to support the requirement. Further, FAA is studying the need for Mode S transponders in Part 135 and certain Part 121 operations in light of the fact that transponders may not substantially increase ATC ability to view air traffic. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the substantial public interest.

Abstract: This project would ensure that airplanes used or not used in common carriage in air transportation have a comprehensive corrosion prevention program within their maintenance or inspection programs. In April 1988, a commercial transport airplane experienced an in-flight decompression and separation of approximately 18 feet of the fuselage skin and structure at the top of the airplane. The airplane had been in service for 19 years and had flown almost 90,000 flights. The National Transportation Safety Board concluded that the failure of the airline to detect skin disbonding resulted in corrosion and metal fatigue leading to separation of the airplane's skin structure. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would amend part 25 of the FAR by revising Appendix J, Emergency Evacuation, to allow certain alternative procedures in conducting full-scale emergency evacuation demonstrations for transport category airplanes. This is in response to recommendations from the Performance Standards Working Group of the Aviation Rulemaking Advisory Committee. The changes, which are intended to make full-scale emergency evacuation demonstrations safer for participants and to codify existing practices, would also affect manufacturers and operators of transport category airplanes. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

Abstract: The FAA announced a public meeting to discuss the use of Aviation Rulemaking Advisory Commission procedures in future harmonized rulemaking. One specific rulemaking discussed was a proposed increase in the current maximum gross weight limitation of 6,000 pounds for certification as a normal category rotorcraft. This project has been assigned to ARAC.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal would allow part 121 certificate holders who operate aircraft that require three flight crewmembers, two pilots and a flight engineer, to implement a controlled rest on the flight deck program. Under the program, when cockpit workload permits, one flight crewmember at a time would be given the opportunity to sleep for a brief period of time at his or her duty station during the cruise portion of a flight. Before using the controlled rest concept, however, the certificate holder would have to obtain approval for its program from the FAA. This proposal originated as a recommendation from the Aviation Rulemaking Advisory Committee and responds to industry interest in developing a controlled rest program that is approved by the FAA. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would amend the pilot rest and duty requirements for pilots operating under Parts 121 and 135 by ensuring that pilots receive adequate rest opportunities while assigned to reserve status and by preventing lengthy duty periods that could contribute to acute and cumulative fatigue. Specifically, the rulemaking will propose a definition of rest period. This action also proposes that all commercial flying or flying under Part 91 that is done by a pilot for a certificate holder will be included in the total flight time limitations of Parts 121 or 135, as applicable. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to revise the structural loads design requirements of the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) for transport category airplanes by incorporating changes developed in cooperation with the Joint Aviation Authorities of Europe, and the U.S. and European aviation industry through the Aviation Rulemaking Advisory Committee. This action is necessary because differences between current U.S. and European requirements impose unnecessary costs on airplane manufacturers. These proposals are intended to achieve common requirements and language between the requirements of the FAR and the Joint Aviation Requirements without reducing the level of safety provided by the regulations.

Abstract: This action would amend the reporting requirements for air carrier certificate holders and certificated domestic and foreign repair stations concerning failures, malfunctions, and defects of aircraft, aircraft engines, systems, and components. The proposed rule would clarify and standardize the reporting requirements for the type of information submitted to the FAA, allowing the FAA to identify trends that may affect aviation safety. This action was prompted by an internal FAA review of industry concern over the quality of the data being reported by air carriers. The objective of the proposed rule is to update and improve the reporting system to effectively collect and disseminate clear and concise information, particularly with regard to aging aircraft, to the aviation industry.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 33

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes changes to the water and hail ingestion standards for aircraft turbine engines. This proposal addresses an engine power-loss instability phenomena attributed to operation in extreme rain or hail that is not adequately addressed by current requirements. This proposal also harmonizes with requirements being drafted by the Joint Aviation Authorities (JAA). The proposed changes, if adopted, will establish one set of common requirements, thereby reducing the hardship on the United States and worldwide aviation industry, by eliminating the need for manufacturers to comply with different sets of standards when seeking validation from the FAA and JAA.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354; 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1422; 49 USC 1427

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the medical standards and the medical certification procedures of the Federal Aviation Regulations. This action follows the completion of a comprehensive review of the medical standards which was announced in previous notices. If adopted, these revised standards for airman medical certification and associated administrative procedures will better provide for safety in the aviation system and reflect current medical knowledge, practice, and terminology. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 135; 14 CFR 1; 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend parts 25, 121, and 135 of the Federal Aviation Regulations to add new standards for transport category airplanes which would provide for approval of a reduced takeoff decision speed (V1) methodology for takeoff on wet and contaminated runways. As a result of extensive review and due to the increasing emphasis on harmonizing certification standards with the Joint Aviation Authorities (JAA) of Europe, the NPRM of 11/30/87 was withdrawn and a revised one published. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in both the United States and Europe.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to specify airplane and equipment airworthiness standards for subsonic transport airplanes to be operated up to an altitude of 51,000 feet. This proposal was prompted by an increase in the number of applications received to raise the maximum certificated operating altitude for transport category airplanes. This action is intended to ensure an acceptable level of safety for airplanes operated at high altitudes.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1424; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g); PL 97-449

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the performance requirements for transport category rotorcraft. The changes are needed to define more clearly the factors for determining takeoff distances for transport category rotorcraft and to add several other relevant standards. These changes would provide for an improved level of safety achievable because of recent technological advances in turboshaft engine design and associated rotorcraft design. The SNPRM proposed to add a minimum descent height of 15 feet.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplanes to require a means to alert the flight crew of potentially unsafe low fuel quantities. There have been several fuel depletion incidents involving loss of power or thrust on all engines that could have resulted in forced landings and injury or loss of life. Most of these incidents resulted from improper fuel management techniques. This proposed amendment would require new transport category airplane designs to incorporate a low fuel quantity alert system that would allow for correction of certain fuel management errors or provide the flightcrew the opportunity to make a safe landing prior to engine fuel starvation.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to minimize the failure hazards of high speed powerplant rotor systems used in turboshaft engines in newly designed transport category rotorcraft. Engine rotor failures have occurred resulting in the release of high energy rotor fragments or other engine component fragments. These fragments have impacted and damaged critical rotorcraft structures, systems, controls, and adjacent engines, as well as caused serious or fatal injuries to passengers and crewmembers. This proposal, if adopted, is intended to eliminate these hazards.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 119; 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 125; 14 CFR 127; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to update, clarify, and consolidate into one part, new part 119, the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who conduct passenger-carrying or cargo-carrying air operations for compensation or hire. Significant changes included defining what must be included in operations specifications; defining "scheduled" and "domestic" operations; increasing the lead-time period for application for a certificate; defining a "wet lease" operation; including in the regulations criteria to determine who has operational control of an operation; and standardizing the requirements and qualifications for management personnel. This action is needed to establish permanent minimum safety standards following the "sunset" of the Civil Aeronautics Board on December 31, 1984, and the enactment of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. This action would also replace SFAR 38, as amended, which has provided interim certification and operations specifications regulation. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current regulations need to be revised to account for the changed operational practices stemming from airline economic deregulation. This proposal would clarify or change the number of flight attendants required when passengers are on board an airplane, including at stops. This proposal includes two new requirements: (1) a revision of the reduced number of flight attendants which, under certain conditions, a carrier is permitted to have on board a passenger-carrying airplane during stops; and (2) a requirement for a demonstration of competency by the other authorized persons who may be permitted to be substituted for required flight attendants when passengers are on board the airplane during stops. This proposal would change the current rule by clarifying and specifying the training required to be completed by these other authorized persons. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the current requirements for passenger emergency exits and adopt two new exit types into the regulations. These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to passenger seating allowed for each exit type, and the type and number of exits required for passenger seating configurations. This notice proposed to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These changes resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington, on September 3-6, 1985. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

PL 100-223, Section 303, Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987.

Abstract: This action would add new requirements for water survival equipment carried aboard airplanes and rotorcraft. The requirements would apply, after specified dates, to U.S.-certificate holders that conduct common-carriage operations with airplanes and rotorcraft. This action is in response to the Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987 (PL 100-223) and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board. The requirements are intended to increase the likelihood of aircraft passengers surviving a crash landing in water and, thus, this rulemaking is significant because of the safety implications.

Abstract: This action would require that all seats of transport category airplanes used in air carrier operations and transport category airplanes used in scheduled intrastate service comply with improved crashworthiness standards. The Airport and Airways Safety and Capacity Expansion Act of 1987 directs the Secretary of Transportation to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to consider requiring all seats onboard all air carrier aircraft to meet improved crashworthiness standards based upon the best available testing standards. The intended effect of this action is to increase passenger protection and survivability in survivable impact accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and statutory requirements.

Abstract: This action would revise certain requirements concerning registration of aircraft, certification of pilots, and penalties associated with registration and certification violations. This notice also announced new procedures for processing major repair and alteration forms which pertain to fuel system modifications. Actions announced in this notice respond to the FAA Drug Enforcement Assistance Act. The requirements and adopted procedures are intended to assist law enforcement agencies in their efforts to stop drug trafficking in general aviation aircraft. Final Rule Stage

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Aerospace Industries Association of America, Inc., petitioned the FAA to provide new one-engine-inoperative ratings for rotorcraft engines and their application to rotorcraft. This action responds to that petition and defines and establishes type certification standards for new one-engine-inoperative ratings for rotorcraft engines.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes by upgrading the requirements for both seat/restraint systems and for flammability standards for seat cushions used in commuter category airplanes. These amendments are needed to improve the occupant protection provisions for these types of airplanes. These new requirements would result in a level of safety commensurate with that provided by the seat/restraint requirements and the flammability standards for transport category airplanes. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplanes to require improved cowling retention devices. A review of a number of inflight incidents where engine cowlings were lost revealed that the largest single cause of such losses was improper latching of the cowlings. If adopted, this proposal would provide additional design standards to detect improperly latched cowlings and ensure the integrity of the latching system.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the fatigue requirements for damage-tolerant structures on transport category airplanes to require full-scale fatigue testing and to require that the thresholds for inspections be based on crack growth from initial flaws in the structure. These proposed changes are based on the service history of airplanes evaluated to the current damage tolerance requirements and are intended to ensure that, should serious fatigue damage occur within the operational life of the airplane, the remaining structure can withstand reasonable loads without failure until the damage is detected. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action has been reestablished to review part 25 to determine if the current allowable concentration of carbon dioxide in the airplane cabin and flight deck is appropriate in light of standards established for air quality in buildings occupied by the general public and with workplace exposure limits adopted by other regulatory agencies. This rulemaking is no longer considered significant since no actual incremental costs are expected to be incurred as a result of this action.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the Federal Aviation Regulations governing portable protective breathing equipment (PBE) required for crewmembers' use in combatting in-flight fires. This action addresses concerns and issues identified by the Air Transport Association and several operators regarding required portable PBE for cargo-only operations. This action also would clarify the Federal Aviation Regulations governing required portable PBE in passenger compartments. Originally this rulemaking was considered significant. However, because there is no substantial public interest, this rulemaking is no longer significant.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Following World War II, a substantial number of surplus military airplanes were offered for sale to the public in order to meet an increased demand for civilian-use aircraft not being met by the civil aircraft industry. The current regulation permits both type and airworthiness certification for surplus military aircraft based on the particular aircraft's safety record and condition. As military aircraft have become increasingly complex and sophisticated, that practice is no longer acceptable. This action would remove the regulations for issuing type certificates for these surplus aircraft and eliminate references to obsolete standards. Surplus military aircraft would still be certificated in the normal, utility, acrobatic, commuter, transport, and restricted categories upon compliance with the applicable regulations.

Abstract: This action would require air carriers of certain aircraft used in air transportation to demonstrate that the aircraft's maintenance has been adequate to ensure the highest degree of safety. Based on the comments received to the notice of proposed rulemaking, the FAA is considering other actions in lieu of the operational limit requirement, certain reporting requirements, and maintenance check requirements.

Abstract: The FAA established an aviation rulemaking advisory committee (56 FR 20492, May 3, 1991), to provide advice and recommendations to the FAA on the full range of aviation-related issues. The committee has been tasked to provide advice and recommendations to the Director, Aircraft Certification Service, regarding the airworthiness standards for standard and commuter category airplanes and engines in part 23 of the Federal Aviation Regulations. Upon further evaluation, the FAA considers this rulemaking effort nonsignificant. The proposed revisions would simply reduce the regulatory burden on U.S. and European airplane manufacturers by relieving them of the need to show compliance with different standards each time they seek certification approval of an airplane in a different country.

Abstract: This action establishes a requirement for part 121 certificate holders to develop an FAA-approved ground deicing/anti-icing program and to comply with that program any time conditions are such that frost, ice, or snow could adhere to the aircraft's wings, control surfaces, or propellers. This action is necessary because several accidents and the recent International Conference on Airplane Ground Deicing indicate that, under present procedures, the pilot in command may be unable to effectively determine whether critical airplane components are free of all frost, ice, or snow prior to attempting a takeoff. The action provides an added level of safety to flight operations in adverse weather conditions, and is considered significant because of its safety implications.

Abstract: The FAA is withdrawing a previously published Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) that proposed to eliminate the certification requirement to demonstrate an accelerated entry stall for commuter category airplanes. The proposed rule would have removed an unwarranted hazard during flight demonstrations required for airplane type certification, and would not compromise passenger safety. This hazard was a direct result of the high power-to-weight ratios of new commuter airplanes. The FAA has proposed a similar requirement in the Airworthiness Standards; Flight Proposals Based on European Joint Aviation Requirements, Docket No. 27807, Notice No. 94-22 (59 FR 37878), published on July 25, 1994.

2427. OCCUPANT PROTECTION IN NORMAL AND TRANSPORT CATEGORY ROTORCRAFT

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421 to 1426; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) established an aviation rulemaking advisory committee (56 FR 20492, May 3, 1991) to provide advice and recommendations to the FAA on the full range of aviation-related issues. The committee has been tasked to provide advice and recommendations to the Director, Aircraft Certification Service, regarding the airworthiness standards for occupant protection in normal and transport category rotorcraft in parts 27 and 29 of the Federal Aviation Regulations. Any rulemaking action will depend on the committee's report. Proposed occupant protection requirements would eliminate the unnecessary cost burden that would be imposed by separate European and U.S. standards. The proposed standard is harmonized with the European Joint Airworthiness Authority. While it was being worked through the advisory committee, final wording was developed which is noncontroversial. Therefore, this project is no longer considered significant.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would adjust recently adopted requirements for access to type III emergency exits in transport category airplanes with 60 or more passenger seats. The adjustments would reflect new data from tests conducted at the FAA's Civil Aeromedical Institute and are intended to improve the ability of occupants to evacuate an airplane under emergency conditions. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This proposed amendment would require parts 125 and 135 certificate holders to provide pilot training or testing in ground deicing/anti-icing procedures and to check the airplane for contamination by frost, ice, or snow during ground icing conditions. The proposal is intended to provide an added level of safety to flight operations in adverse weather conditions under parts 125 and 135. This rulemaking is significant because it affects a substantial portion of the aviation industry.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the Federal Aviation Regulations for certain overwater operations for air carriers, commercial operators, and general aviation operators of large and turbine-powered multiengine airplanes. This action would authorize air carriers and commercial operators to use a single high-frequency communication system (HF) and a single LRNS for extended overwater routes detailed in their operation specifications. This proposal is needed to give the FAA greater flexibility in responding to advances in aviation technology and changes in the operational environment and to allow operators to conduct extended overwater operations without carrying unnecessary communication and navigation equipment.

Abstract: This action would amend the regulations governing the use of approved flight control guidance systems with automatic capability (autopilot). The current regulations prohibit the use of an autopilot at altitudes less than 500 feet above ground level during the takeoff and initial climb phases of flight. The FAA proposes to amend the regulations to permit air carriers to take advantage of technological improvements in the capabilities of autopilot systems and thus enhance safety by decreasing pilot workload during the critical takeoff phase of flight.

Abstract: This action would extend and modify SFAR 62, issued December 5, 1990, which suspends the Mode C transponder requirement for operations to and from certain specific airports located within 30 miles of a Class B airspace primary airport. The operations and routings approved under SFAR 6 include routes within 2 nautical miles of the specified airports and at altitudes that were not excluded from the Mode C transponder requirement. Airports that are served primarily by aircraft required to install Traffic Alert and Collision Avoidance Systems are not included in this exception. This rulemaking was accomplished in 1990 because the scheduled radar system upgrades, required to provide Mode C transponder coverage, have not been placed into full service in all Class B sites. The present action would extend the current exclusions to those airports that have not received the improved radar coverage, and amend the exclusions provided airports that have received improved radar coverage through operational verification of the new radar systems.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would codify authority previously granted to pilots in command during the initial testing of TCAS to deviate from an air traffic control clearance or instruction in non-emergency situations in response to a traffic alert and collision avoidance system (TCAS) resolution advisory (RA). The FAA has consistently encouraged pilots to comply with TCAS RAs. The language contained in current regulations suggests that deviation from an ATC clearance is only authorized in an emergency situation. This rulemaking action proposed to add the TCAS RA as a reason to deviate from a clearance, and would require that whenever a pilot deviates from an ATC clearance or instruction, ATC would be advised as soon as possible.

Abstract: This action would amend the certification requirement for fuel pressure indicators on pump-fed engines to permit other regulatory alternatives to warn pilots of imminent fuel pressure loss. A fuel pressure indicator is not the only means currently available in the marketplace to warn the pilot of a fuel pump failure. The proposed change would allow manufacturers to utilize new technology to improve operation, economy, and engine life.

Abstract: This action proposes to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations by withdrawing approval for the use of booster seats and vest and harness-type child restraint systems on aircraft. Recent research shows that these systems are a hazard to children in the event of an accident. This rule would increase safety for children on board aircraft. The FAA has already taken action, by way of press releases, pamphlets, and advisories to U.S. airlines, to notify the public and the aviation industry that these seats should no longer be used on aircraft. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice responds to the President's Executive Order on Regulatory Planning and Review, the Vice President's National Performance Review, and the Administration's Civil Aviation Initiative. It proposes to implement a new and more efficient procedure for adopting non-controversial or consensual rules. This "direct final rulemaking" procedure involves issuing a rule with a statement that the FAA anticipates no public comment. If the FAA receives no adverse or negative comment, or notice of intent to file such a comment within a specified time period, the the rule will become effective on a designated date. If the FAA does receive such a comment or notice of intent, a notice of withdrawal of the direct final rule will be published in the Federal Register, and a notice of proposed rulemaking will be published with a new comment period. This new procedure is expected to reduce significantly the time needed to publish routine or non-controversial final rules.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes changes to the type certification requirements for both normal and transport category aircraft. These changes are based on standards that are being incorporated by the European Joint Aviation Authorities for the Joint Aviation Requirements (JAR) 27 and 29. These proposed changes are intended to harmonize the Federal Aviation Regulations rotorcraft type certification requirements and the European JAR.

2444. • +POLICY REGARDING AIRPORT RATES AND CHARGES

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 47129

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This statement of policy was required by Congress as part of the DOT authorization Act of 1994. The statement announces DOT and FAA policy on the fees charged by Federally-assisted airports to air carriers and other aeronautical users. While the policy statement was issued in February 1995, the department requested further comments and will be issuing a supplemental statement to address the comments received. This policy statement is considered significant due to substantial industry interest.

2466. • BIRD STRIKE

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 106(g); 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423 to 1426; 49 USC 1428 to 1431

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes to revise the bird strike requirements of part 25 of the Federal Aviation Regulations. These changes are intended to harmonize the bird strike requirement of the FAR and the Joint Aviation Requirements. The proposed changes would revise sections 25.631, 25.571(e), and 25.775(b).

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91; 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 125; 14 CFR 129

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would require incorporation of repair assessment guidelines for external fuselage pressure boundary into the FAA approved maintenance programs of each operator of certain transport category airplane models. The purpose of the repair assessment guidelines is to establish a damage-tolerance based supplemental inspection program for repairs to detect damage, which may develop in a repaired area, before that damage degrades the load carrying capability of the structure below the levels required by the applicable airworthiness standards.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 106(g); 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423 to 1426; 49 USC 1428 to 1421

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would revise the requirements concerning gated positions on the control used by the pilot to select the position of an airplane's high-lift devices. It would update the current standards to take into account the multiple configurations of the high-lift devices provided on current airplanes to perform landings and go-around maneuvers. This rulemaking would also harmonize these standards with those being proposed for the European Joint Aviation Requirements (JAR).

DOT—FAA — Long-Term Actions

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would amend the requirements for landing gear braking on transport category airplanes to require that the airplane be designed to withstand main landing gear maximum braking forces during ground operations. This action would ensure that the landing gear and fuselage are capable of withstanding the dynamic loads associated with the maximum dynamic braking condition, and would also relieve a burden on industry by eliminating differences between the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) and European Joint Aviation Requirements (JAR).

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action was to revise part 121 of the Federal Aviation Regulations by allowing air traffic control specialists to ride on the cockpit jumpseat in nonpassenger-carrying air carrier operations. Originally this rulemaking was considered significant. However, because there is no substantial public interest, this rulemaking is no longer significant.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 189

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action modifies part 189 of the Federal Aviation Regulations to remove the outdated fee provision. Due to enhanced commercial communications, FAA has determined that the need to accept (and charge fees for) messages addressing such topics as lost baggage, hotel reservations, crew assignments, and other commercial matters no longer exists. The change is not intended to affect FAA's transmissions relating to flight safety, flight plans, and weather.

Abstract: This action extends SFAR 58, which established a voluntary, alternative method for the training, evaluation, certification, and qualification requirements of flight crewmembers, flight attendants, aircraft dispatchers, instructors, evaluators and other operations personnel subject to the training and qualification requirements of 14 CFR 121 and 135. The FAA developed this alternative method in response to recommendations made by representatives from the Government, airlines, aircrew professional organizations, and airline industry organizations. The SFAR is designed to improve aircrew performance and allows certificate holders to develop innovative training programs that incorporate the most recent advances in training methods and techniques.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action extends, for 2 years, the effectiveness of SFAR 50-2, which contains procedures governing the operation of aircraft in the airspace above the Grand Canyon National Park. SFAR 50-2 originally established the flight regulations for a period of 4 years to allow the National Park Service (NPS) time to complete studies concerning aircraft overflight impacts on the Grand Canyon, and to forward its recommendations to the FAA. The NPS study, completed in September 1994, recommended alternatives, such as use of quiet aircraft, additional flight-free zones, altitude restrictions, operating specifications, noise budgets, and time limits. This action allows the FAA sufficient time to thoroughly review the NPS recommendations as to their impact on the safety of air traffic at the Grand Canyon National Park, and to take the appropriate rulemaking action.

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) is proposing to revise and consolidate several right-of-way regulations to improve the organization of the subject matter and update the content. This action will also implement sections 126 and 146 (airspace and donations) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987.

Abstract: The revision of these subparts will reduce their complexity, recognize the existence of State laws, regulations, and organizations implementing 23 USC 131, and emphasize the position of the State as the initial, primary, and principal focal point regarding the requirement of effective control. Potential costs should be reduced, albeit minimally. The principal benefit will be to give the States greater ability, in the context of the broad requirements of 23 USC 131, to respond to concepts and issues relevant to the States. We are reviewing these regulations and we intend to focus on changes necessitated by ISTEA.

Abstract: The FHWA requested public comment on how, under section 411(h) and 416(b) of the Surface Transportation Act of 1982 (STA) (PL 97-424, 96 Stat. 2097), the Secretary may determine which safety or efficiency-enhancing devices are to be excluded when measuring the length and width of vehicles for compliance with federally mandated dimensions. The present system of employing rulemaking proceedings is too time-consuming and cumbersome to meet the needs of industry and is needlessly burdensome for FHWA. Therefore, a new approach will be proposed.

2499. PERIODIC INSPECTION REQUIREMENTS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 31131; 49 USC 31137; 49 USC 31142

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 396

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to rescind the periodic inspection requirements for commercial motor vehicles (CMVs). Under the President's Regulatory Reinvention Initiative and the FHWA's Zero-Based Regulatory Review, the FHWA has examined the effectiveness of the periodic inspection requirements established in response to the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 (The Act) and determined that the requirements can be rescinded without reducing safety. The periodic inspection requirements have not provided any greater assurance of the safety of operation of CMVs than the driver vehicle inspection and systematic repair and inspection requirements, which were in existence prior to the passage of the Act. This action would not relieve motor carriers of their responsibility to ensure that CMVs subject to their control are in safe and proper operating conditions at all times. It is the intent of this action to eliminate unnecessary regulations and achieve performance-based inspection, repair, and maintenance requirements under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations.

Abstract: To reconcile the training needs of the motor carrier industry

DOT—FHWA

with the requirements of the Commercial Driver's License (CDL) program and the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, the FHWA is proposing additional minimum Federal standards for State-issued learner's permits that allow drivers to be trained in the operation of commercial motor vehicles (CMVs). Among the alternatives under consideration: Applicants for Commercial Driver Instruction Permits (CDIPs) might need to possess drivers' licenses and undergo record checks analogous to those now required for CDLs; CDIP transactions might be entered in the Commercial Driver's License Information System (CDLIS); and CDIP holders might be explicitly subject to the same disqualifications as CDL holders. Since driver training is nationwide in scope, the FHWA is proposing options that would allow a State to issue a CDIP to a driver trainee. In addition, the FHWA is proposing to amend existing regulations to incorporate interpretations made since the original CDL regulations were issued. This will also address some issues currently under consideration for increased effectiveness of the CDL program.

Abstract: This action will amend the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations to implement provisions of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1990 (section 15 of PL 101-500). This enactment prohibits a motor carrier that receives an "unsatisfactory" safety rating from operating commercial motor vehicles to transport hazardous materials in quantities for which vehicle placarding is required or to transport more than 15 passengers, including the driver. The prohibition is effective 45 days after receipt of an unsatisfactory rating and remains in effect until a satisfactory or conditional rating is secured. This action is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to include the certification of fitness to operate a CMV in the commercial driver's license (CDL) process. Incorporating the commercial driver fitness determination into State administered CDL procedures could allow elimination of the requirement that CMV drivers carry a separate medical certificate. The CDL would be evidence that the CMV driver is physically fit as well as operationally qualified to operate CMVs safely. This action addresses the driver's physical qualifications as they relate to the CDL process; it does not address whether those standards are correct or should be changed. The FHWA has determined that the negotiated rulemaking process will be used to provide a proposed rule. Action is being taken to obtain a convener/facilitator to contact prospective participants to represent affected parties and the convener/facilitator will oversee the process. After the FHWA has secured a contract with a convener/facilitator, a notice of intent to establish a negotiated rulemaking committee will be published in the Federal Register with time allowed for comments. The FHWA expects to proceed with the negotiated rulemaking process by October 1995.

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration and the Federal Transit Administration currently have a joint environmental regulation at 23 CFR 771, "Environmental Impact and Related Procedures". The agencies first issued an environmental regulation together in 1980. The joint regulation was amended in 1987 and again in 1991. Even though FHWA and FTA have joint regulations, each agency's guidance for implementing those regulations is procedurally different. This causes difficulties and inconsistencies for sponsors of transportation projects, particularly where joint FHWA and FTA funds are involved. In the ISTEA, the Congress recognized the importance of providing uniformity and consistency between FHWA and FTA environmental procedures. This is needed to accommodate the increased funding flexibility for surface transportation provided by ISTEA. Because of an increased emphasis on intermodal planning and proposals to advance a high speed rail program, the proposed, new joint regulations will include the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA). The proposed regulations will therefore be applied to all three modal administrations.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to revise its regulations dealing with the identification and marking of commercial motor vehicles (CMVs). Five changes are being proposed which would: (1) Apply the marking requirements to all CMVs operated in interstate commerce, including those common and contract motor carriers of property or passengers authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission(ICC); (2) require motor carriers to mark both sides of each CMV with a specific legal name or name under which it does business (DBA name); (3) require motor carriers to mark each CMV with the city and State of its principal place of business; (4) require all new motor carriers to file Form MCS-150 within 30 days after beginning operations: and (5) move sec. 385.21, and sec. 385.23 and the appendix to part 385 to a new section in part 390. The States would also be allowed and encouraged to use United States Department of Transportation (USDOT) identification numbers to identify intrastate motor carriers. The proposed changes would improve the identification of motor carriers and CMVs, aid enforcement, and enhance data collection and analysis.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: PL 103-311

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 395.8

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, August 1995. Final, Statutory, February 1996.

Abstract: A record of duty status (49 CFR 395.8) is required to be prepared for each day a driver operates a commercial motor vehicle in interstate commerce. All motor carriers are required to maintain the record of duty status for at least 6 months along with all documents that support the accuracy of the record of duty status (sec. 395.8(k)). The Hazardous Materials Transportation Authorization Act of 1994 (Pub. L. 103-311) mandates the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) to specify what documents must be maintained to support the accuracy of the record of duty status. This rule will implement the statutory mandate that requires the agency to describe the type of supporting documents to be generated and maintained, as well as specify the quantity and length of time to maintain the supporting documents.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA proposes to amend its rules of practice for motor carrier safety, hazardous materials, and other enforcement proceedings, motor carrier safety ratings, driver qualification proceedings and its schedule of penalties for violations of the FMCSRs and the Hazardous Materials Regulations. The FHWA further proposes to add provisions on investigative authority and procedures and general motor carrier responsibilities. These rules would increase the efficiency of the procedures, enhance due process and the awareness of the public and regulated community, and accommodate recent programmatic changes. The rules will apply to all motor carriers, other business entities and individuals involved in motor carrier safety and hazardous materials administrative actions on the effective date of the final rule.

Abstract: This rulemaking was initiated in 1982 to amend FHWA regulations on recordkeeping and reporting requirements for on-the-job training on Federal-aid construction contracts. The FHWA intends to issue a new notice of proposed rulemaking proposing additional changes to this subpart as well as other subparts in part 230 of title 23 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 23 USC 303; 23 USC 315; 23 USC 135; 23 USC 134

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 500; 49 CFR 614

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 18, 1992.

Abstract: 23 U.S.C. 303 requires the Secretary of Transportation to issue regulations for State development, establishment, and implementation of systems for managing: highway pavement of Federal-aid highways; bridges on and off Federal-aid highways; highway safety; traffic congestion; public transportation facilities and equipment; and intermodal transportation facilities and systems. The Secretary also must issue guidelines and requirements for the State development, establishment, and implementation of a traffic monitoring system for highways and public transportation facilities and equipment. States must be implementing each management system in Federal fiscal year 1995, or the Secretary may withhold up to 10 percent of funds apportioned under title 23, U.S.C., or under the Federal Transit Act for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1995. The primary purpose of these systems is to improve the efficiency of, and protect the investment in, existing and future transportation infrastructure. The systems will provide additional information needed to make informed decision for optimum utilization of limited resources.

The economic impact of the regulations is expected to be minimal. The regulations will be issued jointly with the Federal Transit Administration (RIN 2132-AA47). This regulation is considered significant because of substantial State and local government, congressional, and public interest.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: PL 102-240, sec 4007

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, December 18, 1992. Final, Statutory, December 18, 1993. Other, Statutory, January 18, 1994.
Other deadline is for a report to Congress.

Abstract: This action is in response to section 4007 of the Motor Carrier Act of 1991 (title IV of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991). The Department has initiated a rulemaking on the need to require training of all entry-level drivers of commercial motor vehicles. The Agency intends to submit a report to Congress in the fall of 1995 on the effectiveness of private-sector efforts to ensure adequate training of all entry-level drivers. This report will include a cost-benefit study of requiring training of entry-level drivers. Public comments will be solicited on the report. This rulemaking action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Authority: 23 USC 106(d); 23 USC 302; 23 USC 307; 23 USC 315

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 627; 49 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In this action, the FHWA proposes the application of value engineering (VE) in the design and construction of Federal-aid highway projects funded under the grant-in-aid process. This proposal would require State highway agencies (SHAs) to establish and administer VE programs, outline minimum VE program requirements and provide guidance on establishing, administering and monitoring such programs. This action is considered necessary to implement the provisions of 23 USC 106(d), which provides that the Secretary may require a value engineering or other cost reduction analysis of plans, specifications, and estimates for proposed projects on any Federal-aid highway. This rulemaking is considered economically significant because FHWA has determined that a savings of more than $100 million per year is likely to occur as a result of the implementation of the regulation.

Abstract: The standards, policies and standard specifications that have been approved by the FHWA for application of projects located on the National Highway System (NHS) are incorporated by reference in 23 CFR Part 625. The American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) has revised "A Policy of Geometric Design of Highways and Streets" to incorporate the latest information on geometric design and to change the numeric values used in the policy exclusively to metric units. Through this rulemaking, the FHWA is proposing to incorporate this revised AASHTO publication into the regulations on design standards for highways, thus adopting controlling metric criteria for use in the design of projects on the NTS.

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration is making technical and conforming amendments to its alcohol and drug testing rules and its regulations implementing the commercial driver's license program. The testing rules require employers to test drivers who are required to obtain commercial driver's licenses (CDLs) for the illegal use of alcohol and controlled substances. The amendments are necessary to correct minor errors in the final rule, codify final dispositions of waivers of the commercial driver's license program, and implement provisions in the Hazardous Materials Transportation Authorization Act of 1994 and other DOT rules.

Abstract: The FHWA is adopting an interim policy for certification acceptance (CA) which modifies the current FHWA policy published in the Federal Register on October 12, 1978, as amended. This interim policy streamlines and simplifies the existing procedures for CA applications to be consistent with the new program provisions in the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991. The modifications simplify the current regulations by eliminating unnecessary and prescriptive requirements. The new policy will allow State highway agencies (SHAs) to use the CA alternate procedures to supplement the administrative flexibility provided in the ISTEA for non-Interstate projects.

Abstract: The FHWA is, with one exception concerning speed limit equivalents, adopting two American Association of State Highway Transportation Officials' (AASHTO) publications as its policy for the design of traffic control devices for use on all roads open to public travel. The FHWA does not intend to take any implementation actions to convert sign messages to metric units until after 1996. However, it will proceed with changing sign sizes and other dimensions to metric units. The FHWA's Metric Conversion Policy provides that newly authorized Federal-aid construction contracts must be only in metric units by September 30, 1996. It is the intent of this rulemaking to Abstract: This action extends the applicability of alcohol and controlled substances testing requirements to foreign-based drivers of motor carriers under the Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act of 1991. The FHWA needs information concerning foreign government laws and regulations that may conflict with the proposed rules. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; 49 USC app 2505

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 391.41(b)(8)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA considered revising the driver qualification requirements related to the epilepsy standard found in 49 CFR Part 391.41(b)(8). The FHWA believed that a review of the standard was necessary to assess the effect advances in medical science and technology may have on the standard. This action was considered significant because of substantial public interest. Also under development was a notice seeking comments on the FHWA's intent to initiate a three-year study to permit the FHWA to collect data on the driving experience of a group of drivers who have epilepsy. This action (i.e. waiver program) was terminated in light of the recent decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit in Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety v. FHWA, No. 92-1411, August 2, 1994.

In that case, the FHWA rule allowing commercial drivers with impaired vision in one eye to apply for waivers from the Federal vision standard was struck down because the Court held that the agency lacked the data necessary to support its determination that the vision waiver program "is consistent with the safe operation of commercial motor vehicles."

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 23 USC 109; 23 USC 114

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 637

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA has revised its regulations found at 23 CFR part 637, which establish general requirements for quality assurance procedures for sampling and testing materials and construction in Federal-aid highway projects. The former regulations were written around the traditional approach of the State performing all of the quality assurance sampling and testing; the regulations did not address the use of contractor testing. As a result, a number of questions arose in certain States and in the FHWA's Federal Lands Highway Office, where contractors are used in quality assurance and quality control programs. After careful study of the use of contractor-performed testing, an internal FHWA committee found that contractor sampling and testing can be used in acceptance systems, provided that adequate checks and balances are in place to protect the public investment in highway projects. The revisions in this action implement the committee's recommendations, providing guidance on the use of contractor-supplied test results in acceptance plans and qualifications of laboratories and testing personnel.

Abstract: This action announces the agency's plan to consider upgrading the standard by making the current crash requirements more stringent and by broadening the standard's focus to include mitigation concepts related to fuel system components and environmental and aging tests related to components. This action also requests comments on the agency's plan to explore a three-phase approach to upgrading the standard, data, methods, and strategies which may assist in the agency's regulatory decisions in defining specific requirements and test procedures for upgrading the standard.

Abstract: This action proposes to establish a Negotiated Rulemaking Advisory Committee under the Negotiated Rulemaking Act of 1990 and the Federal Advisory Committee Act to develop recommended specifications for altering the U.S. lower headlamp beam pattern to be more sharply defined. Such a pattern would facilitate visual aimability of headlamps and might be the basis for a world-wide lower beam pattern. The Committee would develop its recommendations through a negotiation process. The Committee would be composed of persons who represent the interests affected by the rule such as domestic and foreign manufacturers of motor vehicles, headlamps, and headlamp aimers, motor vehicle inspection facilities, consumers, and State and Federal governments.

Abstract: In response to the President's regulatory reinvention initiative, the agency is proposing to rescind the warning device standard for all motor vehicles. The agency cannot justify the existence or show the benefit to society by retaining the standard. The standard is referenced by Federal Highway Administration for Motor Carrier Use Regulations. FHWA has stated that an industry standard would be as suitable for this purpose. The Society of Automotive Engineers is updating its standard to reflect the performance stated in the federal standard. FHWA will then use the SAE standard.

Abstract: On January 8, 1981 (46 FR 2136), the agency published a notice of proposed rulemaking on rear underride crashes relative to small vehicles colliding with the rear of a heavy vehicle (a vehicle with a gross vehicle weight rating (GVWR) greater than 10,000 pounds). Rear underride occurs when the front of the smaller vehicle slides under ("underrides") the rear end of the larger vehicle. The agency received over 100 comments on the proposal, some of which raised issues about possible alternatives to the proposal and about the burdens of the proposal on small businesses. The SNPRM sought to retain the safety benefits of the earlier proposal while meeting the concerns about potential small business impacts. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, January 31, 1993. Final, Statutory, February 28, 1995.

Abstract: This action requires passenger cars, trucks, buses, and multipurpose passenger vehicles with a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less, to provide protection when an occupant's head strikes upper interior components, including pillars, side rails, headers, and the roof, during a crash. This amendment adds procedures and performance requirements for a new in-vehicle component test. Insofar as this rulemaking applies to passenger cars, it is required by the NHTSA Authorization Act of 1991. This action is considered significant because of safety and cost implications.

Abstract: This action proposes to improve the Uniform Tire Quality Grading Standard (UTQGS) to revise treadwear testing procedures to maintain the base course wear rate of course monitoring tires at its current value. That revision should eliminate treadwear grade inflation, reduce testing expenses, and reduce the adverse environmental consequences of operating testing convoys; create a new traction grading category of "AA" in addition to the current traction grades of A, B, C to differentiate those tires with the highest traction characteristics from lower performing tires; and replace the temperature resistance grade with a rolling resistance/fuel economy grade. This change would provide a measure of a key fuel economy characteristic of tires, and responds to the President's Climate Change Action Plan. This action is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

Abstract: Under the corporate average fuel economy program, certain incentives are provided for the manufacture of alternative fuel vehicles, including dual fuel vehicles. Among other things, dual fuel passenger automobiles which meet a minimum driving range qualify for special treatment in the calculation of fuel economy. In order to implement a new statutory requirement, this notice is proposing to amend the existing regulation concerning minimum driving range.

Abstract: In response to a petition for rulemaking, this action proposes to permit the installation of a new item of motor vehicle glazing, Item 4A - Rigid Plastic for Use in Side Windows Rearward of the "C" Pillar, in hatchbacks and station wagons. The agency is seeking to provide greater flexibility for manufacturers to develop and use more aerodynamic, lighter weight glazing designs, resulting in lower fuel consumption.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action and a companion proposed rule issued by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) address the use of child harnesses and backless child restraints in aircraft. The agency proposes to permit those restraints to be certified for use in both motor vehicles and aircraft. Under the current FAA regulations, aircraft-certified child restraints may be used on aircraft. However, because testing has raised concerns about the safety of using harnesses and backless child restraint systems on the types of seats found in aircraft, FAA is publishing an action that would prohibit the use of booster seats, and vest-and harness- type child restraint systems on aircraft even if they are certified for aircraft use. This action is considered significant because of the substantial public interest in issues involving child seats on aircraft and because of special interest to another model Administration.

Abstract: This action proposes to allow high intensity discharge (HID) light sources to be used in replaceable bulb headlamp systems, in addition to their presently-allowed use in integral beam headlamp systems. If the life of the light source approaches that of the vehicle, as is the case with HIDs, interchangeability will no longer be so important. Therefore, this action also proposes to allow a manufacturer to submit fewer items of dimensional information if it can demonstrate that the average rated laboratory life of its light source is not less than 2,000 hours.

Abstract: In response to the President's regulatory reinvention initiative, this action proposes to rescind this standard. The agency has tentatively concluded that due to market forces and product liability concerns, the manufacturers will continue to minimize glare causing reflections from vehicle surfaces within the field of view of the driver. Eliminating the standard will remove the need to certify compliance with it. NHTSA believes that the standard can be rescinded without affecting safety.

Abstract: The Highway Safety Act of 1991 required the agency to publish by December 31, 1993, an ANPRM concerning potential improvements in its braking standards, such as a requirement for antilock brake systems in passenger vehicles (RIN 2127-AE47). The purpose of antilock brakes is to enhance the driver's control of the vehicle during emergency braking. Antilock brakes are currently available on many passenger cars and most light trucks. The accident statistics for cars and light trucks were reviewed in support of the rulemaking process and because of public interest in antilock brakes.

Additional Information: Preliminary evaluation report on light trucks was docketed 12/15/93. The report indicated that rear-wheel antilock brakes for light trucks significantly reduced the risk of nonfatal run-off-road crashes. Preliminary evaluation report on passenger cars indicated that four-wheel antilock brakes significantly reduced multivehicle crashes on wet roads and fatal pedestrian crashes, but run-off-road crashes increased. The overall net effect on fatal as well as nonfatal crashes was close to zero. This was published 2/9/95 (60 FR 7814).

Abstract: This review addressed the costs, benefits, and operational performance of glass-plastic windshields regulated by Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 205. NHTSA Technical Report DOT HS 808 062, published in November 1993 did not show significant injury reductions for glass-plastic windshields. Durability problems and costs of the windshields were found to be greater than has been anticipated by NHTSA. The study did not support rulemaking to mandate the currently optional type of glazing.

2641. RULEMAKING TO DELETE "DUE CARE" PROVISIONS FROM THE OCCUPANT CRASH PROTECTION STANDARD

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 322; 49 USC 30111; 49 USC 30115; 49 USC 30117; 49 USC 30166

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.208

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1986, NHTSA added a provision to Standard No. 208, Occupant Crash Protection, allowing vehicles that fail one or more of the injury criteria in the standard to still be considered as complying with the standard if the manufacturer could show it had exercised "due care" in the design and construction of the vehicle. The Motor Vehicle Safety Act requires all safety standards to be expressed in "objective terms." Further, the courts have held that compliance with safety standards must be determined by objective measurements and without recourse to any subjective determinations. The inherently subjective nature of a "due care" determination precludes the use of that concept as an aspect of compliance with the safety standards. Therefore, the "due care" provisions would be proposed to be deleted from the crash protection standard. The agency is terminating this rulemaking because it does not plan to take action in this area in the immediate future.

Abstract: In response to a petition for rulemaking, NHTSA considered whether to amend the certification regulation to require the standardized display of a permanent metal vehicle manufacturer's label for all motor vehicles weighing more than 4,536 kg (10,000) pounds. Comments did not show that a significant problem exists or if a problem did exist that it may be attributed to the deliberate removal of certification labels by unscrupulous operators, or the inadvertent failure to install labels by final stage manufacturers, circumstances that would not be addressed by the proposed rule. Also, metal certification labels would be more costly to prepare and install than the labels currently being used. After reviewing comments, NHTSA terminated this rulemaking.

2647. UNIFORM GUIDELINES FOR STATE HIGHWAY SAFETY PROGRAMS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 1205

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 1204

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA) (Pub. L. 102-240) requires the Secretary to ensure that the uniform guidelines for State highway safety programs include each of six key areas (Speed Control, Occupant Protection, Driving While Impaired, Motorcycle Safety, School Bus Safety, and Police Traffic Services). This action adopts guidelines on three of these programs: Speed Control, Occupant Protection and Roadway Safety. This action also revises six of the existing guidelines to reflect new issues and to emphasize program methodology and approaches that have proven to be successful in these program areas. Finally, this action removes the guidelines from the Code of Federal Regulations. The guidelines, as revised, will be published in a separate document made available to the states.

Analysis: Regulatory Evaluation 06/07/95 (60 FR 30006)

Additional Information: Due to apparent confusion concerning the scope of the requirement and the effect of that confusion on transmission designs, the requirement will be changed until September 1, 1996. Until that time, the transmission lock will only be required to prevent key removal when the transmission is fully engaged in a detent position other than park (e.g., reverse, neutral, drive). After that date, the requirements will revert to their previous form, prohibiting key removal in all positions other than park.

Abstract: In response to a petition for rulemaking, the agency has included a definition of air-over-hydraulic brake subsystem. Such a definition will clarify the classification and compliance requirements for this brake system.

Abstract: NHTSA has terminated this rulemaking. The agency has determined that it would be unnecessary to extend the period during which a manufacturer may choose between two burnish procedures since manufacturers have been certifying compliance to the brake standards based on the "new" more representative burnish procedure since September 1994.

Abstract: In response to a petition for rulemaking, the agency has included new requirements regarding pneumatic timing and balance for trailer brake systems. The control line pressure differential requirements will effect converter dollies and trailers designed to tow another vehicle equipped with air brakes. The agency believes this will improve the braking compatibility of such vehicles by allowing the use of a relay valve known as a spool-type low opening valve.

Abstract: NHTSA responses to petitions for reconsideration to the final rule published September 26, 1994 (59 FR 49010) that established performance requirements applicable to compressed natural gas (CNG) fuel containers. That final rule specified burst test safety factors of up to 3.33 for use in evaluating the strength of carbon fiber containers. In an initial notice responding to the petitions published December 28, 1994 (59 FR 66773) a single, lower safety factor of 2.25 was adopted, subject to further consideration of that issue. This action reaffirms that decision and responds to other issues raised by the petitioners.

Abstract: This action terminates rulemaking in response to a petition asking the agency to require manufacturers of pickup trucks to place some kind of warning or recommendation on the cargo beds and in the owner's manual stating the dangers of passengers riding in the cargo area of these vehicles. Pickup manufacturers have agreed to include in their owners' manuals clear and specific warnings about the dangers of riding in cargo areas of vehicles and to join with the agency, vehicle dealers, and other interested organizations in a broad-based effort to educate the public about the dangers associated with riding in the cargo area of vehicles. The agency has concluded that no regulatory action is needed at this time.

Abstract: This regulatory action redelegates the entire responsibility for administering the Drug Offender's Driver's license suspension process from both the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Federal Highway Administration to the Federal Highway Administration alone. By this redelegation process, the agency is streamlining the certification process and eliminating the duplication of government efforts.

Additional Information: A joint NHTSA/FHWA final rule published on 08/12/92 (57 FR 35989), RIN 2127-AE10, established the procedures the States must follow to notify the NHTSA and the FHWA of their intention to enact legislation or a resolution opposing legislation under this program. NHTSA was responsible for reviewing State laws and resolutions to determine compliance and FHWA is responsible for administering the penalty provisions. Because all States have laws and resolutions, the NHTSA role is completed and responsibility for administering this program is delegated to FHWA alone.

Abstract: The track regulations have not been comprehensively reviewed in the past decade. This regulatory action will consist of a revision of existing track safety standards, as mandated by Congress in the Rail Safety Enforcement and Review Act (PL 102-365). With this revision FRA will also respond to a Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way petition regarding numerous changes to the existing track standards. FRA will also incorporate input from research on internal rail defects and continuous welded rail. This action is significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

Other, Statutory, December 31, 1992, Interim final rule.
Final, Statutory, June 30, 1995, Final rule.

Abstract: The interim rule (IR-2), published on May 13, 1994, amends an FRA interim rule (IR-1) published on February 3, 1993, by relaxing the standards IR-1 contained concerning auxiliary external lights on locomotives. The lighting arrangements in IR-1 were deemed acceptable interim locomotive conspicuity measures. FRA encouraged the installation and use of such lighting arrangements as are now widely used and available. IR-2 contains detailed and specific performance standards regarding color, intensity, operation, mounting location and flash rate for ditch lights, crossing lights, strobe lights and oscillating lights. Lighting devices installed in conformance to the specifications in IR-1 and IR-2 will not be immediately rendered obsolete when FRA issues final standards in this area. This action is intended to increase the visibility of locomotives to motorists in order to reduce collisions between vehicles and locomotives at highway-rail grade crossings.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 214

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, September 1, 1995.

Abstract: This action was originally contained in our comprehensive track safety standards revision, RIN 2130-AA75. FRA is placing it in Part 214 as it is more directly related to worker safety than to track standards. The regulation is intended to establish minimum mandatory requirements to provide roadway workers with on-track safety. The rule is considered significant because of substantial public interest and safety considerations. This rulemaking represents FRA's first negotiated rulemaking.

Additional Information: On August 17, 1994 (59 FR 42200), FRA published a notice proposing to form a negotiated rulemaking advisory committee and invited requests for representation, to be received by September 16, 1994. On January 5, 1995 (60 FR 1761), FRA published a notice of the establishment of an advisory committee and announced the first committee meeting. A schedule of further Advisory Committee meetings was published 2/15/95 (60 FR 8619), 5/8/95 (60 FR 22542) and 8/15/95 (60 FR 42214). The Committee met on the following dates: February 16 to 17, 1995 ; March 7 to 8, 1995; March 23 to 24, 1995; April 3 to 4, 1995; April 19 to 21, 1995; May 16 to 17, 1995, and August 30-31, 1995. The Advisory Committee submitted its report to Secretary Pena and Administrator Molitoris on June 17, 1995.

Abstract: The Federal Transit Administration (FTA) and the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) currently have a joint environmental regulation at 23 CFR 771, "Environmental Impact and Related Procedures," that outlines requirements for complying with the National Environmental Policy Act and related laws and regulations. The Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) has "Procedures for Considering Environmental Impacts" (45 FR 40854, June 16, 1980) which serve the same purposes. FTA and FHWA are revising their regulation to serve program needs. In order to achieve consistency in environmental analysis for surface transportation modes and to update its existing environmental procedures which were issued in 1980, the FRA will join with FTA and FHWA in developing an environmental regulation that applies to all three modal Administrations. This action is considered significant because of public, congressional, and environmental concerns and because it involves several departmental modes. The FTA RIN is 2132-AA43; the FHWA RIN is 2125-AD32.

Final Rule Stage

Abstract: Consistent with the Secretary of Transportation's Strategic Plan, which highlights his vision to develop high speed rail in select corridors,and as mandated by the Swift Rail Development Act of 1994, FRA has incorporated, and intends to incorporate, high speed rail issues within the following rulemakings: Power brake ((RIN 2130-AA 73); Track (RIN 2130-AA75); Passenger Equipment Standards (RIN 2130-AA95); and Rail Passenger Service: Emergency Preparedness Rules (RIN 2130-AA96). In future rulemakings, FRA will address specific safety standards within the high speed rail context. At this time, however, FRA has concluded that there is no need to continue to retain an agenda entry for generic standards. Should FRA conclude that a comprehensive rule dealing with all aspects of high speed rail is necessary, FRA will initiate such a rulemaking. Because it no longer plans to address the subject in that way in the near future, however, FRA sees no reason to retain this entry. Accordingly, this entry will not appear again, and those interested in relevant regulatory developments in the high speed area should focus their attention on the rulemakings cited above.

Abstract: In conformity with the President's call for regulatory reform, FRA has identified several regulatory items that it intends to reinvent. FRA has concluded that five areas of its regulations should be amended or eliminated. Subpart D and the appendices of Part 212 (State Participation) will be eliminated as obsolete. Part 230 (Safety Appliances) will be amended to allow greater flexibility in the Locomotive Inspection Waiver process. Part 233 (Signal Reporting Requirements) will be modified to afford greater filing flexibility in signal system reporting requirements. Part 235 (Discontinuance or Modification of Signal Systems) will be revamped to allow an exclusion from signal system discontinuance approval requirements. Part 251 (Loans) will be eliminated in its entirety due to the repeal of its statutory authority. In addition, FRA identified other improvements that will be made in regulatory arenas that are currently the subject of separate rulemakings, and separate agenda entries.

Abstract: FRA issued a final rule on July 8, 1993 (58 FR 36605). Petitions for reconsideration were filed, together with requests for clarification and interpretation. Additional Information: FTA recently published two notices, non-regulatory in nature, relating to FTA's Buy America regulation. First, FTA published an immediate public interest waiver exempting micro-purchases from requirements of Buy America, thus alleviating administrative burdens on FTA recipients and staff. (3/15/95, 60 FR 14174) Further, FTA published a notice of waiver from Buy America requirements for small purchases by FTA grantees and made with capital and planning assistance and for all purchases by FTA grantees made with operating assistance. It proposed to add iron to the list of products subject to the Buy America requirement. (7/24/95, 60 FR 37930) The goal of this public interest waiver is to eliminate some of the procurement delays, "red tape," and paperwork from FTA grantees' procurement processes.

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will revise text in the CFR to reduce burden or duplication, or streamline requirements.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 5304(e)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 622; 23 CFR 771

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, May 18, 1992.

Abstract: The Federal Transit Administration and the Federal Highway Administration currently have a joint environmental regulation at 23 CFR 771, "Environmental Impact and Related Procedures". The agencies first issued an environmental regulation together in 1980. The joint regulation was amended in 1987 and again in 1991. Even though FTA and FHWA have joint regulations, each agency's guidance for implementing those regulations is procedurally different. This causes difficulties and inconsistencies for sponsors of transportation projects, particularly where joint FTA and FHWA funds are involved. In the ISTEA, the Congress recognized the importance of providing uniformity and consistency between FTA and FHWA environmental procedures. This is needed to accommodate the increased funding flexibility for surface transportation provided by ISTEA. Because of an increased emphasis on intermodal planning and proposals to advance a high-speed rail program, the proposed, new joint regulations will include the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA). The proposed regulations will therefore be applied to all three modal Administrations.

Analysis: Regulatory Evaluation 07/28/92 (57 FR 33394)

Additional Information: Former section 12(b) of the FT Act, as amended (now 49 USC 5302(a)(9)), defines a "new bus model" as a bus model which has not been used in mass transportation service in the United States before the date of production of such model, or a bus model which has been used in such service, but which is being produced with a major change in configuration or components. A third interim final rule, published on 07/28/92, added two new categories of buses required to be tested. On 10/13/92 FTA published a notice postponing the application of the interim final rule for these vehicle types until 02/10/93. The FTA's fourth interim final rule, issued on 11/3/93, established four subcategories of small vehicles to facilitate the phase-in of testing. The final rule will add the two tests mandated by ISTEA, brake performance and emissions, to the seven tests currently performed at the bus testing facility. In addition, the final rule will clarify the partial testing with regard to what constitutes a "major change" on a bus that has been fully tested, but is later produced with a change in configuration or component.

2692. +STATE RESPONSIBILITY FOR FIXED-GUIDEWAY SYSTEM SAFETY

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 5330

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 659

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 28, 1992.

Abstract: Congress directed the FTA to issue a rule requiring States to oversee the safety of rail fixed guideway systems not regulated by Federal Railroad Administration. This rulemaking would improve the safety of rail fixed-guideway systems.

Section 5330 describes the responsibilities of the State and the agency the State designates to provide oversight. The oversight agency must require each affected transit agency to create a system safety program plan, which the oversight agency must review and approve. The oversight agency must also investigate accidents and hazardous conditions. Once a hazardous condition has been discovered, the oversight agency must require the transit agency to correct or eliminate it.

If a State has not met these requirements or has not made adequate efforts to comply with them, the Secretary may withold up to five percent of a fiscal year's apportionment under FTA's formula programs for urbanized areas attributable to the state or an affected urbanized area in the State. This is significant since it will require states to oversee the safety of rail fixed-guideway systems, something the Federal government has never before required.

DOT—FTA — Final Rule Stage

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: PL 102-240, sec 1034; 23 USC 303

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 614; 23 CFR 626; 23 CFR 500

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 18, 1992.

Abstract: The Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act mandates the FTA and FHWA to issue regulations for State development and implementation of systems for managing: (1) highway pavement of Federal-aid highways; (2) bridges on and off Federal-aid highways; (3) highway safety; (4) traffic congestion; (5) public transportation facilities and equipment; (6) intermodal transportation facilities and systems. States must be implementing each management system in Federal fiscal year 1995 or the Secretary may withhold up to 10 percent of funds apportioned under Title 23, U.S.C., or under 49 USC chapter 53 (mass transportation), for any fiscal year beginning after September 30, 1995. The primary purpose of these systems is to improve the efficiency of, and protect the investment in, existing and future transportation infrastructure. The systems will provide additional information needed to make informed decisions for optimum utilization of limited resources. The economic impact of the regulation is expected to be minimal. This regulation is issued jointly with the Federal Highway Administration (RIN 2125-AC97). The regulation is considered significant because of substantial State and local government, public, and congressional interest. The interim final rule was effective January 3, 1994; comments were due by January 31, 1994.

2694. +TEMPORARY LOCAL MATCH WAIVER FOR SECTIONS 9 AND 18

Priority: Other Significant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will eliminate existing text in the CFR.

Legal Authority: PL 102-240, sec 1054; PL 102-388; PL 102-302

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 671

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rulemaking was mandated by the 1992 Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act and 1993 Department of Transportation and Related Appropriations Act. The rule allowed recipients to ask for a temporary waiver in 1992 and 1993 of the local match required under sections 9 and 18 of the Federal Transit Act, as amended. An interim final rule, which announced the availability of the program and establishes the procedures for applying for that program, was employed, since this matter was extremely time-sensitive and of substantial public interest. The only remaining matter, technical in nature, is to publish a final rule.

2714. • ELIMINATION OF UNNECESSARY, OBSOLETE, AND DUPLICATIVE REQUIREMENTS

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Reinventing Government: This rulemaking is part of the Reinventing Government effort. It will eliminate existing text in the CFR.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 5101 to 5127

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 106 to 107; 49 CFR 171 to 180

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking responds to the President's directive to all heads of departments and agencies to review and eliminate all unnecessary, obsolete and duplicative regulations. The regulations identified in this action are being proposed to be deleted because they meet the criteria established by the President.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 5101 to 5127

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 106 to 107; 49 CFR 171 to 180

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking proposes establishment of a ticketing program for hazardous materials violations which would result in imposition of reduced penalties for those violations which have less effect on safety than others for which civil penalty proceedings are initiated.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Training and qualification standards have been proposed for personnel involved in the operation and maintenance of gas and hazardous liquid pipelines. Special consideration would be given to operators of small gas systems to alleviate the burden of compliance. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial State and congressional interest.

2718. +MAPS AND RECORDS OF PIPELINE LOCATION AND CHARACTERISTICS; NOTIFICATION OF STATE AGENCIES; PIPE INVENTORY

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, November 1, 1989.
Deadline pertains to pipe inventory and State agency information.

Abstract: Maintenance of appropriate information about pipelines is essential for emergency response, compliance with safety standards, and other purposes. This action proposes to equalize as far as possible the requirements that gas and liquid operators keep maps and records to show the location and other characteristics of pipelines. Operators would also be required to keep an inventory of pipe and annually report mileage and other facts. In addition, operators would be required to provide certain information to State agencies upon request. This is a significant action because of congressional and State concerns about the need for appropriate public officials to have pipeline information.

2719. DETERMINING THE EXTENT OF CORROSION ON EXPOSED GAS PIPELINES

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Corrosion is a major cause of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents. A safety standard applicable to liquid pipelines requires operators to examine exposed pipe for evidence of external corrosion and, if harmful corrosion is found, to investigate further to determine the extent of the corrosion. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes that exposed gas pipelines with evidence of harmful corrosion be investigated to determine the extent of the corrosion.

2720. TRANSPORTATION OF HYDROGEN SULFIDE BY PIPELINE

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In a few reported instances, excessive amounts of hydrogen sulfide were introduced into natural gas pipelines. High concentrations of hydrogen sulfide are very detrimental to steel pipelines and extremely toxic. This action examined the need to establish a maximum allowable concentration and other control measures. Based upon public comments and the views of its gas pipeline advisory committee, RSPA has decided that the proposed rule should be reevaluated.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Abstract: This rulemaking established minimum Federal safety standards requiring that new and replacement gas transmission and hazardous liquid pipelines be designed to accommodate the passage of internal inspection devices. This rulemaking is mandated by PL 100-561. In response to petitions for reconsideration of the final rule, an NPRM was issued.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, April 24, 1994.

Abstract: Service line breaks due to excavation damage and other causes continue to be a threat to public safety, despite the precautions being taken through one-call damage prevention programs and line surveys for corrosion or leaks. Excess flow valves would be required on new and renewed service lines to stop the flow of gas in the event of a line break. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves a substantial change in regulations and concerns a matter of substantial public and congressional interest. A final rule specifying performance standards for EFV's is being prepared.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 60101 to 60125

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 24, 1993.

Abstract: The gas pipeline safety standards do not require operators to maintain customer-owned lines that connect customer buildings or houses to operator-maintained lines. These customer-owned lines, often called "yard lines," are subject to the same safety problems as operator-maintained lines. This action requires operators who do not maintain yard lines to advise customers with such lines of the potential hazards of not maintaining the lines, and the requirements and resources available for maintenance.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 1, 1995.
Section 122 of Pub. L. 103-311 requires that rulemaking action be completed by October 1, 1995.

Abstract: This action examined whether there are standards, other than the performance-based standards adopted under Docket HM-181, that will provide an equivalent or greater level of safety to the HM-181 standards, that open-head fiber drums can meet for the transportation of liquid hazardous materials. The agency found that there are no known alternative standards that provide an equal or greater level of safety. Therefore, this rulemaking was closed without any alternative standards being proposed.

Priority: Other Significant

Legal Authority: 46 app USC 1241(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MARAD is proposing amendments to its cargo preference regulations intended to ensure that U.S.-flag carriers of preference cargoes be allowed to carry such cargoes subject to standard commercial contract and contract tender terms that would allow them to avoid economic harm from discriminatory practices. This action is needed to eliminate charter party terms that are at variance with generally accepted commercial terms and which discriminate against U.S.-flag carriers of agricultural commodity preference cargoes. This is significant because it involves other agencies and is of substantial public interest.

Legal Authority: 46 app USC 1114(b); 46 app USC 1241(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In an effort to encourage the development of a modern and efficient U.S. flag bulk fleet and to help lower government-wide cargo preference program costs, MARAD is considering changes in its methodology for the determination of fair and reasonable rates. MARAD has identified three alternative methodologies which it might consider. Fair and reasonable rate determinations are now provided to U.S. government shippers of preference cargo, thereby creating ceiling rates which limit government costs and the revenue U.S. flag operators receive for ocean cargo transportation. This is significant due to substantial industry and government interest. Common carrier liner services are being considered in a rulemaking RIN 2133-AB16.

Abstract: This action would amend regulations implementing title XI of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, so as to improve administration of the "obligation guarantees" program applicable to financing assistance for all types of vessel construction and shipyard modernization and improvement. An interim final rule implemented extension of the Secretary of Transportation's statutory authority to guarantee obligations issued for this financing assistance. (See RIN 2133-AB09.) Legal Authority: 46 app USC 1114(b); 46 app USC 1241(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 383

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: At the request of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the Agency for International Development (AID), the major U.S. government shipping agencies, MARAD is providing those agencies with guideline rates for bagged and packaged agriculture commodities carried on liner vessels. MARAD already provides guideline rates to USDA and AID for such commodities carried on bulk vessels under similar regulations at 46 CFR Part 382. This amendment to 46 CFR 383 extends the scope of the rule to include bagged or packaged agricultural commodities in parcels of 5,000 tons or greater carried on vessels in liner service. It is significant because it would affect other Federal agencies which have requested that MARAD provide them with such guideline rates.

Abstract: This action would have amended the cargo preference regulations to allow MARAD to discharge its responsibility for administration of the cargo preference laws of the United States and to report to Congress with respect to the movement of household goods and personal effects of Government employees. It would have required DOD to submit information about the carriage of preference cargoes to MARAD. MARAD needs to receive periodic information from DOD detailing shipments of military household goods and personal effects to monitor compliance with cargo preference requirements. The need for this rulemaking has been obviated by an agreement with DOD to provide MARAD with the information needed.

Abstract: This action amends the Federal Port Controller (FPC) regulations (46 CFR 346) and allows the FPC standby service agreements to become operational upon the deployment of the armed forces of the United States, or other requirements of the nation's defense. This action makes these port readiness regulations consistent regarding activation, and benefits the defense capabilities by assuring that the authority to activate the FPC Agreement and the Priority Use and Allocation regulations are the same. A conforming amendment is being made to 49 CFR 345 and the authority sections of 345 to 347 are being amended to reflect repeal of a statute and its reenactment in different form.

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 381

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This amendment to the cargo preference regulations of the Maritime Administration (MARAD) provides that during the 1995 shipping season when the St. Lawrence Seaway is in use, MARAD will consider the legal requirement for the carriage of bulk agricultural commodity preference cargoes on privately-owned "available" U.S.-flag commercial vessels to have been satisfied where the cargo is initially loaded at a Great Lakes port on one or more U.S.-flag or foreign-flag vessels, transferred to a U.S.-flag commercial vessel at a Canadian transshipment point outside the St. Lawrence Seaway, and carried on that U.S.-flag vessel to a foreign destination. It allows Great Lakes ports to compete for agricultural commodity preference cargoes during an entire season trial period. MARAD issued a final rule in August, 1994 that adopted this policy for the 1994 shipping season in progress since April, 1994. However, this did not allow for a true trial period for MARAD evaluation purposes. It is significant because it affects other Federal agencies and is of great interest to the maritime industry.

Abstract: Section 2927 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (P.L. 103-160) amended section 203 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 484(q)). It authorized the Administrator of the General Services Administration, after consultation with the Secretary of Defense, to prescribe regulations for the assignment to the Secretary of Transportation, for disposal, surplus real property located at a military installation closed or realigned pursuant to a base closure law which has been recommended by the Secretary of Transportation as being needed for the development or operation of a port facility. P.L. 103-160 gave the Administrator, or the Secretary of Defense, the discretion to assign such real property to the Secretary, including buildings, fixtures and equipment located thereon. The Secretary has delegated the disposal authority to the Maritime Administrator. This rule prescribes procedural regulations for disposal of such surplus real property by the Maritime Administration for the development or operation of a port facility consistent with the GSA's controlling final rule.

Priority: Substantive, Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 41708; 49 USC 41709

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 241

Abstract: Historically, the source document for the Passenger Origin-Destination Survey was the auditor's coupon of the ticket. Until recently, these coupons provided all the information that was needed for the Survey. In the last few years, the carriers have begun using trip passes in conjunction with the tickets, thereby eliminating some of the data that is required to be reported in the Survey. Other innovations used by the industry, such as funnel flights and code-sharing, have impacted the Survey and obscured some of the data that is required to be reported, such as change of planes and junction points. This rulemaking will explore whether there are alternative sources for the data and modernize the collection system to keep pace with the industry.

2761. REVIEW OF CONFIDENTIALITY REQUIREMENTS FOR SCHEDULE T-100 DOMESTIC MARKET DATA

Priority: Other

Legal Authority: 49 USC 40101; 49 USC 40113; 49 USC 41708; 49 USC 41709

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 241

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Domestic data filed in Schedule T-100 "U.S. Air Carrier Traffic and Capacity Data by Nonstop Segment and On-Flight Market" are released to the public immediately after edit. This rulemaking was to explore whether the policy of immediate release should be modified for sensitive domestic market data to include a period of confidentiality. Since the requesting office has determined that the public interest would be best served by liberal access to Schedule T-100 data, this rulemaking has been terminated.

Department of the Treasury

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY (TREAS)

31 CFR Subtitle A, Chs. I and II

Semiannual Agenda

AGENCY: Department of the Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda and fiscal year 1996 regulatory plan.

SUMMARY: This notice is given pursuant to the requirements of the "Regulatory Flexibility Act" (Pub. L. 96-354, September 19, 1980) and Executive Order (E.O.) 12866 ("Regulatory Planning and Review," September 30, 1993), which require the publication by the Department of a semiannual agenda of regulations. E.O. 12866 also requires the publication by the Department of a regulatory plan for fiscal year 1996.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For additional information about a specific entry in the agenda or plan, contact the "Agency Contact" identified in the item relating to that regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The semiannual agenda of the Department of the Treasury conforms to the Unified Agenda format developed by the Regulatory Information Service Center (RISC). For this edition of the regulatory agenda of the Department of the Treasury, the most important significant regulatory actions are included in The Regulatory Plan, which appears in Part II of this issue of the Federal Register. Regulatory Plan entries are listed in the Table of Contents below and are denoted by a bracketed bold reference that directs the reader to the appropriate Sequence Number in Part II.

Dated: September 26, 1995.

J. Benjamin H. Nye,

Executive Secretary.
